In Cheerful Detroit. Which Business Biggest? Ford Shows the Plant. Paul Block to Publishers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 7.

THE Detroit Times today inaugurated its new plant and extremely handsome new building. Nearly everybody was there, to congratulate Mr. Andrews, the publisher, and Mr. Hearst, the owner, both present.

THE Detroit Times when bought from its former owners about eight years ago had less than 20,000 circulation. It has close to 300,000 now and sells at 3 cents a copy, instead of 2 cents the former price.

THIS city, full of energy, is not worrying about the recent upset in par of Wall street. For instance the new store of the J. L. Hudson Company, is doing business at the rate of $75,000,000 a year, third biggest dry goods store in the United States. That interests merchants.

R. H. WEBER, who runs and owns the store with his three brothers, wonders whether Marshall Field in Chicago or Macy in New York have the nation's biggest retail business. Marshall Field, with over a hundred millions a year is probably in the lead. Macy doing more than ninety millions is catching up rapidly, everything gets bigger and bigger.

THE Hearst publications, a fact that interests publishers, do a business of two hundred million a year.

When Hearst, on leaving Harvard, told his father he wanted to go into the newspaper business and run the San Francisco Examiner, his father, Senator Hearst, replied:

"All right, but what REAL business do you want to go into?" Any business can be made a real business if you understand it and attend to it.

HENRY FORD, who was at luncheon, with the Times editors and their friends, took some of them, including W. R. Hearst, to the Ford factory. They were the first to see the new 1930 Ford motor coming down the line, with deeper, narrower radiators, changed mud guards, lower roof, and lower price.

THE visitors drove literally for miles through Ford factories, rolling mills, blast furnaces, going in an automobile to the second floor of the various factories and riding the full length.

THEY saw steamships that the government built and never sent to sea being cut into pieces, later to be melted and changed into Ford cars.

IN the line of moving automobiles, the "line of production," they saw a new feature. The workmen no longer walk along the line, keeping up with the slowly moving machines. The floor covered with rubber, on which they stand moves with them.

THE visitors also saw "Russia" in a large laboratory turned over to engineers, mechanics, and draft men sent over by the Russian government to learn how automobiles are made.

EXTREMELY intelligent men are those Russians, eager to take back to their country the industrial efficiency of the United States. They will do it.

ONE of them, a concentrated young Russian engineer said, "I hear Americans say that our government and those that run it will not be there 10 years hence.

"All that may be. But at least in 10 years, our government which belongs to the people, will make a great change in Russia and for the better."

HENRY FORD has his engineers in Russia, showing how to establish factories, and the Ford company like the General Electric company, has given Russia credit in the tens of millions to make industrial building possible.

FORD'S idea of American participation in Europe's affairs is to help with our knowledge and our money, establish American plants in European countries, to show how things should be done, and otherwise mind our own business.

OF all that Henry Ford has to show what interested him most was a dancing class in his big "experiment" building, for the public school children of Dearborn.

More than one hundred young boys and girls were there dancing an old-fashioned quadrille with good instructors, as solemn as little owls. ENJOYING THEMSELVES. Six hundred public school children are in this Ford dancing class.

FRIENDLY warning to workers throughout the country. Do not crowd into Detroit under the false impression that you will find jobs at high wages waiting for you.

Cities and their industrial populations must grow gradually. This is not a time to move.

SUGGESTION for all employers.

R. H. Weber, head of J. L. Hudson's, ten years older than his brother, Oscar, says to his brother, "Get somebody ten years younger than you are, to grow up under you, and let him get somebody ten years younger than he is, to come along with

Six Men Confess to Series Of Robberies and Holdups; 3 On Way to 'New Job'

Captures of two gangs of highwaymen and robbers in the East End and Woods Run were reported by police today.

In Woods Run three men who admitted having robbed 17 places were arrested, the police said.

Three Negroes taken in the East End confessed to four highway robberies, a chain store holdup and purse-snatching.

The Woods Run prisoners admitted they were en route to "another job" when they were arrested, the police reported. Employes of the Donahoe store in Brighton road, where bandits obtained $2,000 Thanksgiving eve, are to try to identify the suspects.

THEFTS ADMITTED

The police contend the suspects admitted robbing the Lefkowitz drugstore, 1803 Brighton road, last night, and the Alex McBride grocery store, 217 Jefferson street, Bellevue, last week, among other places.

Patrolman Thomas English reported that he has suspected the men for weeks, that when he saw them in an auto at Bainton street and California avenue today he arrested them and found in the car several jimmies and 14 cartons of cigarets. They admitted they were headed for a "job" in a candy store nearby.

The prisoners are registered as Morris Cohen, 37, and John Broadhead, 37, of Sandusky street, and Thomas Irwin, 29, of Neptune street.

CITIZEN TAX PLEA UP IN CONGRESS

Petitions of Millions for Cut on Earned Incomes Presented by Paraders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Congress was petitioned today by millions of citizens to decrease the tax on earned incomes.

A huge parade, headed by nationally known celebrities and civic leaders of Washington, marched down historic Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol and there laid on the steps the petitions that have been signed by millions of people throughout the country, through the agency of the Hearst newspapers.

They were received by Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, chairman of the powerful Finance Committee of the Senate, and Representative Willis C. Hawley, chairman of the equally powerful Ways and Means Committee of the House. These leaders will in turn present the petition to their respective houses.

EARNED INCOME CUT

The petitions asked Congress to reduce the tax on earned income below the tax on income derived from investments and securities. They seek to have Congress and the country realize that the men and women who earn their living through their own labor should be given more consideration than those who merely clip coupons.

The relief which the petitioners seek has no connection with the tax reduction measure sponsored by the administration and already passed by the House of Representatives. While the administration measure reduces taxes all along the line, the principal which to-

Taxation Imposed on Earned Incomes Most Unjust, Exorbitant

AN imposing procession of representatives of all the professions who earn their incomes is presented to Congress today, a petition to abolish or at least modify the most unjust tax ever imposed upon the people of this country since the first foundation of the colonies.

The tea tax, the stamp tax and the other unjust taxes which brought about our war for independence against England, are as nothing compared with the confiscation-of-capital tax imposed upon those whose temporary physical and mental abilities enable them to earn money for a brief period, which money thus earned for a limited time, IS NOT ONLY THEIR INCOME BUT THEIR ACCUMULATED CAPITAL.

The taxation imposed upon earned incomes is unjust, exorbitant, usurious.

Abroad Uncle Sam is known as Uncle Shylock. There he is most unjustly called Uncle Shylock, because there he is nothing less than Uncle Santa Claus having forgiven those foreign nations half of the debt which he might have used to alleviate taxation at home.

But here at home he often comes perilously near to being Uncle Shylock, and never does he more nearly deserve that title than in the excessive and outrageous confiscatory tax which he imposes upon earned incomes.

The policy of this Bolshevist principle of appropriation of capital is unsound at the base; and in addition the methods of the tax collectors are almost as oppressive as the methods of the tax collectors who brought on the French revolution or those against whom Jesus preached when he arraigned the publicans and sinners.

Many a man whose services the public tried to reward with adequate compensation during the brief period of his activity has been left a pauper in his later years by these modern publicans going over and over his accounts and adding taxation upon taxation until his earnings were dissipated and his capital confiscated.

Many a widow has been brought to penury by the unjust provisions of this confiscatory law and the oppressive methods of the tax collectors.

In fact the cruelties of this confiscatory tax on earned incomes, pushed to extremes by the eager zeal of the tax collectors, are unlimited.

The injuries wrought in the past can probably not be corrected.

The many who received the deserved plaudits and rewards of their fellow-countrymen, still to go to their graves impoverished, under this socialistic system of capital confiscation, cannot be recalled.

But for the benefit of those who are still alive, the system can be stopped. We can end the governmental policy of making paupers of the most worthy and most serviceable element in our community.

We can have mentality enough to see clearly that at least half of an income which is earned for a limited period through service to one's fellow men, may be legitimately conceived as capital and not subject to confiscation, and the other half regarded as income subject to proper taxation.

Our Uncle Sam is rich.

He is rich enough to play Santa Claus abroad, and to give hundreds of thousands of millions of dollars to foreign countries and foreign peoples, whom he is under no obligation to favor.

He is therefore rich enough not to be Uncle Shylock at home, and not to swell his already bursting treasury through a Bolshevist policy of capital confiscation of earned income.

NORRIS NOT TO OPPOSE SEATING

Nebraskan's Attitude Toward Pennsylvania Manufacturer Nullifies Nye Enmity

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The political eyes of the nation were turned on Pennsylvania today where Gov. John S. Fisher was contemplating the appointment of a Republican to occupy the Sentorial seat left vacant when the Senate barred both Senator-elect William S. Vare and his Democratic opponent, William B. Wilson.

Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, is considered the probable appointee.

NYE CHALLENGE WEAK

A threat to challenge admittance of Grundy or "any other member of that crowd," already has been voiced by Senator Gerold P. Nye, (Rep.), of North Dakota.

His move has received but scant support, and that entirely from other members of the Democratic-Insurgent group.

Rumors have persisted that Grundy will be tendered the appointment, though reports conflict over his liklihood to accept it. While at first his friends were certain he would not enter public life after 40 years in the shadows, a noticeable change of sentiment now indicates he will accept the senatorial toga if it is tendered.

NORRIS NOT TO FIGHT

"If Mr. Grundy is appointed, he should be seated," said Norris. "I know of no valid reason

FISHER TO PICK SENATOR SOON

HARRISBURG, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Speculation on the identity of the man to be named by Gov. John S. Fisher, to fill the post of junior United States Senator from Pennsylvania made vacant by the rejection of William S. Vare, took a wide range today.

Gov. Fisher announced in Reading last night that the appointment was "only a matter of hours."

Fisher declared he would "permit no dictation from any outside source," his remarks obviously being directed at Senator Gerald P. Nye, youthful Republican from North Dakota.

The Governor said, "I have been shown a statement by a Senator better known for his voice than his statesmanship that he proposes to oppose anything the Governor of Pennsylvania does.

"Well, I don't want to belittle the states that have small population and representation out of proportion to their numbers, but you know I would fail in my duty if I allowed any threat to influence me."

DOWNTOWN FIRE OVERCOMES 12

Twelve firemen, overcome by smoke while fighting a blaze in the basement of Taubman Stores Corporation, at Seventh and Liberty avenues, last night, were reported recovering today.

A number of guests on the second floor of the Seventh Avenue Hotel, above the store, were routed by smoke which filled their rooms. The blaze was confined to the basement.

They were Battalion Chief William Graves, Capt. Francis Murphy, of No. 18 Engine Company; Hosemen Richard Walsh, Howard Cahill, Joseph Singer, Howard Smith, Thomas Jenkins and Peter Damratoski, all of No. 3 Engine Company; Joseph J. Morrissey, of No. 32 Engine Company; August Zitzman, of No. 33 Engine Company, and Robert Capes and John Hart, both of No. 1 Engine Company.

Bessie Love to Wed Broker December 27

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Bessie Love, who off the silver screen is Juniata Horton, will marry William B. Hawks, Los Angeles stock broker, December 27.

The date was announced after the couple appeared at the marriage license bureau yesterday and filed a notice of intention to wed. Both the actress and broker gave their ages as 28.

Neither has been married previously. The marriage ceremony will be read in St. James Episcopal Church.

Lindbergh Among Nelson Pallbearers

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Dec. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, one of the closest friends of Thomas P. Nelson, airmail pilot who lost his life when his plane crashed near Chagrin Falls, O., arrived here today for the funeral services.

Lindbergh, with others of the pilot's former comrades, will act as pallbearer.

STUDENT FACING FRAUD CHARGE

Henry J. Bush, University of Pittsburgh student, who was arrested just before he was able to boast of being a man with two cars, was to be returned to his former home in Rochester, N. Y., today in connection with the disappearance of $5,000 from the bank account of a brother.

Bush, who lived at 317 Semple street and was a student with a high rating, was arrested yesterday at the request of Rochester authorities. The arrest was made just before he was about to take possession of an expensive sport roadster. Police said he also had another machine.

Bush's relatives sought his arrest, police were told. Questioned by detectives Bush is said to have declared he made the money which enabled him to make a large bank deposit here, gambling and speculating.

He is said to have told of winning a 200-to-1 shot in a race bet; to have won baseball bets and to have been successful in stock market speculation. He said he would waive extradition.

TAX CUT PLAN ADVANCES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance Committee today reported favorably on the $160,000,000 tax reduction resolution. The committee action was unanimous.

The resolution, previously approved by the House, proposes a one per cent reduction in the tax rates on individual and corporation incomes.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader and a member of the committee, said after the meeting that while he had not definitely decided to call the measure up in the Senate Monday he believed this would be done. He added he did not look for serious opposition.

Under Secretary Mills, of the Treasury, appeared before the committee and explained in detail the proposed reduction.

Sidi Wirt Spreckels To Wed Army Flier

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7 —(INS.)—Sidi Wirt Spreckels, lately divorced from a Turkish title, is about to become the wife of Lieut. Rogers Alan Gardner, West Point graduate of 1925 and until recently a flying officer at Crissy Field here, according to reports today from persons close to both principals.

The romance began with Miss Spreckels' divorce from Prince Suad Chakir last year, it was stated. Lieut. Gardner was transferred three weeks ago from his post here to Langley Field, Virginia. It was learned that Miss Spreckels has left her residence here for Washington.

Edith Rockefeller Fills Song Cycle

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—The third and final composition of a "Love Song Cycle," prepared by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick and Eleanor Everest Freer, was made public today.

The third song of the group bears the title "Love." The first two songs of the cycle, "How Can We Know?" and "I Write Not to Thee, Dearest," were published in 1925 and 1927.

Woman Amnesia Victim in Hospital

Police today were trying to identify a woman, about 25 years old, found wandering at Washington street and Wylie avenue, shortly after midnight. At Allegheny General Hospital it was said she was a victim of amnesia.

Patrolman C. P. Klockgether took her in charge when she told conflicting stories as to her identity. At the hospital the stub of a bus ticket from Wheeling to Pittsburgh was found in her pocketbook.

Dollar Faces Port Quiz on Luggage

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—R. Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Company, was to appear before custom officials today to explain his failure to declare about $3,700 worth of merchandise found in six of his 29 pieces of luggage when he returned yesterday on the Leviathan.

Girl Who Stole to Feed Hungry Children Paroled

Mrs. Alice LaCompte, 19, of 1318 Reddour street, confessed in Morals Court today to stealing purses in downtown office buildings, to keep her two little daughters from starving.

With her younger child, Lucille Grace, 2, in her arms, Mrs. LaCompte told Magistrate A. D. Brandon she had been unable to make a living selling Christmas cards and stole stenographers' pocketbooks.

"My husband, an insurance agent, wasn't able to make much and I had to have money to feed my children," the young mother testified."

The husband, Wilbur LaCompte, 28, holding the older child, Mary Jane, 3, broke down and wept. His father, who lives in Baltimore, would make the stolen money good, he said.

A score of women gathered in the courtroom also shed tears. None of them appeared willing to sign an information against Mrs. LaCompte. Magistrate Brandon paroled her in custody of her husband, pending settlement of the claims. A total of about $200 is involved, detectives testified.

Young women who testified their purses had been stolen, theft of which Mrs. LaCompte admitted, were: Alice Rosenberg, 6657 Ridgeville street, employed in the Park Building; Grace L. Miller, Bellevue, Jenkins Arcade; Clara Patterson, 7301 Idlewild street, Frick Building; Sally Stewart, 5409 Walnut street, Park Building; Florence Gaussi, 305 South Fairmount avenue, Jenkins Arcade. Miss Gaussi testified $100 was stolen from a safe in the office while she was absent momentarily.

The LaComptes came here last May from Baltimore, they said.

Doll Lady's Headquarters

THE Doll Lady has established two convenient downtown headquarters where children are invited to see and hear her wonderful dolls.

The Doll Lady is ready to receive you at No. 135 Sixth street, Roosevelt Hotel, or in the main entrance of the Davis Theater on Smithfield street, near Oliver avenue.

Happy Girls Rush to See Doll Lady and Dolls

By THE DOLL LADY

My, wasn't it wonderful?

In all the places I've been I've never seen so many dear little girls who are interested in me and my dollies as crowded around me yesterday at 135 Sixth St. Roosevelt Hotel Bldg.

Doll Lady

Have you seen my dolls — dolls dressed in blue that matches their very eyes, dolls in pink like their rosy cheeks, and dolls in bright yellow that brings out the golden glints in their yellow golden curls? You can't help but fall in love with them—the whole window full. If you haven't held them in your arms, cuddled them up and listened to them sing and recite you really should go Monday to 135 Sixth St., Roosevelt Bldg., Davis Theater Lobby, Smithfield St., where the Doll Lady is at home, with her big family.

SINGS LONDON BRIDGE

"Tell the dollie to sing one more song," pleaded a little tot who came in to hear one of my doll children sing "London Bridge Is Falling Down." Mother has promised to help me get the doll for the little girl and she says it is easy to do.

Oh, how terrified was the little girl who dropped a doll. She thought she had broken it. But to her surprise and joy the dollie

CITY COUNCIL TO FILL WINTERS' SEAT LATE TODAY

LITTLE HOPE FOR M'ARDLE ELECTION

Detective Lieutenant Malone Regarded as Only Threat To Kambach Appointment

Council will meet in special session at 3 p. m., today to elect a successor to Daniel Winters who resigned last Thursday to assume the city controllership.

The candidate chosen can be inducted immediately after the meeting, providing agreement is reached with Mayor Charles H. Kline, who has a vote in the election, and the remaining eight members of Council.

George J. Kambach, South Side attorney and intimate friend of Winters, is said to be the choice of Mayor Kline and Councilmen Alderdice, English, Herron and Little. Five votes can decide the election.

TWO SWING TO MAYOR

P. J. McArdle, whose term will expire next month, is believed to be favored by Anderson, Garland and President Malone, but doubt exists as to whether his name will be placed in nomination.

Little and Alderdice originally were counted upon as favoring McArdle, but developments of the last few days seemed to indicate that they now are anxious to vote for any person favored by the Mayor.

While the Mayor and his Councilmen are said to be in agreement regarding unalterable opposition to McArdle, there is possibility of discord over an alternate.

Lieutenant of Detectives Thomas D. Malone appears on the scene to cast a cloud on Kambach's hopes. Malone was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Council and was said to have received, surreptiously, the support of some of Kline's ward chairmen.

CONFERS WITH MAYOR

Malone polled a large vote and has been working tirelessly since the election to get enough support to succeed Winters in Council. Mayor Kline is said to be sympathetic with Malone's ambition.

Malone spent considerable time yesterday in the Mayor's suite and when asked what his chances were, replied: "You never can tell."

Alderdice, a former policeman who rose to the safety directorship, is expected by policemen and firemen to nominate Malone and work for his election.

Councilmen favoring McArdle, who now admit their case seems hopeless, are said to have told Malone that he would get the four McArdle votes if he can get one from the Mayor's faction.

Possibility of the Mayor's bloc reaching an impasse in the Kambach-Malone situation has revived rumors that the vacant seat in Council may go to B. L. Succop, of the South Side, director of the department of supplies and a political ally of Winters.

why he should be barred. It may be true he spent large sums of money in the Pennsylvania campaign, but his money was not spent to buy him the seat. If there is no evidence of fraud in his appointment and no evidence he has bought the appointment from the Governor, there will be no cloud on his title to the seat, and he should be seated."

This declaration by Norris sounded a death knell to any proposal to bar Grundy. There may be a battle over seating Grundy or one of his close associates, but without Norris' leadership and support the movement would prove futile.

INQUIRY UNLIKELY

Despite Nye's threat, it appeared entirely probable the Senate would seat Grundy without inquiry. This course is favored by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, the insurgent leader, who directed the fight against Vare.

In an exclusive statement, Norris told International News Service he did not agree with Nye's position.

If appointed and seated, Grundy probably will face a stormy career in the Senate. There is no doubt he will be properly hazed by his colleagues, who are still smarting under his charge that many of them represent "backward states."

In all likelihood, they will try to demonstrate to the country that a Grundy in the Senate is far less powerful than a Grundy in private life, with his hands on lavish purse strings.

Thus far, Grundy has won fame as a collector of Republican campaign funds and as the "granddaddy of all lobbyists." In the last two Presidential campaigns, he was credited with raising campaign funds running into millions of dollars. In one Pennsylvania senatorial election, he was credited with raising $360,000 at one swoop. During the recent tariff wars, he also was credited with having written most of the high industrial rates into the new bill. Otherwise, he has occupied an obscure part in national politics.

NYE HAS SOME SUPPORT

The Nye movement against him, however will find some sympathy in the Senate. There was a feeling among some Senators that if Vare was barred for spending nearly $800,000 in his primary, the seat should never be given to anyone intimately connected with an opposing ticket in the same campaign, which spent $1,500,000. This was the campaign fund credited to the Mellon-Fisher-Pepper-Grundy ticket in the campaign that Vare won but which cost him his seat in the end.

"I can subscribe to Senator Nye's argument," said Senator Brookhart, (Rep.) of Iowa, another insurgent. "It is not a lawyer's logic but its the common sense view to take.

"If Vare was barred because of excessive expenditures, the Senate shouldn't turn around and give his seat to a man who directly aided and abetted another machine in spending more money than Vare. I see no justice in that."

HAITI CRISIS AROUSES HOOVER

500 Marines Sent to Island, Reinforcing 700 Now There; U. S. Force Repulses Raid

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The situation in Haiti has become so grave that Congress will be officially advised of events there at noon today in a special message from President Hoover.

At the same time, it was expected that 500 Marines would sail for Haiti aboard the U. S. S. Wright, to reinforce the 700 marines now enforcing martial law on the West Indian Island which is the scene of a general strike of the civilian population.

The "Devil Dogs" were rushed to Norfolk from Quantico Marine Corps base under sealed orders "for duty beyond the sea." It was an open secret, however, that their destination was Haiti. They will sail from Hampton Roads at 2:30 p. m. today.

President Hoover's concern over the rioting in the cities of Port Au Prince and Cape Hatien was manifested when he sent a special message to Congress late yesterday regarding the Haitian situation.

ENFORCE MARTIAL LAW

The message reached Congress after both houses had adjourned, the lower House until today and the Senate until Monday. It will be read in the House of Representatives at noon.

The contents of the message were not revealed. It is believed, however, that it outlines the situation fully, informs Congress of the contemplated strengthening of Marine forces in Haiti, and urges immediately congressional action on the President's recommendation that a special commission be established to investigate conditions on the island.

Official action on the situation followed information conveyed to the State Department by Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, commandant of Marines in Haiti, that the strike of school teachers, students, dock workers and customs employes, had necessitated the enforcement of martial law in the cities of Port Au Prince and Cape Hatien.

These cities have been under martial law for the past nine years, but it has never been enforced.

Two American officials suffered slight injuries and some office furniture was damaged during the riot of customs employes.

MARINES REPULSE RAIDERS

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A body of 1,500 men who attempted to invade the city of Aux Cayes lat yesterday afternoon, armed with machetes, clubs and stones, clashed with a Marine patrol. Five of the invaders were killed and twenty wounded.

The invading band met a Marine patrol of 20 men under command of Capt. Roy Swink of the Nacional Garde. For an hour a parley was held and the soldiers were surrounded. They fired three volleys overhead and then opened effective firing with one machine gun and six automatic rifles. None of the defenders was injured.

Aux Cayes officials reported that in their judgment yesterday's action had saved the city from looting.

MINE RESCUERS HEAR SIGNALS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 7. — (AP.) — Signal tapping by three miners entombed behind a huge fall of coal in the Brock mine of the Continental Coal Company at Cassville, near here, spurred rescuers early today. Officials of the coal company said they believed the rescuers were within 30 or 35 feet of the trapped men.

More than 100 rescuers, using three cutting machines, hacked away at the fall of coal, described as about 200 feet in length when it caved in on the men about 3:30 p. m. yesterday. This force worked in shifts throughout the night. The tappings could be heard more distinctly toward dawn, officials said.

Brown, who refused to halt, was shot by the officer and was pronounced dead upon reaching the Pittsburgh Hospital.

VALUABLE advice for publishers, given by Paul Block, who owns newspapers in Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Toledo, Newark, Brooklyn and elsewhere.

"The price of print paper is to be increased. Publishers rather than raise advertising rates should meet that situation by reducing the size of their papers, and their consumption of newsprint, by ten per cent.

"Doing that, intelligently, they will improve their newspapers, and more than offset the increased cost of white paper.

"On one of my papers the proposed increase in paper price will cost me $100,000 a year. Cutting the size of the paper ten per cent, will save me $136,000 a year.

"Publishers should remember the postscript to Madame de Sevigne's letter to her daughter 'if I had more time I should have written you a shorter letter.'"

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure area is centered over Arkansas this morning and is causing cloudy weather over the eastern half of the country and rain over the Central and Southern Mississippi Valley states. Another low pressure area is centered over Montana. High pressure, centered north of the lakes, extends southwestward over the plains, separating the two low pressure areas, and is causing cold weather over the northern and central plains and the upper Mississippi valley.

River Conditions.

There is a slight rise in the rivers due to melting snow. Lake at Franklin is 2.0 feet. Lock No. 7 12 m. Pittsburgh 11.5; Dam No. 2, 8.8; Dam No. 9, 9.0, and Dam No. 12, 6.3. The dams are up.

MAN AND GIRL HURT IN CRASH

A man and a girl were in Allegheny General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a collision of two automobiles in the 2800 block of East street shortly after 5 a. m. They were Ben Simon, 35, of 1401 Colwell street, driver of one of the cars, and Emma Riddle, 22, of 1210 Gibbons. Both were believed to have fractured skulls.

Police said their automobile collided with one driven by William Lai, 22, of 301 Coltart Square. Lai was taken to North Side Police Station and charged with reckless driving. A similar charge was placed against Simon in the hospital.

TAX PETITIONS OFF TO PARADE

Signatures of more than 60,000 Pittsburghers who signed petitions for a reduction of the tax on earned incomes will be carried in the big tax protest parade in Washington Monday next. The Pittsburgh petitions were collected in New York with signatures from citizens in all parts of the country and will be carried to Washington in a caravan of motor trucks.

The parade will be held, under the auspices of the New York American and the petitions were obtained by Hearst newspapers throughout the country. The last package of Pittsburgh petitions submitted through the Sun-Telegraph will go forward today and there is still time to sign the coupon below and send it to this office. The reasons for the reduction in the tax are set forth in the following petition:

To His Excellency, the President of the United States of America:

To His Excellency, the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States of America:

To the Honorable, the Congress of the United States of America:

Whereas, the earned income of an individual is derived from his labor and creative faculties, which are subject to rigid limitations, fluctuations and serious depreciation, while the income from property is a permanent and stable income, it seems inequitable to tax earned incomes on the same basis as incomes from property and invested capital without taking depreciation into consideration; and

Whereas, an earned income is the measure of value of services rendered by the worker to the community and an unearned income is the measure of value of the protection and other benefits received by an individual of the community; and

Whereas, to tax earned incomes heavily is to penalize thrift and industry and is a direct tax on labor and tends to retard enterprise and achievement, therefore

Be it resolved, that we, the undersigned, call these facts to the attention of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury and Congress, in order to secure a reduction of 50 per cent in the tax rate on earned incomes below the tax rate on unearned incomes.

TAX PLEA GIVEN TO CONGRESS

day's petitioners seek to have established is not affected.

EARNED INCOME CUT

While they realize that the general income tax reduction is highly desirable and of benefit to the entire people, the petitioners would have Congress add to this reduction a further cut which would affect only those who earn their incomes, the salary worker and the professional man.

Isaac Gans, civic leader of the national capital, acted as grand marshal of the income tax parade. He was assisted in the conduct of the procession by Maj. Joseph Caccavajo, chief of staff.

The importance of the procession was recognized by the police department, which barred all traffic from the south side of Pennsylvania during its passage.

While the bulk of the procession consisted of simple citizens without organization, many patriotic and civic groups were in line. Labor organizations were represented by marching detachments.

STAGE CELEBRITIES

A notable company of stage, screen and writing celebrities and civic leaders came from New York on a special train to join in the memorial to Congress.

Among the New York delegation were Claire Windson, star of the screen; Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, of New York, and vice-president of the Federation Bank and Trust Company; Ben de Cesseres, noted essayist, and Edwin Frank Goldman, bandmaster and director of the Guggenheim Free Public Concerts. Former Mayor John F. Hylan was accompanied by Mayor James Berg, of Mount Vernon.

marchers were detachments from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, headed by Capt. Harvey L. Miller, department commander, and accompanied by their band of 93 musicians; the American Legion, led by Maj. L. E. Atkins, department commander; Army and Navy Union, headed by Col. W. H. McKelvey; disabled American veterans of the World War, led by Commander E. Claude Babcock, and delegations of veterans not affiliated with any organization.

NEWSPAPER DRIVE

The petitions, originated, circulated, collected and tabulated by the transcontinental chain of Hearst newspapers, were presented to Congress in huge wicker baskets.

RUM PENALTIES TOTAL $13,300

Prosecutions in Federal Court of suits brought under the national prohibition law resulted yesterday in five men being convicted, 34 pleas of guilty, impositions of fines aggregating $5,800, forfeiture of bonds of eight defendants, representing $7,500, three paroles, two jail sentences and one acquittal.

Frank Drobneck, of Main street, Franklin, Cambria County, convicted of selling and possessing liquor and maintaining a common nuisance, was sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay a $500 fine. Charles J. Miller pleaded guilty to violating the law and maintaining a common nuisance at 1258 Juniata street was sentenced to 60 days in jail and given a $200 fine.

Healthiest People Reside in Cities

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—To be healthy, live in the city. Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, told a committee on social work that the city more than the country is productive of healthy people.

Body in Burned Car, 'Torch' Murder Seen

ONTARIO, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The charred body of Bert Whipple, wealthy resident of this city, was found in his burned automobile between here and Claremont. Deputy sheriffs discovered a blood-stained hammer in an automobile parked nearby, and were investigating to learn whether Whipple may have been slain before his body was burned in the car.

Residents of the vicinity told of being awakened by screams last night, and saw the automobile blazing.

Both Wives to Attend Funeral of Bigamist

An alleged grievance against D. J. Sturtz, alias Stayler, slain bigamist, over a lawsuit in which he is supposed to have figured about a year ago, was being investigated today by county detectives working on the theory that the 32-year-old automobile mechanic's life of duplicity was brought to an untimely end Tuesday night by gangsters.

Sturtz is to be buried today in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery. He is being buried by wife No. 1, Mrs. Thelma Sturtz, mother of his two children. Mrs. Hazel Stayler, wife No. 2, has indicated that she, too, will attend the funeral services which are to be held from the parlors of a Brighton road mortuary.

While neither Chief George W. Murren nor his aides would discuss the case at length, they admitted they were no nearer to a solution than they were when Sturtz's bruised and bullet-riddled body was found in a snow pile Wednesday along the Yost boulevard, in Braddock Township.

The mysterious disappearance of the 1929 blue Essex coach in which Sturtz was known to have been driving on the night of his death, is as baffling to the detectives as the disappearance of the green Nash sedan in the unsolved Dr. Dapper slaying. This and the inability of detectives to ascertain a motive in the murder, detectives declare, have them blocked.

Coroner's Physician J. W. McMeans yesterday disproved the tale that Sturtz had been shot in the wrist a week or two prior to his death. Dr. McMeans and John Black, superintendent of the morgue, made a minute examination of the dead man's hands and arms, failing to find any trace of a wound such as described to county detectives by some one earlier in the day.

26 Die as New Hurricane Lashes British Shores

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A new hurricane which swept in from the Atlantic raged over the British Isles and nearby coasts today, spreading destruction and confusion in its wake. Scilly Island reported a wind velocity of 103 miles an hour, while 80 and 90-mile velocities in other parts of England were common.

As many as 26 already were dead in the furious storm, 19 of the victims losing their lives in sea mishaps in which huge waves and wind swamped smaller craft before they could make port. Considerable anxiety was held for some vessels which either were not reported or were known to have been in difficulties.

Throughout the night the gale tore through London, smashing windows and unroofing smaller wooden buildings. Crowds leaving the theaters last night were surprised at the violence of the blast which at that time was accompanied by a spectacular electric display and a torrential downpour

CHERBOURG, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—A bolt of lightning struck the Cunard liner Lancastria as she lay in Cherbourg Harbor today taking aboard passengers bound for New York.

The Cherbourg pasengers were just boarding the liner from a tender when the lightning bolt shot out of the sky, striking the huge steamer and throwing the voyagers into momentary panic.

The shock was felt all over the vessel, and the pasengers, climbing aboard the Lancastria by means of a gang-plank thrown up from the tender, clung to the hand-rails in fright. It was seen, almost immediately, however, that no serious damage had been done. The Lancastria then continued on to New York.

DEFECTIVE GAS LINE BELIEVED CAUSE OF MUNHALL BLASTS

SOUTH LEADS IN DRY LAW ARRESTS

Georgia, Florida Have Most Violations, Report of Doran Shows; Pa. Fourth

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Georgia, Florida and Maryland were the country's leading moonshine states, while prohibition law violations were most frequent in New York, Kentucky and Pennsylvania, judging from statistics contained in the annual report of Commissioner James M. Doran, made public today.

Old-fashioned "mountain dew," so called because of its sparkling colorlessness, formed the principal output of the Georgia stills, of which 1,934 were seized during the year.

The everglades of Florida prove an excellent haven for stills, which had a varied output of rum, rye and corn, much of which probably was converted into genuine imported stuff for the winter tourists. Nevertheless Federal agents captured 953 stills in that state.

MARYLAND RYE CENTER

In Maryland, where has flashed up in recent years a flourishing rye industry, much of the output of which is shunted over to the National capital, 773 stills were picked off by "revenuers."

The Porto Rico rum makers had a tough year and lost 880 stills.

Seizures in other states included Illinois 668, New York 337, North Carolina 326 and Pennsylvania 346.

For prohibition violation 8,265 persons were arrested in New York, with 3,963 in Kentucky, 3,352 in Illinois, 3,674 in Pennsylvania and 3,487 in Texas.

Doran's report disclosed that during the year there were 5,193 convictions under the narcotic act, for which the courts imposed sentences aggregating 11,141 years, and assessed fines of $218,783.

Against persons registered under the narcotic laws 1,318 cases were pending at the beginning of the year, while 3,754 new violations developed. Of this group 149 were convicted, nine acquitted, 1,016 submitted suitable offers in compromise, 857 cases were dropped and 1,723 were pending at the end of the year.

Of 9,306 cases pending against non-registered persons, 5,037 were convicted, 111 acquitted, 20 compromised, 1,392 cases dropped and the remainder left pending at the end of the year.

SMUGGLING PROBLEM

"Smuggling and subsequent illegal selling of narcotics continue to constitute the principal enformecent problem," Doran said. "While the illicit drug traffic on the whole appeared to be on the decrease, smugglers and dealers seem to have become more expert in their operations so that greater difficulty is experienced in making cases against them."

A general campaign of instruction for dry agents has eliminated most of the untrained officers, according to Doran. He declared untrained men no longer are sent out with general instructions to "enforce the law." Agents have been specifically advised regarding the rights of citizens.

Six prohibition agents were killed and 94 injured "in the line of duty" during the year ending June 30. Deaths occurred in the District of Columbia, Indiana, Maryland, New York, Texas and Washington.

Through the co-operation of foreign governments, the number of foreign vessels suspected of engaging in the rum traffic has been reduced from 250 to 103, according to the report.

The division investigating charges of serious nature against employes of the bureau looked into 341 cases, of which 278 were closed. The report did not show that action was taken.

The prohibition "army" at the end of the year numbered 4,664 permanent and 35 temporary employes, an increase of 264 "permanents" during the 12 months.

Man Burned When Home Catches Fire

Imbro Izawich, of 2120 Eggers street, North Side, was in a serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital today from burns suffered in a fire in his home last night. The flames which were confined to the kitchen by firemen, Frederick Wise, a fireman, was burned on the hands when he threw a blazing rug out of the room. Damage was estimated at $50.

Negroes Hold Up Man In Penn Twp. Store

Two Negroes last night held up the general store of S. A. Bower, on the Frankstown and Saltsburg roads, Penn Township, and escaped with $120 from the cash register, a watch and a revolver, Bower reported to county detectives. He added the robbers escaped in an automobile driven by a third Negro.

Girl Who Shot Self Dies in Hospital

Miss Jean Tucker, 23, died early today in West Penn Hospital from a bullet wound in the chest, which morgue attaches said was self-inflicted. She shot herself in her room in Webster Hall, Thanksgiving Day, according to a morgue report. Ill health was ascribed as the cause.

Dancing!

JULIA KOLISAR

CREIGHTON GIRL SOUGHT

Police are seeking Julia Kolisar, 18, who disappeared from her home at Creighton, near Tarentum, three weeks ago because her parents objected to her attending dances. She was last seen, police say, in a Cheswick dance hall.

Police believe that the girl is somewhere in the Pittsburgh district. On two other occasions she is reported to have run away, once to Philadelphia. Shortly after her last disappearance, Mrs. Kolisar told police she was called by telephone by the daughter who said she had been married. Friends investigated and found this statement untrue.

AGA KHAN WEDS POOR FRENCH SHOP GIRL

Indian Potentate, Leader Of Millions of Moslems, One of World's Richest Men

AIX-LES-BAINS, France, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The Aga Khan, powerful Indian ruler, descendant of the prophet and supreme religious head of millions of Moslems, was married to Andree Josephine Carron, young French business woman, at a simple ceremony here today.

Mayor Henri Clerc performed the civil ceremony and two Moslem imans from Morocco placed the Aga Khan's hand into that of the French girl who now becomes the consort of one of the wealthiest Indian princes in the world.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

The Aga Khan appeared more self-conscious than was his wont at Longchamp, Deauville and other race tracks where his colors were famous. He spoke his "yes" in a low, almost inaudible tone.

His bride was dressed in emerald and chocolate brown, her favorite colors and those which were made famous by the Aga Khan's horses on the turfs of Great Britain and France.

Upon her velvet gown incrusted with cream-colored laces made at Chambery, the bride had thrown an emerald crape caught on her left shoulder with a wide band of mink fur. Her bobbed hair was held together by a platinum fastening in the center of which glowed a square-cut diamond. The gown was of the latest fashion and extended a few inches below the knee. She also wore a magnificent ruby pendant on a gold and platinum chain around her throat.

PRAISES MARRIAGE

As the marriage party broke up one of the imans made a speech in Arabic, which was a eulogy of the marriage.

Before leaving the City Hall the bride dropped a check into the poor box, later said to be equivalent to $10,000.

The Aga Khan and his bride left for Italy this afternoon and will remain there a few weeks. Later they planned to live in a chateau on the shores of Lake Bourget, between Chambery and Aix.

A few days ago Mlle. Carron answered newspaper comment she looked like she was 21 years old with the statement she really was 31. She formerly ran a small candy shop in Paris.

Despite efforts of the Aga Khan to keep such details secret, it became known she was to receive about 1,000,000 francs (about $40,000) before the ceremony took place.

REPORT LEAK IN PATCHED MAIN

Coroner's Chief Clerk Gives Theory for Explosions In Postoffice and Store

A defective patch on the Eighth avenue gas main of the Equitable Gas Company was believed by Chief Clerk James Davidson, of the coroner's office, to have been responsible for the explosion in the Munhall postoffice, which Thursday claimed six lives and injured twoscore. Gas leaking from the patch is also believed responsible for yesterday's explosion in the Star drug store.

The line, patched with a rubber gasket and iron saddle, was reported leaking today.

With a possibility that the death list in the postoffice explosion Thursday would reach 10, federal, state and county investigators today broadened their scope of activities to include the second blast in the Star drug store, next door to the demolished building.

Four persons were killed, two later died, and 40 were injured in the first blast, while nine were added to the list of injured in the drug store explosion.

Workmen digging in the debris of the postoffice were buried under wreckage when the second blast let go. Rescuers had difficulty in releasing several of them.

On order of Coroner W. J. McGregor all gas lines in the vicinity were turned off after the explosion yesterday. All business houses and homes in the vicinity were provided with stoves and coal by gas company officials. The Ravine Street Public School, near the scene of the disaster, was dismissed following the second explosion.

SCHATZ NAMED ON COMMITTEE

Fred C. Schatz, of the Joseph Horne Company, has been appointed a member of the committee of traffic experts which will gather in Washington for the purpose of studying existing traffic laws and to recommend any changes in order to bring about standardization. The appointment, according to word received here today, was announced by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont.

Mr. Schatz is the fourth Pittsburgher to be appointed to this committee which will meet for the first time on Monday, December 16. Other local men serving on the committee are Thomas Fitzgerald, Prof. L. W. McIntyre and Burton W. Marsh.

Physician Honored At Farewell Dinner

Leading physicians of Pittsburgh last night gave a farewell dinner in the Keystone Athletic Club to Dr. Lawrence Litchfield, of 121 University place, on the eve of his departure for the South, where he will spend the winter. Speakers were: Dr. W. S. Thayer, of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore; Dr. W. T. Sharpless, of West Chester, Pa., president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, and Dr. E. B. Heckel, of Pittsburgh, president of the board of trustees of the American Medical Association. The dinner was arranged by a committee consisting of Dr. E. W. Willetts, Dr. H. G. Schleiter, Dr. Theodore Baker, Dr. J. I. Johnston, Dr. W. H. Mayer, Dr. Paul Titus and Dr. J. K. Everhart.

U. S. Court Staff Wins Commendation

The panel of petit jurors in Federal court, before being relieved from further duty yesterday, after two weeks' jury service, passed a resolution commending United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, J. Wood Clark, clerk of court, and his chief clerk, Mrs. Gertrude Berger, in the manner in which they conducted their duties. A new panel of 125 jurors will report Monday for two weeks jury service.

Edgewood Man Dies In Doctor's Office

While waiting for treatment in the office of Dr. W. L. Cunningham, in the Wallace building, Swissvale, last night, John Foreman, 48, of 124 Maple road, Edgewood, dropped dead from heart failure, according to a report to the coroner. He had been in ill health for some time, the report said.

FREED IN FATAL FIGHT

Joseph LeJeune, Jr., aged 23, tried on an involuntary manslaughter charge before visiting Judge W. M. Fleming, of Centre County, was acquitted, but directed by the jury to pay the costs.

LeJeune, who lives in Arlington avenue and works for the Columbia Gas Company, knocked down George Raynovich, aged 40, of 5 Rock street, while the latter was crossing the street at Forbes and Lawn street, August 25. LeJeune's car striking the man with such force his skull was fractured. Raynovich died the same day in the St. Joseph's Hospital.

TOWN HALL SITE KNOWN SOON

The executive committee of the Allegheny County Town Hall Association, favoring a downtown site for the proposed $6,000,000 building, met yesterday afternoon at the Colonial Trust Company.

No statement as to the action taken by the committee was issued for publication other than that, by unanimous vote the committee has decided on a location in the "Golden Triangle."

The site selected will be presented to the County Planning Commission at its meeting to be held Monday morning.

HURLEY ON JOB IN WAR OFFICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Col Patrick Jay Hurley today was going about his business as secretary of war, following his appointment to that post yesterday by President Hoover. He succeeds the late James W. Good.

President Hoover, in naming a military man to be administrative head of the American Army, broke with the tradition of the last three presidents, who had named civilians. Col. Hurley has still another distinction insofar as he is the only cabinet officer from the South, Oklahoma being regarded as one of the Southern bloc.

The new secretary has been acting in that capacity since the death of Mr. Good, having succeeded to that post from his position as assistant secretary.

During the World War, Col. Hurley participated in the three outstanding offensives of the American troops, Aisne et Marne, Meuse Argonne and the St. Mihiel drive.

Boy to Be Quizzed On Auto Accident

A 15-year-old boy, one of 16 arrested by police Thursday in connection with the thefts of scores of automobiles, was to be questioned by homicide detectives in connection with a fatal hit-and-run accident in the North Side a month ago.

He was alleged to have told police he had been in a stolen automobile with three other boys when the machine struck a man. The boys sped away without aiding the victim, the boy said, according to police.

POLICE SEEKING TWO MISSING

The Missing Persons Bureau has been asked to assist in finding Charles A. Shea, 26, of Lock Haven, Pa., an undertaker. His wife, Mrs. Virginia Shea, believes that he has become despondent because of lack of business. He left his home December 2 on a motor trip to Pittsburgh.

Charles A. Shea.

Aid of the bureau is also sought by Mrs. Mary Strasser, of 926 Excelsior street, in locating her daughter, Mrs. Mary Tranor, 15, who disappeared from home shortly after her return from an elopement with George Tranor, of Pittsburgh. The girl and her husband are believed to be living in Canonsburg.

5 Youths Confess 2 Murders, Holdups

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—East Chicago police announced that five youths in their teens had confessed two slayings and numerous holdups in the Calumet district within the last eight months.

The five under arrest, Walter Zalinski, Frank Rinb, Joseph Jacobs and Alfred Schoue, all 17, and Tony Laconi, 15, were said to have admitted the slaying of Mrs. Mary Flazyk, East Chicago candy shop owner, two weeks ago, and also the fatal shooting of William Hendron, steel worker, in May, 1927.

Likes Dog Best Wife Gets Divorce

"He told me he would rather have his dog than me and our two children," Mrs. Eulalia G. Lewis, 30, of 5624 Stanton avenue, testified concerning her husband, Thomas J. Lewis, 40, of Newburg, N. Y., in her divorce suit in Common Pleas Court. She was granted a divorce in a decree handed down by Judge George V. Moore.

Mrs. Lewis described flirtations of her husband with actresses and strange women in a hotel in which they lived in New York City. They were married at Bedford, Pa., May 31, 1917, and separated July 6, 1928, due to his cruelty, Mrs. Lewis said.

FORNEY TRIAL DELAY SEEN

Reports were current that the case against Alfred W. Forney, accused of being a common gambler and slot machine king, will not be placed on trial next Tuesday.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner when quoted regarding the subject, said he would know Monday if the case will not be taken up. He admitted that there are several witnesses out of the city and their whereabouts unknown.

The witnesses are said to be deer hunting in some of the northern counties of the state. John F. Haggerty, who has been assigned to try Forney, has been going right ahead and preparing his case.

3 FLEE POLICE, DODGE BULLETS

Two shots from a policeman's revolver failed to stop three men in an automobile who distanced the officers after a wild chase through the Squirrel Hill district early today.

Special Patrolman Andrew Bebr was accosted by the men in front of 3124 Beechwood boulevard, but when they saw his uniform the driver put on speed and started down the street. Bebr started in pursuit in his car, picking up Patrolman John Irwin. In front of 2845 Beechwood boulevard the police caught up with the car and Bebr called to the driver to stop. When he ignored the order, Bebr fired twice, one of the bullets striking the car. In the chase that followed, the car disappeared in the darkness.

GIRL STRUCK, NEGRO SOUGHT

Police today were seeking a Negro who attacked Miss Tillie Green, 18, of 1525 Bedford avenue, near her home last night.

Miss Green was walking with Miss Lillian Schnerov, 20, of 1523 Bedford avenue, when the Negro seized her and knocked her down, police said. He became frightened and fled when the victim's companion screamed.

The girl suffered slight lacerations on the face and shock.

DETROIT TIMES DEDICATES NEW HOME

Mr. Hearst, Owner, and Many Other Notables Present at Opening of Modern Plant

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 7.—The Detroit Times was [illegible] being printed in its new $2,000,000 plant.

President Hoover, at the White House in Washington, touched a button which started the new presses and opened the [illegible] yesterday.

Present at the dedication were William Randolph Hearst, owner of the Times and many other newspapers; Col. Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers; Arthur Brisbane, noted editor; B. C. Forbes, well-known financial writer, and Roy Block, metropolitan newspaper publisher.

Among the other guests at a luncheon presided over by Robert M. Andrews, publisher of the Times, were Henry Ford, Gen. Fred W. Green, Mayor John C. Lodge, former United States Senator William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, and Charles S. Mott, vice president of General Motors.

The new Times Building, six stories high, in downtown Detroit, is one of the most modern newspaper plants in America.

MR. HEARST SPEAKS

Mr. Hearst, in his dedicatory address, said:

"The fact that the Detroit Times has a new building is not in itself of great importance.

"A building after all, is merely a shelter—a workshop—and has not much to do with the life and soul of a newspaper.

"I have seen some mighty good newspapers issued from poor buildings, and some mighty poor newspapers issued from good buildings.

"The important thing in connection with this dedication is that so many citizens of note and influence in this community, and throughout the nation, have made this an opportunity to pay the Detroit Times and its management the compliment of their presence.

"That means, I take it, that the Times has to a degree fulfilled its mission and accomplished the purpose for which it was established.

"It means, I hope that the paper has served and represented the people of this city and state faithfully and effectively.

"That is a matter for congratulation, and the congratulations are to be extended particularly to Mr. Andrews and his able staff."

BRISBANE'S ADDRESS

Mr. Brisbane said:

"I will have been associated with Mr. Hearst for 32 years on the twelfth of this month. I am not here to praise him, as somebody said long ago, but I am here to tell you that he has intense common sense, besides being, like the rest of you, a very good American.

"Mr. Hearst is a man who has done what was very difficult to do; he has succeeded in spite of wealth. Almost anybody can succeed in spite of poverty, because you have got to succeed in spite of poverty or you cannot come here, or cannot eat ice cream.

"Mr. Hearst started with ice cream. His father was a very rich man. He didn't start as Henry Ford did, or as I did, or as Rockefeller did, with nothing, but he started with everything. In spite of that he has worked harder for more than 40 years, ever since he left Harvard, than any man in this room, probably, with few exceptions, and he has not changed and probably will not.

"I want to tell you business men that the most important thing in the world is to have something worth while and the next important thing is to let people know that you have it.

PRAISES DETROIT

"Now you have got something worth while in Detroit; you have got an extraordinary city; you have got an extraordinary growth; you have a marvelous energy; you have a multiplicity of necessities, but you have got in addition to that, in Mr. Hearst and his organization of newspapers, reaching from Atlanta up to Boston, to New York, Chicago and Seattle, and down to Texas and Los Angeles and San Francisco—you have got a man who can tell what you have got here, and who does it.

"Mr. Ford said to me one day: 'I really think that if I advertised in the Hearst papers only, that would be all the advertising I needed.'

"That, of course, is very good except that you ought to advertise in all the newspapers, only that you ought to give the Hearst papers about double the copy you give to the others. And, what ever you do if you have anything really important, don't fail to advertise it in colors in our Sunday American Weekly.

"You know, it is very true that if your business isn't worth advertising, you ought to advertise it for sale; there is always something you can do with it."

HELLO, DOLL LADY!

Children gather around and meet the Dolly Lady. She is now located in her new downtown headquarters with some of the most wonderful dolls in the world. She wants you to come to her party and see the life-size dolls which actually sing, pray and recite.

GIRLS GO TO SEE DOLL LADY

went right on singing without a tremor. Of course because my dolls are unbreakable. Aren't you glad, kiddies?

The greatest thing in the world, they say, is mother love. There is scarcely a mother in the world who wouldn't sacrifice her life if need be to protect her babies. And to sell her babies is the last thing any real mother would do.

I wouldn't sell one of my walking, talking, singing and praying babies, either, though I have scores of them. But I give them gladly to those who will promise to love and cherish them and give them the same care I would.

I've called in many of the good little girls of Pittsburgh and I've given them a fairy wand, together with a secret password that will carry them within the palace where my wonderful dollies come from. Then I'll be happy and never mourn my lost darlings, knowing that they are happy, too, and their little fairy godmothers are happier still.

A big dollie playmate to walk with, talk with, to sing and play with, and even to pray beside your little bed when the day is done—that's the kind of doll you can have for so little effort.

Watch for what the Doll Lady has to say to you tomorrow. Don't forget to come to see me and my doll family, children.

Boy, Tongue Fast To Frosty Rail, Rescued

BOONEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 7 (AP.)—Hoyt Houston, 10-year-old schoolboy, had heard if one put his tongue to frosted steel it would stick. He was willing to try it.

On his way to school, he touched his tongue to a steel rail in the railroad yards. The idea worked.

He heard an engine coming, but managed to attract railroad employes before the engine got to him.

The problem then was to get his tongue loose. It was solved by switching an engine to a track opposite Hoyt, turning steam onto the rail and warming it sufficiently to release the boy's tongue.

COME TO CHURCH

The Church Is the Meeting Place of God and His People

SERMONETTE

"How God Makes Men"

By REV. DR. H. H. FORSYTH, Sixth Presbyterian Church

"If thou hast run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, how canst thou contend with horses? and though in a land of peace thou art secure, how wilt thou do in the pride of Jordan?" Jere. 12:5.

The prophet Jeremiah was greatly shaken by the difficulties that confronted him at the beginning of his ministry. He could not see why men who had rebelled against God should prosper. So, while protesting his belief in the divine righteousness, he turned to God to ask an explanation of this difficulty. The answer that seemed to come to him was this: "If thou hast run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, how canst thou contend with horses? and though in a land of peace thou art secure, how wilt thou do in the pride of Jordan?"

REV. DR. H. H. FORSYTH

What do such words mean? Well, Jeremiah, was a timid, shrinking, sensitive soul. The times in which he lived were troubled. To do his work in such conditions he must of all things be strong. Either the latent powers of his soul must be called forth, or else his work would collapse. And this was what God sought to produce in the text, for here is no word of pity or sympathy, or explanation of his difficulty. No, here is merely the suggestion that his present difficulties were trifling in comparison with those that were yet to fall upon him.

Now the effect of such a prospect would be to strengthen the man. He would have to brace himself to carry on. All the manhood that was in him must be called forth if he were not to fail.

So God has always dealt with men. When He would make one worthy of bearing a great part in His service, He has thrust him into the furnace of trial and affliction that there his soul might be tempered and his strength developed. Thus it was with Moses, Hosea and Ezekiel.

And may it not be thus that He is dealing with us? When we take stock of ourselves we cannot but be impressed with our weakness. We shrink from trials and hard-ships. We turn away from sacrifices and denials. We flee from toils and labors. And what God is striving to do for us is what He strove to do for Jeremiah. For when we cry out to Him, the heavens seem cold to our lament, and the only answer we get is that greater trials are yet to come upon us.

So the conclusion to which we come is that we are here to be trained and that training is through the imposition of responsibility and performance of duty.

"We are not here to dream, to drift:
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the battle: face it; 'tis God's gift."

NEXT WEEK'S SERMONETTE—"BELIEVE IN GOD," by Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth Street.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Boxes Taken By Society For Dance

THE soft touch of the gentle winds this morning makes one think that spring showers, instead of December snows, are in store for us. Anyway I do know that balls and not out-door sports are going to be the events of the coming week, as they have of the past month or so.

And the ball of balls is the event named after Cinderella to be held Monday evening in the University Club for the benefit of St. Margaret's Hospital's social service department.

A few days ago I announced that debutantes would appear in a "Blues Revue." And now word comes from Marjorie Kimball, chairman of entertainment, that Wilson S. McClintock will assume the role of master of ceremonies.

Among those who've asked for boxes for the dance are Mrs. F. A. Leovy, Mrs. F. J. LeMoyne, Mrs. J. F. Lockhart, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., Mrs. George Greer Coolidge, Mrs. Grant Curry, Mrs. Edmund Mudge, Mrs. Emil Winter, Mrs. Henry B. Rust, Mrs. Robert Milligan, Mrs. Chauncey O'Neil, Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, Mrs. Carroll Fitzhugh, Mrs. Edward F. Thompson, Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. William Larimer Mellon, Mrs. G. Cook Kimball, Mrs. George P. Rhodes, Mrs. Warren I. Bickford, Mrs. Thomas A. McGinley, Mrs. Charles Layng Doyle, Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, Mrs. Charles Soemaker, Mrs. Franklin Cadwallader Irish.

LAST evening the John G. Frazers gave a dinner in honor of their niece, Frances Preble Reed, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The dinner preceded the dance which Mrs. Douglas Stewart gave in the same club for her debutante daughter, Anne Douglas Stewart.

There were 150 guests seated at small tables, which were arranged in the ballroom. Centering the little tables were shallow silver bowls filled with spring flowers and lighted by tapers in the same pastel spring shades fitted in candelabra.

Frances wore a vivid gown of flame colored chiffon velvet, and Mrs. Frazer, who received with her, wore brocaded black chiffon with low decolletage, and her mother, Mrs. James Hay Reed, Jr., wore black lace.

The club itself was made lovely for Anne's dance with clusters of pink begonias, pussy willows and heather. A buffet supper, served in the dining room, followed the dancing.

Mrs. Stewart wore a deep purple crepe gown, and received with the bud, who wore a delightful gown of silver lame and white tulle, in princess mode. Another daughter, Mrs. George Armstrong Kelly III, wore green lame with gold.

The floor committee included Geoffrey Montgomery, Bennett Edson, George Armstrong Kelly III, John McKelvy, Charles Bell, John Ricketson III, Louis D. Trainer, Edward P. Mellon II, James Kay Ebbert, George Pearson Rhodes, Jr., Wilfrid Murtland, Malcolm McGiffin, Louis Nohl, of New York, and John Hess.

MORE and more students come home every day for the glad Christmas season, and among those who will arrive soon is Jane Arnold Sloan, debutante daughter of the Andrew E. Sloans, of Morewood place, who is completing her studies this year in the Westover School, Middlebury, Conn. She will arrive home on the seventeenth of this month.

There are already parties being planned to honor Jane, and the first I have heard about is a buffet luncheon which Jean and Irene McKinney will give in their Woodland road residence on December 20. Then the following day, Mrs. Sloan will formally present her daughter at a luncheon in the University Club. Christmas night Miss Martha Jamison will give a party for Jane at the Princeton Triangle Club's annual production.

THE Reginald Reinhart Churches, whose wedding was an event of last month, have just returned from their southern honeymoon and are living in Shady avenue, did you know?

THESE days one is always talking about the Cinderella ball. For the last time today I want to mention the ball again. On Monday, the Thomas H. Eddys, of Squirrel Hill avenue, will give a small dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and their guests will later go to the dance.

A NEW event has been planned in honor of Peggy Milligan, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan. On Saturday, December 21, Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, of the North Side and Sewickley Heights, will give a luncheon and dance for her in the Allegheny Country Club.

AND on New Year's Day there'll be a social gathering of interest when Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., give their annual tea in their Fifth avenue home from 4 to 7 o'clock.

And I almost forget to mention a new party planned for the school set. On Christmas night the junior James Peter Williamses, of South Linden avenue, and the Hugh Rodmans, of Oakmont, will give a dance in the University club at which their children, Mary Rodman, Hugh Rodman, Jr., and James Peter Williams III will share honors.

THE George A. Benneys, of Sewickley, have gone South to open their cottage at Sea Island Beach, Ga. They will remain all through the winter season.

IN the Little Church Around the Corner, New York, the wedding of Miss Janet Morris, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Lee Morris, of Los Angeles, and John Nelson Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Louis Franklin, of Bartlett street, is taking place today.

The bride is wearing a gown of Chanel red velvet with real lace collars and cuffs, and a turban to match the gown, with orchids for her flowers. Her only attendant, Miss Dorothy Ryland, of Beacon street, is wearing gold metal cloth with a hat to match and carrying orchids. Charles G. Cole, of Pittsburgh, is his brother's best man.

The mother of the bride is wearing blue crepe with a hat to match, and the mother of the bridegroom, mulberry velvet. Both have corsages of orchids. The bridegroom's father is the only other person present at the ceremony.

Following a European wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin will be at home in Pittsburgh after February 15.

Tuesday Musical Club To Have Interesting Holiday Program

THE annual holiday program of the Tuesday Musical Club is an especially interesting one. Twelve waits in costume will give the first part of the program, those taking part being Mrs. A. B. Siviter, president of the club; Mrs. Will Earhart, Mrs. Romaine Smith Russell, Mrs. Lucille M. Werner, Mrs. E. W. Flaccus, Mrs. Fern Goltre Fillion, Mrs. Herbert S. Kreiling, Mrs. Carl F. Hespenheide, Mrs. Gertrude S. Thomas, Mrs. Velma Fitzgerald, Miss Mildred Eiler and Mrs. Jessie Yuille Yon.

Richard Bodycombe, 7-year-old son of Mrs. Henrietta Bodycombe, and the Woman's Glee Club of the University of Pittsburgh, directed by Mrs. James H. Greene, will sing carols. A string quartet composed of Ruth Thoburn Knox, Elizabeth Burt Mellor, Nina Weldin and Jean Wessner will present a group of numbers.

Mrs. Walter E. Close has arranged the program especially for the children, each one of whom has been asked to bring a gift for some poor child. There is a surprise feature on the program which is being kept a dark secret. There will be a hearing of candidates for solo active membership, Tuesday at 1:30 in Memorial Hall.

ONE finds the Congress of Clubs at St. Nicholas fair growing in interest and variety with the years. The 1929 edition opened Saturday with attractive booths set up in the auditorium, cards for tables on the third floor and last night a fashion show with Congress members as models. The fair continues this afternoon and tonight. All the booths are festooned with crepe paper in the holiday colors and hung with balloons in the same red and green.

One of the most artistic displays is that of fruits and preserves in charge of the Outlook Alliance and running a close second are the doll and novelty booths, the former in charge of Mrs. J. J. Callahan and her committee, and the latter of Mrs. Richard C. Arthur and her aids. Mrs. S. S. Stingel, president of the Woman's Club, and some of her members are managing the white elephant booth. Mrs. Jeanne F. Millward is chairman of the Oriental booth, where some lovely and unusual Japanese and Chinese articles are displayed; the Congress literary department is conducting a sale of Pittsburgh-authored books, among them the publications of the department, chairman, Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips; Mrs. L. L. Hartley has the candy, Mrs. C. M. Law, the common-sense table; Mrs. J. W. Slattery and Mrs. Harry Hickox, the bake sale; Mrs. Emma M. Cosby, magazines; Mrs. Joseph B. Drake, the book exchange, and of especial interest is the china and pottery novelty display which Miss Jean Elvira Karr is showing, each article of which she has made herself. Mrs. S. J. Corbett is general chairman of the fair.

MRS. R. K. MALLARD, Miss Dessa James and Mrs. Charles Thomas are hostesses for Thursday's meeting of the Ingomar Woman's Club to be held in the Franklin Church. "Christmas in Other Lands" is the theme for the afternoon, carrying out which Mrs. L. J. Goeller, Mrs. Hans Tuche and Miss Ruth Minuch, in costume, will tell of the day's observance in Scandinavia, Germany and Czecoslovakia. Christmas carols will be sung by the club chorus, accompanied by Mrs. Harold Pomeroy, and Mrs. William A. Crawford will present a Christmas reading.

FROCKS OF TULLE VERY LATEST FOR EVENING WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Tulle is now front page stuff in the news as it pertains to fashions for evening wear. During the past week or so, there have been many exquisite evening frocks of tulle shown by the various designers and worn by some of the smartest women here. On the stage, too, many of the leading artistes are wearing novel, and in some cases, somewhat extreme dresses of tulle. Some of these dresses are combined with satin, others with heavy lace. These gowns are invariably in black, simply but effectively cut. Some of the leading houses are just showing gowns of tulle magnificiently embroidered in gold and other striking colors. Some net is also seen, and this fabric too, is in many models, richly embroidered.

THERE seems to be no termination to the glamorous procession of evening gowns that issue from the ateliers in such diversified abundance, each one designed to lend its wearer queenly grace and subtle sophistication, at least so far as appearance is concerned. Brilliance, too, is added by the sparkling gems and glittering jewelry that sheds its effulgence over the evening scene. A colorful and blithely exciting season is in progress thanks to the charm of the alluring fashions of this year of grace.

DON'T you find an enticing and refreshing charm about Molyneux's very newest embroidered tulle evening gown? The bodice and the skirt proper are of black tulle embroidered in a striking design of red and gold. The bodice is noticeable for its moderately low waistline, as Captain Molyneux still refuses to lift the waistline on his creations. Color is added to the black note of the frock by the two exceedingly long side flounces which are of red tulle embroidered in black and gold. The lower part of the skirt is very crisp and bouffant.

REPRODUCED herewith is a sketch of a new afternoon coat by Paquin. It is of heavy black satin, richly combined with martein sable which makes a luxurious puffed collar, double bands placed diagonally on the sleeves and a border and band on the lower part of the coat.

WILKINS READY TO MOVE SOUTH

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

Commander of the Wilkins Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

DECEPTION ISLAND, SOUTH SHETLANDS, Dec. 7.—Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Radio Station.—We are delighted to hear of Byrd's successes.

Our preliminary preparations at Deception Island are now almost complete. The ice is now far near when we expect good weather, so we may soon seek a more southerly base.

The last few days we have been carefully checking everything and a test flight showed everything practically in order.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate one machine fitted with a type of landing gear on the Scoresby. In a few days we will start loading supplies and equipment on the vessel.

Then, weather permitting, Cramer, Cheeseman, Porter and the writer will set sail with one machine, pontoons, skis, large Goodyear wheels, which have proved invaluable and the Austin Seven automobile, which was also a great help together with the Eskimo for transporting supplies.

We will probably go outside the Antarctic archipelago and try to reach as far south as possible and locate a good ice field for a take-off over the Ross Sea, but our actual plans will depend on the conditions discovered.

If we reach a position very far south, reducing the total distance to 2,000 miles we might attempt a non-stop flight, or possibly we might return with the Scoresby for the second plane before setting out.

Weather and ice conditions here so far make it impossible to prearrange a definite schedule. We have been so desperately busy we have had little time to contemplate our adventures. Now everything is about ready and every one is anxious to set off for more.

THEATER HOST TO CHILDREN

This is East Liberty children's theater party day.

Many hundred children are expected to appear at the Liberty Theater today to see and hear "The Bride's Relations," a comedy which the theater is presenting to all boys and girls taking part in the East Liberty "Earn Your Teacher a Christmas Gift" campaign.

No tickets will be asked at the door. The show, which was to open at 11 o'clock this morning, was open to all boys and girls interested.

The merchants of East Liberty are trying to find the community's most popular teachers. Authorized East Liberty merchants are giving their customers one ballot with each 10-cent purchase.

These votes may be cast for any teacher in any grade whom the customer desires to have awarded a gift. Fifteen teachers in different grades of the city's private, parochial and public schools will be awarded Philco DeLuxe radio sets. Christmas gifts from their pupils.

The campaign will last until Christmas Eve and gifts will be distributed in an East Liberty theater the day after Christmas.

BERKMAN WILL AIDS CHARITY

A number of charities are given bequests under the will of Simon Berkman, of the Fairfax Apartments, Fifth avenue, filed for probate in the office of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. The estate is estimated in value at more than $150,000.

The Jewish Home for the Aged, of which Mr. Berkman was a director and treasurer, was given $1,500. He left $1,000 each to the Montefiore Hospital and the Jewish Home for Babies, and $500 each to the Hebrew Institute, the B'Nai Brith Orphanage and Home of Erie, the J. M. Gusky Orphanage, the House of Shelter, Pittsburgh, the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati and the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

After several bequests to relatives, the residue is placed in trust for the widow, Mrs. Nettie A. Berkman, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Broido. Mr. Berkman's son-in-law, Joseph Broido, and his attorney, Joseph S. Pokrobaum, are named executors and trustees under the will. Mr. Berkman was a partner in the firm of Berkman Brothers, wholesale ladies' wear business, of Penn avenue.

PITTSBURGHERS ON VOYAGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Sailing in the company of a host of fellow passengers, Col. James Dean Tilford and family, of Pittsburgh, departed for Europe early this morning in the Ile de France. More than 1,150 passengers were aboard the French line flagship going for the Christmas holidays on the Continent.

Edward Stahl also of Pittsburgh, was another passenger on the Ile de France.

Soldier on Visit To Home Breaks Neck in Fall

Home on a furlough, Felix Jaranowski, 31, a member of Company H, Twenty-eighth Infantry, fell in South Hillvale avenue last night and suffered a broken neck. Jaranowski was visiting his brother, Vincent Jaranowski, of 438 South Pacific avenue. He was taken to the West Penn Hospital, where his condition was regarded as critical.

CHILD GIVEN TO MOTHER

The custody of Leafa Pearl Roney, Jr., 7 years old, was given to her mother, Leafa Pearl Roney, under an order of Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court, denying the plea of John H. Roney, of Verona, by writ of habeas corpus, for custody of the child.

Mrs. Roney left her husband November 25 last, and took her daughter and three sons to an apartment in Rosedale, Penn Township. In asking for custody of the girl, Roney alleged he had personally cared for the child most of her life because of the neglect of her mother. Mrs. Roney denied this allegation, saying he was at work during the day and that she cared for the child.

She said she prepared meals for the family but Roney refused to eat with them and prepared his own meals, attempting to induce his daughter to eat with him through threats of suicide and other threats. Mrs. Roney said Roney's ill treatment forced her to leave him and that she has a suitable place for her children.

FOX CALLS AID IN FILM WORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. (INS.)—William Fox, who for 25 years maintained individual control over his motion picture interests, which grew from a single theater to a vast chain of exhibition and production, today had voluntarily relinquished his personal control to a committee of three trustees, of which he is a member.

The appointment of the board throws the power which he has personally wielded so long in the entertainment field into the hands of the Western Electric Company and Wall Street bankers. The board of trustees, which Fox selected himself, consists of John Otters, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., the subsidiary of Western Electric Company from which the Fox Film Corporation and the Fox Movietone Corporation holds a license to manufacture talking pictures, and which in turn is subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; H. L. Stuart, of Halsey, Stuart & Co., a banking house, and Fox himself.

By the arrangements of the trusteeship, which is for five years each of the members has one vote in the control of Fox's interests in his companies. It is understood that none of the trustees represents any investment of cash to meet the present obligations totalling approximately $91,000,000, but that their prestige in the financial world is expected to make possible permanent financing for the obligations.

These obligations, the statement explained, were incurred during the past year when the Fox Theaters Corporation had purchased substantial holdings in stock in Loew's Inc.

Before announcing the formation of the trusteeship, Fox announced the board of directors of Fox Films had declared its regular quarterly dividend payable to stockholders of record as of December 31.

JOHN ILDER, executive director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, gave a striking talk before the College Club yesterday on the needs and tremendous possibilities of the housing situation in Pittsburgh. Illustrating his talk with slides, Mr. Ilder showed pictures of the older and more crowded parts of the city, and the unsanitary condition of many of the homes. He pointed out that Pittsburgh has the fundamental of good housing, plenty of open space, but that its need is better sanitation. He advocated the demolishing of all condemned houses, and the reconditioning and beautifying of all the run down and unsightly dwellings. Pittsburgh, he believes, with its hills and valleys has the possibility of becoming one of the loveliest and most picturesque of cities.

RETAIL TRADE GAINS FOR WEEK

Cold Weather and Holiday Buying Combine to Aid Sales of Local Stores

There has been considerable improvement in retail trade this week as compared with last week, due not only to colder weather but also to holiday buying, which is increasing materially in volume, according to R. G. Dun & Co.

There has been a very fair movement of winter wearing apparel at retail, although jobbers report business rather quiet. Buying in general is largely for filling in purposes, with merchandise stock comparatively low. Prices continue fair.

BUILDING QUIET

The weather is interfering with outside construction and the demand for lumber and building materials in general continue rather slow. There is no great activity in hardware lines, although seasonal and holiday lines appear to be moving quite well. The demand for jewelry is not up to normal, and appears to be largely for the cheaper grades. Groceries and provisions are in fair demand, and appears to be largely for the cheaper grades. Groceries and provisions are in fair demand, with considerable improvement shown in the sale of confectionery and tobacco for the holiday trade.

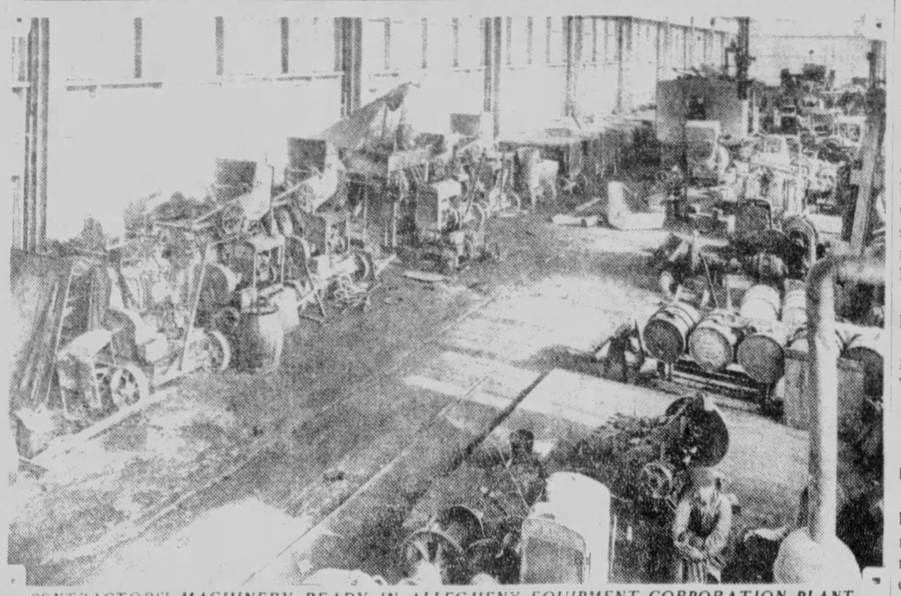
Industrial operations have shown some further recession, steel plants apparently averaging about 67 per cent of capacity. Not much change is anticipated before the first of the year. Demand for plate glass has fallen off somewhat, while window glass continues to move slowly for this season of the year. Electrical equipment manufacturers are operating [illegible] steadily, but there has been some falling off in the demand for radio equipment.

OIL GAINS

Manufacturers of radiators and heating equipment report fairly good demand while sanitary products are moving in lesser volume than a year ago. There has been a slight increase in the production of crude oil, although efforts are being put forth to hold the rate down.

The production of bituminous coal shows but little change, and with the exception of domestic sizes for which there is considerable demand, there is no great activity. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines: steam, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents; and gas slack, $1 to $1.10. Although a slight improvement has been noted in some quarters, collections still average slow.

ADDITION PLANNED FOR THIS PLANT



CONTRACTORS' MACHINERY READY IN ALLEGHENY EQUIPMENT CORPORATION PLANT

EQUIPMENT CO. EXPANDS

The Allegheny Equipment Corporation is building an addition to its shop at Aspinwall, which will give it facilities which are unequaled by those of any equipment company in this district. All equipment is loaded and unloaded either by an overhead crane or by a locomotive crane. This permits the company to take care of truck, boat or rail shipments with a minimum of time and expense.

The policy of the Allegheny Equipment Corporation to have equipment inspected and repaired when returned from each job assures the construction industry of absolutely reliable equipment for its work. Besides this, the corporation maintains a service department to repair equipment on jobs in the event of difficulty. This service is available also on any new equipment sold.

The rapid growth of this company is evidence of the confidence placed in it by an ever increasing number of contractors who appreciate trustworthy equipment, real service and intelligent consideration of the contractors' requirements.

Help Given Home Planners at Exhibit

If interested in building or remodeling a visit to the Architects' and Builders' Exhibit, 514 Seventh avenue, will prove a decided benefit. The exhibit does not sell or quote prices, so there is no sales pressure, and visitors, regardless of the time spent looking over displays of materials and appliances, do not feel under any obligation.

Under one roof are displays of many new materials and appliances the average person has not seen and visitors express their appreciation of this public convenience.

Among the new things on display are an automatic stoker to feed coal into any furnace for domestic use; a model steel frame house showing all details of construction; gas, coal and coke furnaces and boilers; water heaters; concealed and other types of radiators; radiator enclosures; gas and electric heating and cooking stoves; exterior and interior stucco; plastic paints; all kinds of floor coverings, and hardwood floors; incinerators, cabinet radiators, built-in features, ornamental iron, electric refrigerators and oil burners; all kinds of material from foundation to roof, including brick, plumbing, hardware, tile, zinc and clay tile, the new model metal sink and terrazzo.

Exhibits have been opened throughout the United States during the past 18 years. Pittsburgh was a little slow in adopting the idea, which has spread from New York to Los Angeles, but while Pittsburgh is conservative it has the reputation for progress and stability.

A visit to the exhibit will save the trouble and delay of chasing around dozens of places to see a few materials and appliances.

Fireproofing Sales Ahead of Year Ago

S. F. Heckert, president of the National Fire Proofing Company, reports that business booked for 1929 is in excess of the corresponding period of 1929. Sufficient orders are on hand to keep [illegible] manufacturing plants busy for [illegible] and vitrified products in operation for over six months. In addition to its present large list of products, the company contemplates the marketing of four additional specialties within the coming year.

Steady Increase in Tobacco Sales Shown

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Tobacco sales are continuing the steady increase which has characterized the industry for more than a year and have shown no sign of a recession as a result of the recent stock market liquidation, the business conference was told by Charles Dushkind, of New York, counsel for the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States in reporting upon recent surveys undertaken to determine the situation of the industry.

Chicago Tool Plans Full Operations

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company expects to resume full operations in all departments after January 1, next, according to O. C. Estergreen, manager of the Franklin, Pa., plants.

Rolling Mill Trade Improved in West

An improved tone is evident in the rolling mill trade in the Middle West this week. There has been a moderate improvement in demands for sheets, strips and tin plate and the automobile industry is coming into the market for primary steels in a somewhat more active way.

Recovery in automobile buying of steels is still slow and will not materially benefit schedules until the middle of next quarter, it is expected.

The tin plate business is better by reason of buying for 1930 requirements by some of the leading can makers. The decline in flat steels has spread to steel pipe during the past two weeks in a more pronounced way than heretofore but tube mills are operating on a relatively larger scale than other finishing mills.

Volume of Business in Pittsburgh Smaller

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE volume of industrial activity in the Pittsburgh district has continued to decline. This trend will probably be in evidence until the new year when industrial consumers will resume a more normal rate of buying.

While business, except for lines enjoying a holiday increase, has undeniably gone into a considerable slump there is less of the feeling of consternation which characterized the attitude of many business men immediately after the break in the stock market. Executives of most important corporations now realize that the business depression is not likely to go to serious lengths. The fact that there are no large inventories and that there has been no inflation in commodity prices may be expected to keep business from dropping to a very low level.

The holiday business of most of the stores has been in good volume except for a few lines. Jewelry has been one item which has been rather hard hit by the current unsettlement.

Pig Iron Steady

THE railroads serving this district expect a rather sharp drop in their traffic as a result of the rapid decrease in the number of blast furnaces in operation. For the entire country a net loss of 26 was shown last week in the total of active furnaces. The production of pig iron is an important item to the carriers. They derive a large amount of traffic from hauling materials as well as the finished product.

One particularly important factor to business conditions here has been the stability of the pig iron market in the face of the sudden drop in consumers' requirements. Under conditions of past years such a situation would have caused a severe break in iron quotations.

The reduction in the number of competitors in the business has made it possible to keep prices so stabilized that there has been no fluctuation for the past seven months. Quotations have not been tested for the first quarter of next year but it is generally expected that the pig iron producers will be able to hold the market at the desired level.

Effect on Steel

A FIRM market for pig iron has greatly helped the steel industry. A drop in pig iron is almost always followed by lower levels for steel. The iron and steel industry has gone through the recent slump in much better shape than has usually been the case in the past. Of course, it must be remembered that steel prices dropped $1 a ton when bookings were taken for the fourth quarter.

The improved competitive conditions in pig iron may be attributed to the elimination of the large number of independent merchant pig iron producers who used to operate only one furnace each. Some of these have gone out of business and some have entered into consolidations. There are now only four makers of merchant pig iron in this district. Two of these are steel companies which are far from anxious to engage in price shading.

Market Liquidation Ended

THE stock market appears to have settled down to a more placid condition so that it is not likely to affect general business either for good or bad for some time. The rapid liquidation of brokers' loans also appears to have practically run its course. With the drop of $58,000,000 reported last week by New York banks of the Federal Reserve System the total was brought down to $3,392,000,000. This was less than half the peak figure of $6,804,000,000 on October 2.

Sufficient time has not elapsed for the change in money conditions to show its effect on business but this should be noticeable by next spring. Public improvements, speculative building, export trade and the industries feeding these types of activity will be the first to feel the stimulus of cheap money. Even with this favorable factor, however, the first quarter of 1930 is not likely to be as good as the corresponding period of the present year.

Commission Probes Extra Fare Rates

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Hearings will be held February 17 at Chicago on the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into extra fare rates charged by railroads on fast trains operating between points in the New England Trunk Line and central freight territory and contiguous points.

The commission has sent a list of questions to carriers seeking information as to the basis upon which extra fares are charged, revenue derived and other questions. Among carriers to appear at the hearing are the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Michigan Central and Erie Railroads.

November Postal Rates Increase

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Postal receipts at 50 selected cities throughout the country for November increased $1,010,131, or 3.19 per cent over those for November, 1928, Postmaster General Brown reported. Receipts for November, 1929, were $32,722,000, against $31,712,669 for November, 1928.

Business Off Last Week, Says Report

Commercial transactions during the week ended November 30, as reflected by check payments, showed a decline from the preceding week, as well as from the same week of last year, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Operations in steel plants were on a lower level than in either the preceding week or the same week of last year. Petroleum production, covering the latest available week, showed slight expansion as compared with the preceding week, and was larger than a year ago. The production of bituminous coal was greater than in the previous week and showed practically no change from last year.

The general index of wholesale prices showed a fractional gain over the previous week, but was more than 5 per cent below the level of last year. Iron and steel prices showed no change from the previous week, but were lower than a year ago. Bank loans and discounts showed a recession from the previous week, but were higher than last year. Interest rates on both time and call funds were lower than in either prior period. Business failures were less numerous than in either the previous week or the same week of 1928.

Use of Automatic Control Increased

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Travelers are now protected by automatic train control or train stop devices on 11,453 miles of American railroads, the Interstate Commerce Commission told Congress in its report.

The trackage so protected is 20,239 miles, and the number of locomotives 8,904. More than 8,000 miles of road were equipped under commission orders, and more than 3,000 miles voluntarily.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

IMPROVED TONE NOTED IN STEEL

Actual Demand and Output Is Practically Unchanged From Last Week's Level

By B. E. V. LUTY

Throughout the steel trade there is reported "a better feeling" while it is neccssarily admitted that there is no increase in consumption, buying or production. When investigated and analyzed the reference to "better feeling" appears to mean that men are less disturbed by the stock market collapse than they were immediately after that unprecedented occurrence.

The change of view is attributable to three factors: The first is due to observance of how sound financial conditions have since proved to be. Business failures as reported by the Department of Commerce for the five weeks October 28 to November 30 were 2½ per cent less than in the same period of last year. Second is the psychological influence of getting used to a new condition which on its appearance was shocking if not terrifying. Third is the recognition that general trade, including the steel trade, was on the down grade for about four months before the stock market collapse.

TRADE RECESSION

By far the best single measure of the trade recession is the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, manufacturing and mining. It shows two important things clearly: First, that after a slow, healthy and consistent increase for several years through June, 1928, there was a big bulge, which would arouse suspicion. Second, that there was a steady and marked recession after last June, the bulge having culminated in that month.

For the actual figures, the board's index is based on 1923-4-5 as 100. The index rose about two points a year to 109 for June, 1928. Then it rose steadily and sharply to 126 for June, 1929, 17 points instead of two points. Then July was 124, August 123, September 121 and October, just reported upon, 117, making nine points loss in four months, before the stock market collapse could be a factor. Rating the 12 months' bulge as 15 points it may be held that there is still something to come off, for a return to the long range trend line, quite irrespective of what the stock market has done.

STEEL OUTPUT

Steel production pursued much the same course, only more markedly. Production last June was 35 per cent over the preceding June, and from June to October there was a 14 per cent decrease. The Board's index is adjusted for seasonal variation and if seasonal allowance were made for steel the decrease from June to October would be rated higher, for in the last four years there has been an average of 10 per cent increase in this period.

Steel ingot production is but little above 65 per cent and with the usual holiday lull is hardly likely to average above that figure for the month. Invariably since 1921 there has been a sharp upturn for three or four months after December, averaging about 25 per cent, and an upturn is certainly to be expected this time, though perhaps a little slower in getting under way, and somewhat less extensive, than usual.

Apart from the decrease in the sum total of activity, there has been a great change in the distribution of activity among lines consuming steel. Last spring, when steel appeared scarce, it was remarked that everybody seemed to be busy. There was fairly heavy demand in some lines which would be expected to be backward. Now rails, freight cars, fabricated structural steel and agricultural implements are very active, while the automobile trade is extremely dull and the remaining lines taken as a whole, since they cannot be measured individually, are distinctly slack.

RAIL BUYING

Southern Pacific has ordered 120,000 tons of rails and Southern Railway 44,200 tons, bringing the count of rail orders identified as to purchaser up to 1,370,000 tons, while some unnamed roads have also bought. On account of early buying the tonnage now on the books is nearly one-half greater than that at this date last year. Presumably the early buying was by request of producers, who a year ago were not so interested. Comparing purchases by identical roads, tonnages taken have run more than 15 per cent over a year ago but only a trifle over two years ago.

Beginning last May freight car production has been about 10,000 cars a month, against averages of 4,000 in 1928 and 5,000 in 1927, when production was much lighter than in many preceding years. At the end of September freight car shop order books were rather lean, but since then more than 32,000 cars have been bought and much additional buying is in prospect.

STRUCTURALE GAIN

In the first 10 months of this year fabricated structural steel bookings exceeded the same months of last year by 18 per cent, and shipments were about 10 per cent under bookings, whereby the order book increased correspondingly. Since November 1 lettings unofficially reported in the trade have run 40 per cent below the average for the preceding portion of the year, but this may be only temporary and in any event the order book is likely to be somewhat heavier at the end than at the beginning of the year.

November and December are seasonally light months in automobile production but this year there is considerably more than seasonal lightness. The bulge of earlier in the year has been lost and something in addition.

THEATER NOT TO BE SOLD

M'KEES ROCKS UNIT OF IMPERIAL THEATER CHAIN

WILL CONTINUE INDEPENDENT

In the gigantic struggle between the large motion picture chains for possession of the many prosperous independent circuits throughout the country, frequent rumors are heard that bids have been tendered and accepted by leading independent theater chain operators in Western Pennsylvania.

D. J. Selznick, president and operating head of the Imperial Chain Theaters Corporation, with houses in McKees Rocks, Oil City, and other nearby towns, denies absolutely that he has accepted any offers for his theaters.

"My company," states Mr. Selznick, "entered upon its career with its independence clearly established. And we have every intention of remaining independent.

"There is a definite place today, as always, for the individual owner, whether he operates a theater, grocery, cigar store or any other business. And especially is this true of the film business.

"Primarily, a theater is as important in a city's civic background as its schools, churches, and municipal buildings. It should share equally in a city's civic consciousness and responsibility. And whether it does or not depends, of course, upon the theater owner.

"The independent theater has the advantage over its chain competitor, in the matter of local ownership and personnel. The Imperial Chain is proud to claim partnership with the leading citizens in the cities we operate.

SOCIAL PERSONNEL

"Our entire operating personnel in every city is local. So important is this, that such powerful chain theater corporations as Publix, constantly advises its managers to become as closely identified as possible with every local activity.

"The well established, efficiently managed mercantile business need fear nothing from the chain stores," continued Mr. Selznick. "We see evidences of this every day. Intelligently run independent cigar stores are returning fine dividends against the keen competition of the chain tobacco stores. Up-to-date individual groceries are holding their own, and more.

"The independent, who is ever alert to changing methods of modern business operation, is in better position to make these changes. His mistakes are rectified easily, without great financial loss. Such is not te case with the chain. Any change in operation methods involves tremendous sums; mistakes are dangerous to profits, and injurious to policy.

"Though the motion picture theater of today has disorganized the activities of the legitimate theater because of increased attendance at the movies, we shall always count on the regular attendance of the working class for profits.

Donahoe's Store First to Use Cold Light

The first electrical display in Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania, one of the very first in the entire United States—to embody the new cold white Claude Neon tube light—is attracting attention at Donahoe's Fifth avenue store.

This new type of electrified neon gas generates no heat whatever and is entirely free from glare in spite of its remarkable visibility. Its perfection, announced only a few weeks ago from the Paris laboratories of Georges Claude, distinguished French scientist and inventor, marks the realization of an age-old dream to find the secret of a cold white light, the dream to which scores of brilliant men through hundreds of years have devoted their lives.

Bringing this new cold white light to Pittsburgh practically the first moment it is available, speaks volumes for the progressive spirit of the Donahoe organization.

The Donahoe display measures about 11 by 7 feet and is visible for many blocks in every direction.

This latest addition to Pittsburgh's White Way was designed, manufactured and installed by the Alpha Claude Neon Corporation of 2900 Liberty avenue.

Iron Ore Shipments Ahead of Last Year

CLEVELAND, Dec. 7.—Final figures for the 1929 season for ore shipments from the upper lake ports show a total of 65,204,600 tons, against 53,980,874 for the 1928 season, or an increase of 20.79 per cent, according to the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association. Shipments in December, to close of the season, amounted to 9,112 tons, an increase of 100 per cent over last year.

WATER SHIPPED HERE

Although over 250,000 people from all parts of the earth visit Hot Springs, Ark., yearly seeking and finding health, there are millions of people who know little or nothing of the curative powers of these waters. There are millions of people who do not know that Hot Springs, Ark., is the nation's first national park. Four sections of land were set aside by an act of Congress in 1832 at a cost of $33,000,000 and dedicated to the people of the nation. There are 46 springs within the confines of Hot Springs National Park, which gush forth an unceasing flow of 900,000 gallons every day. These waters are radio-active to a marked degree. They draw their healing properties from the countless mineral strata and rocky fissures through which they flow upward from the earth's depths.

Not all of the waters are hot and not all of them are used for bathing purposes. There are in or near Hot Springs some of the world's most famous cold springs that have won international fame for their purity and their curative powers. By far the most famous is Mountain Valley Water, said to be as nearly 100 per cent pure in every respect as any water known to science. Although this water contains 16 minerals, it is crystal clear and sparkling. It is free from all vegetable matter and seepage and stays fresh indefinitely. For that reason it can be bottled and shipped throughout the country. It makes a most delightful table water.

The popularity of Mountain Valley Water for table use and as a preventive and curative agent has necessitated a national distributing organization, that today covers every leading city in the United States.

This water is shipped to Pittsburgh direct from Hot Springs in car load lots and then distributed to the people of Pittsburgh in case lots of 12 half gallons to the case and in 15 and 30-gallon drums. An increase of over 300 per cent in sales for November, 1929, over November, 1928, has made Pittsburgh one of the nation's leading distributing points of this famous water.

The Mountain Valley Water Company of Pittsburgh is located at 414 First avenue.

Sugar Growers Ask Price Raise

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb., Dec. 7.—Sugar beet growers are forming an organization to demand of Great Western Sugar Company that 1930 contracts call for a minimum of $8 a ton instead of $7 as provided in this year's contracts.

Similar action is being taken among Colorado and Wyoming growers. The company has refused in the past, with the exception of one year, to pay this figure.

MOTOR FREIGHT EXTENDED

Announcement has been made by the West Penn Railways that the motor truck pick-up and delivery service of their electric freight service has been extended to include Latrobe and the vicinity, including Bradenville, Derry, West Derry, West Latrobe, Derrydale, Oakville, McChesneytown, Pandora, Loyalhanna and Youngstown.

For the last year motor truck pick-up and delivery service by West Penn Railways has been in effect in and adjacent to Greensburg, Jeannette and Irwin.

The service which is furnished at no extra cost to the shipper makes it convenient for consignors to transport shipments by electric freight, inasmuch as it does away with the inconvenience of delivering goods to and from the freight station. Under the new arrangement a motor truck will call at the consigner's door and take freight to the electric cars for shipment to Pittsburgh or any other points on West Penn Railways lines. It also meets the electric freight and delivers shipments from the car to the door.

Sale of Bolts, Nuts And Rivets Gains

Specifications for bolts, nuts and rivets have improved, with buying well diversified. This largely is accounted for by the fact that consumers' stocks had been reduced to the point where a renewal in buying was necessary.

November business showed a decline from October but the falling off was smaller than had been anticipated. First quarter contracts are to be issued shortly. Price announcements for that period have not been made. The current prices are 60 to 70 off for bolts and nuts, and 3.10c, Pittsburgh, for large rivets.

STOCK PRICES RALLY AT OPENING

Steel Common Up 2 Points With Other Issues Also Showing Satisfactory Gains

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Stock prices rallied in impressive fashion at the opening of today's market. U. S. Steel common opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 173¼, up 2 points.

Initial gains of a point or two also were recorded by St. Paul preferred, Missouri Pacific, American Telephone, International Telephone, Columbia Gas and Vanadium Steel.

Prospects of further splitups in high-priced stocks attracted fresh buying into the market, with early week-end profit taking sales well absorbed. Steels and public utilities showed early evidence of group strength, but the rails were again laggards.

International Telephone was quickly marked up more than 5 points on buying presumably influenced by unconfirmed rumors of new acquisitions by the company. American and Foreign Power, minority stockholders of which are expected to receive an offer for an exchange of their shares for those of Electric Bond and Share, quickly ran up 3 points. Western Union also advanced 3 points and American Water Works, North American and several others advanced a point or more.

U. S. Steel common crossed 176, the highest price on the recovery, despite the recent recession in steel mill activity. Republic Steel was marked up more than 4 points.

Fox Film advanced 3 points on the announcement that a group of three trustees including William Fox has taken over control of the Fox motion picture interests. Loews advanced 2 points.

There were a few soft spots. Otis Elevator dropped 9 points and American Tobacco and Atlas Powder 2 each.

Foreign exchanges opened firm, with sterling cables quoted 1-16 of a cent high at $4.88 5-16, another new high record for the year.

GLASS OUTLOOK DISCUSSED

The American Glass Review, in its issue of December 7, will say:

With both factory operations and distribution of glass and glass products holding at substantially unchanged levels, of transcending interest and importance among the past week's activities in the industry as a whole was the annual meeting of the National Glass Distributors' Association of Pittsburgh.

The outlook for 1930 was the subject of frank and earnest discussion by both the speakers at the general sessions and at the conferences between manufacturers and jobbers. The tenor of the addresses throughout was one of conservative optimism, based on the hope and belief that continued co-operation will result in improved marketing and competitive conditions the coming year.

In other branches of the industry the week's activities were for the most part of a routine nature. Some slackening in demand upon the glasswares factories is now in evidence, as was to be expected in the wake of the holiday season business. Even so, reports are to the effect that in various plants many orders for certain of the more popular lines cannot be filled.

Royal Dutch Ready To Agree on Output

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—"When the producers in the United States and elsewhere are ready to enter into agreements to curtail world petroleum production on a specified plan, the Royal Dutch group will fall in line," said Sir Henri Deterding, chairman of the Royal Dutch Company, who sailed for London last night on the Majestic. He added that he was optimistic on the outlook for the petroleum industry as a whole and that he believed there was a strong possibility of the producing companies joining in a world-wide curtailment plan. "In this event," he said, "production in Venezuela would also be curtailed."

November Shipments Of Engines Higher

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—November shipments of railroad locomotives from principal plants totaled 95 against 96 in October and 35 in November, 1928, according to the Department of Commerce.

Shipments for 11 months totaled 783 against 506 in the corresponding 1928 period. Unfilled orders at the end of November were 398 against 152 a year previous.

Goodhue Made Head Of Acceptance Body

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—American Acceptance Council at the annual meeting elected F. Abbot Goodhue, president of International Acceptance Bank, as its president and as vice-president H. G. P. Deans, vice-president of Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, Chicago; as treasurer, Percy H. Johnston, president of Chemical Bank and Trust, and as secretary, Robert H. Bean.

Visitors Call New York the Bluest Spot

—By B. C. FORBES—

BUYING orders for stocks loom ahead from two classes.

Not a few persons have held aloof in the expectation that quotations would go to still lower levels than any yet reached. Then, there are many prospective buyers, timid souls, who have been waiting to make sure that the storm was over before they invested their funds.

It is hardly conceivable that good stocks will lose all the ground they have recovered from their bottom prices, such recoveries having in many instances ranged from 20 to 50 per cent. So, the prospect is that before long genuine investment buying will make its appearance in considerable volume. Such buying will not be for the purpose of making a quick profit, but for long-hold investment. A modest amount of public buying was occasionally in evidence this week.

All of which does not imply for a moment that the market may not experience spells of more or less acute irregularity, spells calculated to make thin-margin buyers acutely uncomfortable. The writer frequently declared, during the bull movement, that it was a better market for speculators than for outright investors. It is now a market for real investors.

I AM told that John D. Rockefeller, just before he left for Florida this week, wanted an electrician to do some work and received the reply:

"I am sorry I won't be able to do it because I am just leaving for a month's cruise in the South."

FINANCIAL and business leaders from other parts of the country tell me that the moment they strike New York they encounter nothing but pessimism. Conditions back home, they declare, don't warrant any such indog attitude. John B. Miller, chairman of Southern California Edison; Martin J. Insull, Chicago Utility magnate; Herbert Fleishhaker, leading San Francisco banker, are among those who have had this experience within the last few days.

Mr. Miller states that his company has added 35,000 new consumers using 365,000 horsepower, and that next year's budget has been increased more than 30 per cent over this year's. Christmas buying of electric ranges, refrigerators, washing machines, ironers and similar household appliances has been breaking all records.

"Our forecasts of new business revenues for 1929 will be exceeded in virtually every instance and makes certain an increase of more than 10 per cent in 1930 gross revenues," he declares.

He wants to know, therefore, why he should feel blue—especially as money for planned expansion can now be raised at less cost, and actual income on personal investments has increased, not decreased, since the trouble started in Wall Street.

Increased dividends continue to be declared almost daily by industrial, utility or railway companies.

BUSINESS men and stockholders are always keenly interested in the volume of unfilled orders on hand. Mr. Coolidge booked so many writing orders that he hasn't accepted a single new order since last April. To all requests, he tells me, he has replied that he "didn't wish to write any more."

Will some giant corporation or institution succeed before long in engaging the nation's only unattached ex-president—Mr. Taft already has a life-time job? Any organization or institution landing Calvin Coolidge as its head would assuredly inspire confidence in its conservatism.

I UNDERSTAND that leading radio manufacturers are swamped with holiday business, exceeding all expectations. Atwater Kent, it is said, has had a sell-out, while Griggsby-Grunow wire me that "sales to consumers are running double present rate of production," and that more than the entire year's dividend was earned in the last six months. Apparently, the panic hasn't spoiled the radio business.

A NOTE from George B. Everitt, president of Montgomery Ward:

"I am very glad to tell you that we expect to go ahead with our expansion program and to open additional stores in our retail chain. Our eleven months' sales, $255,731,305, are 26.61 per cent ahead of a year ago."

NOW'S the time to employ maximum sales effort, including vigorous advertising. We are in a buyers' market. Don't expect orders to come; go after them.

THE two bills introduced in the House at Washington to kill marginal trading should be killed. If politicians begin forbidding buying things except for spot cash, maybe they will by and by proceed to include other things besides securities. How many people pay spot cash when they buy a home? Marginal buying certainly has its dangers, but the legislative "cure" proposed would prove more disastrous to national prosperity than the disease.

Business Failures Total 455 in Week

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Business failures in the United States this week totaled 455, R. G. Dun & Co reported, as against 448 for the corresponding period of last year.

LETTER OF LAW SLIGHTED FOR STABILITY

Financing Deals Held Up, Contracts Violated to Aid Business Recovery

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Thus far, the business community has refrained from imitating the spirit behind the ruthless calling for margins by brokers which characterized the late October-early November days in Wall Street.

Perhaps never before in a period of economic transition have so many executives guided their actions with regard to their effect on the general welfare. There is a disinclination to insist on the letter of the law, and a desire to yield somewhat in order to promote stability. Doubtless President Hoover's stabilization conferences at the White House, which culminated on Thursday with a huge meeting of industrialists at the United States Chamber of Commerce, have set the tone for this era of good feeling among businessmen.

OFFERINGS DEFERRED

A symptom of the new attitude was uncovered in a canvas of underwriting developments in the great law offices of Wall street. Numerous financing deals, which were duly signed, called for the bringing out of new security issues during the panicky period. For purposes of self-preservation, the investment bankers deferred such offerings, frequently in technical violation of the terms of the agreement. The enterprises to be financed could have readily taken the contracts into the courts and forced compliance, but inquiry reveals almost a universal disinclination to do this. Wise borrowers know that their future credit would be impaired by attempting to force such uncompleted operations at unpropitious times. In some instances, there deferment would work undue hardship on the corporation to be financed, the bankers themselves have taken all or part of the issue, with the idea of keeping it on their shelves until market conditions change.

In other instances, where negotiations were still pending when the debacle came, the bankers are seeking to transform plans for proposed stock financing into bond deals, conforming to the changing whims of investors.

MERGERS NOT SHELVED

Although new financial projects have been delayed by the Wall street situation, discussions for new alignments and mergers have not by any means been permanently discontinued. One substantial public utility deal was initiated during the period of stock liquidation, and completed before the recent recovery. The deal is to be consummated through an exchange of stock, and though the prices of all the shares involved are far below the peaks the ratios among the different issues were fairly well maintained.

Whereas brokers and speculators grew hysterical during the dark days, business executives have shown composure and courage. Secretary Robert P. Lamont has pointed out the Department of Commerce has heard of only one important instance of laying off of labor and Mr. Lamont added that this order was rescinded after the White House conferences.

Economic conditions will prevail, but those who are working toward stability are backed by a freedom from dangerous sore spots in the business situations. The decisions of executives and their frame of mind constitute a factor in the business cycle.

TIME REQUIRED

There will, of course, be a time lag between the launching of new construction plans and the actual employment of labor to carry them out. During midwinter, there doubtless will be more than the seasonal amount of unemployment, reflecting the holding back of new projects weeks ago. If we were really civilized in an economic sense, we would have machinery for making such unemployment a charge either on the community or on business itself, rather than on individuals unprepared to stand it. As an emergency measure, it is wise to divide such work as is available among large numbers of men, if necessary reducing the working hours or working days of each. But for permanent consideration the proposed business council ought to evolve a social program for meeting the hazard of unemployment through insurance or other means. The new construction program should before many weeks begin to get under way, and contribute substantially to wider opportunities for gainful employment.

President Hoover has given dignity to the new stabilization program by placing chief emphasis on averting unemployment, rather than in focussing attention on maintenance of business profits.

Schoyer Funeral Services Sunday

Funeral services for B. Preston Schoyer, former president of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, who died yesterday, will be held in his home in Edgeworth tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. Mr. Schoyer's death was a shock to his many friends in the financial district where he had been a prominent figure for many years.

His brokerage firm, Preston, Watt and Schoyer, will continue business under the old name, his partners, William H. Watt and Frank M. Tierman, announced today.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The bond market was inclined to rest on its upward course today and the two-hour trading session found a mixed price trend. The undertone, however, was steady and there was enough buying support to advance prices of numerous coupon rails.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. (AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, odd omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

SOLMEN STOPS M'TIERNAN IN THIRD ROUND

TECH HEADS WEST TONIGHT

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Pitt and City Honored. Second Rose Invitation. Revival of Suhr Deal. | Finn-Slade Rejected. Diegel Looks Winner. Walker After Heavies.

TROJANS TOUGH FOES FOR PANTHERS

THOUGH the selection of Pitt to meet Southern California in the Tournament of Roses football classic at Pasadena on New Year's Day had been generally anticipated in football circles since it was learned that Notre Dame was not in a receptive mood and that the Big Ten ban on post-season games would bar Purdue, the official announcement yesterday of the choosing of the Panthers was none the less gratifying to gridiron followers throughout this district. It is a high honor to the city and to the university, particularly as this is the second time in three years that the Panthers have been chosen from among all the college teams in the East, the South and the Middle West to appear in the big Rose Bowl fixture.

Dr. J. B. Sutherland

The invitation also, is a tribute to Coach Jock Sutherland and the quality of football that he teaches. Only one other college has ever been selected twice to represent the remainder of the country against the far West, that being the University of Alabama, which was picked successively for the New Year's Day games that ushered in 1926 and 1927.. W. & J., Penn State, Notre Dame, Brown, Penn, Harvard, Ohio State, Navy and Georgia Tech were invited once each. The Panthers, then coached by Pop Warner, journeyed to California on their own hook after the 1922 season and defeated Stanford, 16 to 7.

ON their trip to the coast two years ago, for a similar engagement at the Tournament of Roses, the Panthers were defeated by the margin of only a single point, losing to Stanford, 7 to 6. Even that was a creditable showing under the conditions, and inasmuch as they are considerably stronger this time there is a good prospect that the Blue and Gold gridders will even things up with a victory.

It cannot be said that the mythical national championship will be at stake on the result, inasmuch as Pitt's title ranking this fall applies only to the East, while Southern California has been defeated by California and Notre Dame. Besides, Southern California must reckon with another Pittsburgh team in the meantime, being scheduled to meet Carnegie Tech one week from today, and a Skibo victory on that occasion would remove the New Year's Day event even farther from a championship ranking.

BUT the meeting of the Panthers and the Trojans means a football battle extraordinary nevertheless. The eyes of the whole country will be focused upon the affair, and if the forces of Dr. Sutherland can succeed in vanquishing those of Howard Jones they will add a lot of national glory to the forces they have already won.

Howard Jones

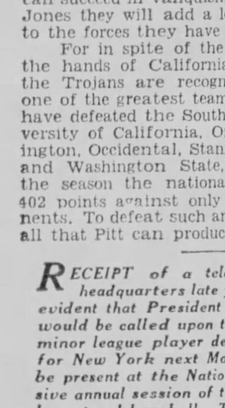
For in spite of the defeats suffered at the hands of California and Notre Dame, the Trojans are recognized everywhere as one of the greatest teams of the year. They have defeated the Southern Branch of University of California, Oregon State, Washington, Occidental, Stanford, Nevada, Idaho and Washington State, rolling up during the season the national college record of 402 points against only 42 for their opponents. To defeat such an eleven will call for all that Pitt can produce.

RECEIPT of a telegram at Pirate headquarters late yesterday made it evident that President Barney Dreyfuss would be called upon to discuss another minor league player deal before leaving for New York next Monday morning to be present at the National League meeting, the thirty-fifth successive annual session of the senior circuit that he has attended since he entered baseball. The message came from George A. Putnam and Charles H. Graham, secretary and vice president, respectively, of the San Francisco club, of the Pacific Coast League. They wired from Chattanooga that they were leaving for Pittsburgh, due to arrive here late today, and it will not be surprising if developments prove that the object of their visit is to try to sell Gus Suhr to the Buccaneers.

THIS will not be the first time that this subject has been discussed. It is known that the Pirate chiefs fancied Suhr strongly last spring as a possible first baseman for the future, but the player's fielding at the initial sack this year was not all that could be desired.

That Gus is a real hitter, however, is not to be questioned. He was one of the leading sluggers of the Coast League for 1929 with 50 home runs, 60 doubles and eight triples. Whether the Pittsburgh club will be willing to buy him on that account, and take a chance on his fielding improving, will be determined at the conference of President Dreyfuss and the San Francisco club officials.

ANOTHER deal involving the Pittsburgh club and two Coast League players—Second Baseman Mickey Finn and Shortstop Gordon Slade, of the Mission club—appears to have struck a snag. Nothing came of the confab of Wade Killefer with Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss and Manager Jewel Ens in Chattanooga this week.



Jim Mosolf

It is reported that the Pirate management was willing to buy Finn, but felt that it had no need for another shortstop promising such little hitting power as does Slade. Killefer, according to rumor, would not consent to sell Finn alone, but insisted on "both or neither," and as Bucs still declined to take Slade the matter was dropped. Killefer will try to sell his midway pair to some other big league club in New York next week. If he fails he may eventually consent to make a single deal with Pittsburgh for Finn.

WESTERN LEAGUE averages for the 1929 season show two youngsters now on the Pirate roster made exceptionally good showings for Wichita. Outfielder Jim Mosolf, who finished the campaign here, was close to the top of the batting list with the high average of .362. In 142 games he scored 106 runs and made 205 hits for a total of 292 bases, his safeties including 40 doubles, 13 triples and seven home runs. He also stole 14 bases. In the field he had 326 putouts, 12 assists and 11 errors, for an average of .968. Pitcher Spencer hurled in 41 games, winning 24 and losing nine for an average of .727, the highest mark in the league except that of Johnny Dowd, of Tulsa, whose average was .750. Dowd pitched in fewer games than Spencer, his totals being 15 victories and five defeats.

OUT in Los Angeles the annual struggle for the National Professional Golfers' Association championship has narrowed down to a 36-hole final match today between Leo Diegel, the defending titleholder, of Aqua Caliente, Mexico, and Johnny Farrell, of New York. Yesterday they eliminated Walter Hagen and Al Watrous, respectively.

You never can tell about Farrell, as was shown again on Thursday, when he turned seeming defeat into victory with a sensational come-back that defeated Craig Wood in an extra hole, but to defeat a man who has just beaten Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen in succession looks like too tough a job for even the courageous New Yorker.

ATLANTA GETS STOCK

CHATTANOOGA, Dec. 7.—Milton Stock, former manager of the Mobile Southern Association club and last year manager of Dallas in the Western League, has been signed by the Atlanta club of the Southern Association.

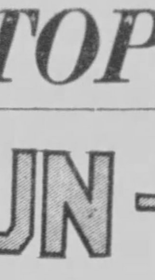
MORDAN PRESIDENT

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—G. M. Mordan, of Hollidaysburg, last night was named president of the Central Pennsylvania Interscholastic Football conference at a dinner meeting here.

MICKEY TURNS TABLES IN UPSET

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The second sensational upset of the dope in as many weeks in the Moose Temple ring occurred last night when Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, knockout victim of Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, in 10 rounds in the same ring last spring, came back to technically knock out Buck in the third round of their meeting. A capacity crowd sat in on the spectacle and went wild over the sensational reversal of form sprung by the New Castle favorite. McTiernan was down three times in the third round before the referee called a halt.



Buck McTiernan

On Friday night of last week at the Moose, Tom Malco, of Soho, spilled the dope by winning by a technical knockout victory over Hans Roberts, the German, in eight rounds.

McTiernan last night was as helpless in the hands of Solmen as the latter was against him last spring, after they previously had fought to a draw at Motor Square Garden. The night Mickey went out before Buck, he almost took the full count in the second round and then continued on to receive a beating until he finally went down and out in the tenth and scheduled last round after a gallant but hopeless stand.

TABLES ARE TURNED

The tables were turned last night and Buck did not have a chance from the time they put up their hands. Mickey, scaling 153½ pounds, and reflecting health and confidence in his rugged bearing, looked the part of a winner from the very start. Buck, on the other hand, at 152¾ appeared drawn and tired and lacking in energy and initiative and took a bad beating. Instead of boxing, as has been his wont in other battles, he tried to slug it out with Mickey and was successful in scoring only at close quarters, where he sank his fists to the body. Mickey, meanwhile, measured him for sweeping left hooks with plenty of follow-through behind them and rocked him time after time. In other words, he beat McTiernan with the latter's own best bet, a left hook to the body and head. Buck meanwhile was relying mainly on his right.

Solmen did virtually all of the forcing in the opening round, planting a number of hard lefts to the body. Buck was waiting for him to lead and then Mickey also decided to play a waiting game and for the better part of a minute the action was slow. Then Solmen rushed again. McTiernan was cool, but ineffective, as he sidestepped and tried to counter. Late in the round both hammered the body in clinches.

END COMES SUDDENLY

McTiernan did some good punching in the second round, but was unable to take Mickey's socks as well as the latter absorbed his and Mickey was still going ahead at the bell and earned a slight edge on the round.

The end came suddenly in the third round. The echo of the bell had hardly died away when McTiernan, out of position, found himself impaled on the end of a left hook and sagged down. He tried to regain his balance going down, but once on the floor decided to take the count. He was up at seven and rushed at Solmen swinging, only to run into a barrage of punches and finally sag down again from a right to the head, his arms wrapped about Solmen's body as he slipped slowly to the floor. He landed face downward and appeared to be out, but managed to roll over, shaking his head as he went, and finally dragged himself up at the count of nine. He rushed into his opponent again, hoping to be able to remain in close until his head would clear, but Mickey fought him off and they traded swings for a few moments until Buck finally sagged and dropped back-

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER: DAN EDWARDS—WAR HERO—Dan Edwards was voted by the American Legion membership as the greatest hero of the World War. He is entitled to wear 83 medals and is one of the two American soldiers in the late war who won the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross. Edwards was wounded three times by machine gun bullets, five times by bayonets and was alone in his gun position operating a machine gun. At Soissons, July 19, 1918, after losing his right arm, he encountered a squad of enemy, killed four and captured the other four, losing his left leg and being wounded in fifty-five places by shrapnel on his return to his own lines. TOMORROW—THE MAN WHO PUT AMERICA ON THE MAP

DREYFUSS WILL ATTEND MEET OF NATIONAL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

With the consent of the family physician, Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, will attend the annual winter meeting of the National League to be held in New York next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Barney Dreyfuss

The good news received by Dreyfuss yesterday will make it possible for the Pittsburgh magnate to keep intact a record for attendance that probably is unmatched in the councils and politics of the sport. The coming event will be Barney's thirty-fifth convention without a break.

The dean of National League owners has been ill for the better part of two months. The elder Dreyfuss went to bed shortly after the conclusion of the world series. He was permitted to attend a banquet in his honor given by the Amen Corner recently, but had to go back to bed again. In the past few days his condition has been such that his doctor has given him the O. K. to go to the metropolis.

GRIMES VISITS OWNER

Dreyfuss and his manager, Jewel Ens, faces many big issues as regards the 1930 Pirates. With so much at stake, the owner wants to be able to meet with his pilot who also will be at the New York confab.

Burleigh Grimes paid an unexpected visit to headquarters yesterday. It was thought at the time that Grimes came here for a salary conference, but the star pitcher did not talk terms with his employers. It was just a fanning bee.

The spitball sharpshooter came in from Wisconsin, his old home

Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., by the record margin of 8 and 6, Mrs. G. A. Magoon, of Pittsburgh, was winning the final of the second division consolation from Mrs. W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, by 2 and 1.

FARRELL TESTS DIEGEL TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Championship hopes of Walter Hagen crashed on the fairways of Hillcrest yesterday when the colorful wanderer of golfdom bowed to the superior play of Leo Diegel, defending title holder, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals of the National Professional Golfers Association tournament.

While Diegel met and matched the challenge of Hagen, Johnny Farrell, of New York, cruised through his test to eliminate Al Watrous, Detroit, by an overwhelming 6-and-5 victory. As the result of his win, he faces Diegel today in the 36-hole final.

PANTHERS OPEN COURT SEASON TONIGHT

The intercollegiate basketball season for Pittsburgh will be cracked open tonight, Pitt's Golden Panthers clashing with the fast stepping Muskingum Muskies in the Stadium Pavilion. The game will be the opening tussle for both fives.

Tomorrow night, the Duquesne Dukes head westward for a three-day invasion of the corn belt, meeting Iowa University at Iowa City Monday night, Loyola, of Chicago, in Chicago Wednesday and Elmhurst College at Elmhurst, Ill., Thursday. The game with Iowa will be the first time that a Duke team has clashed with a Western Conference varsity.

Pitt and Muskingum will experiment with the proposed tip-off elimination here tonight, having the ball thrown in from out of bounds to start the second half. Although the Panthers are favorites, Muskingum is expected to give the Panthers a stiff argument. The Muskies are one of the best basketball drawing cards this city has ever drawn.

Carnegie Tech, the third city institution boasting a varsity five, will not open its campaign until January 4, playing West Virginia at Morgantown.

The probable lineup:

Pitt.		Muskingum.
Hyatt	F	(C) Bickle
Zehfuss	F	Kirkes
L. Cohen	C	Leeper
Baker	G	Polinsky
Wrobleski or M. Cohen	G	Vierebome

Cochran Gains On Johnny Layton

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, shaved 27 points off Johnny Layton's long lead in the ninth and tenth blocks of their 600-point three-cushion billiards match here yesterday. With only two more blocks to go, however, Layton had an apparently safe lead of 56 points. The score was: Layton, 500; Cochran, 434.

IOWA CASE UP TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The faculty committee on athletics of the Western Conference last night adjourned its meeting without having made a decision on the petition of the University of Iowa for reinstatement. The group reconvened at 9 a. m., today.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, of the University of Chicago, was elected president of the Western Conference Football coaches Association and reappointed the Conference's representative on the National Football Rules Committee.

The football coaches recommended to athletic directors that no school be permitted to have more than two scouts at any one conference game.

While basketball and football coaches marked time waiting to learn if Iowa will be in the Western Conference again, track coaches mapped out part of their schedule, naming dates and fields for the annual indoor and outdoor Big Ten track championships.

The indoor meet, was awarded to the University of Minnesota, and will be held March 7 and 8.

Northwestern again was chosen for the outdoor championship meet on May 30 and 31. While Chicago drew the tennis title tournament for May 29 and 30.

PITT ACCEPTS ROSES BID OF U. S. C.

By JESS CARVER.

The varsity football squad of Carnegie Tech will head the West Coast gridiron invasion to be made by this city this year, pulling out tonight at 11:30 for California, where it will engage the University of Southern California eleven in the Los Angeles Coliseum next Saturday afternoon.

Later in the month, the University of Pittsburgh varsity party will also entrain for the coast, and will clash with this same U. S. C. eleven in the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena New Year's day.

The Panthers received the Rose Bowl bid yesterday and almost immediately accepted. The bid had been hanging fire for two weeks, with Tennessee, Tulane and Purdue being mentioned as possible eastern, mid-western and southern representatives.

PRECEDENT

For the first time in history, both Pitt and Tech will meet the same opponent on the coast, and for the first time, a coast team will play elevens from the same eastern city in post-season contests. The Rose Bowl game will be the second of its ilk in which a Pitt team will participate in three years, the unbeaten Panthers of '27 having met and bowed to Stanford New Year's day two years ago.

The Tartans, handled as they have never been handled before during the past week, are primed to give U. S. C. a terrific battle next Saturday, and hope most devoutedly to upset the apple cart of the Californians ere the Panthers arrive on the scene of battle New Years. Carnegie, buffeted about by its major opponents up until the Thanksgiving Day game with New York University, rose to the heights against the Violets and played well nigh perfect football.

The itinerary of the Carnegie Tech could hardly be better arranged or more interesting. Arriving in Chicago tomorrow morning, the party will be taken for a sight-seeing trip about the Windy City before boarding a Santa Fe train for Kansas City. The first stop after tomorrow will be at Dodge City, Ia., Monday, where a practice session will be held in the afternoon.

PRACTICE EN ROUTE

Tuesday, the Tartan tourists will be in Albuquerque, New Mexico, for another workout. On Wednesday, the squad will hit Winslow, Ariz., for another practice session. Thursday will be spent in viewing the Grand Canyon and chugging along on the last leg of the trip into Pasadena, which will be reached at 6:45 Friday morning.

Arriving at Pasadena, the party will be quartered at the Huntingdon Hotel, and the final practice before the game will be held in the Rose Bowl in the afternoon.

Sight-seeing trips in and about Los Angeles, including a visit to Catalina Island, the movie studios of Hollywood and then a jaunt to San Francisco and to Palo Alto, for a visit to Stanford University.

TAKE 27 PLAYERS

Tech is taking 27 players, 10 backs and 17 linemen. The backfield men included in the party are Armentrout, McCurdy, Carlson, Eyth, Slats Flanagan, Karcis, Kennedy, Traa, Morbity and Pouncey. The linemen are Highberger, Schmidt, Stauffer, Captain John Dreshar, English, L. Flanagan, Fletcher, Ducanis, Rosenzweig, Schnupp, Potts, Yerina, Ewing, Hower, Shekles, Zeigler and Sketres.

The boys will be in charge of Graduate Manager Overend, who will be assisted in the handling of the athletes by Burt Munhall, portly trainer, Joe Buckley, assistant trainer and Student Manager Bob Wright. Coach Bob Waddell, Advisory Coach Wally Steffen, Merle Mesta, Assistant Graduate Manager Al Irwin and Lefty Fees, along with the newspaper correspondents, will complete the main Carnegie Tech party.

BUCS MAY GET SUHR TODAY

Officials of the Pittsburgh Pirates and the San Francisco Seals, of the Pacific Coast League, got together at Pirate headquarters at Forbes Field this morning in an effort to close a deal for Gus Suhr, star first baseman of the Coast Leaguers.

Manager Jewel Ens and Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss, along with George A. Putnam and Charles H. Graham, president and recretary respectively of the Seals, stopped off in Pittsburgh this morning on their way back from Chattanooga where they attended the minor league sessions.

Manager Ens will leave early tomorrow for the annual major league conference in New York. Owner Barney Dreyfuss and his son are expected to head for the East Monday.

UANSA, DONCHESS ON 'A. P.' FIRST TEAM

MONTGOMERY, PARKINSON 'SECONDS'

By ALAN GOULD.

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — As a tribute to the fertile football plains that produced such consistently brilliant teams as Notre Dame and Purdue, the Middle West takes the lion's share of honors in the Fifth Annual All-America consensus, compiled by The Associated Press from expert nation-wide opinion and made public today.

On the first team the "shock troops" of an All-America squad of 33 players, five represent the Middle West, four the East, one each the South and Pacific Coast.

Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, two of the finest aggregations of the year, each gained two places on the mythical eleven, a distinction no team in the country has been accorded in the consensus since Dartmouth placed three men on the first team of 1926.

The East manifested strength in the squad as a whole by collecting 12 out of the 33 places, with nine going to the Middle West, six to the South, five to the Far West and one to the Southwest.

NATIONWIDE CONSENSUS

In the nationwide poll of opinion taken by The Associated Press, 215 experts contributed their views. They represented newspaper sports editors and writers, Associated Press staff observers, officials and coaches in every section of the country. There was not an important game anywhere, scarcely a spectacular feat recorded in any noteworthy college contest which was not "covered" or studied by some one or more of these experts.

The results of the consensus show a distinct drift in the "class" of football talent, for the season of 1929, at least, to the Middle West, in contrast with the powerful showing of the Far West in 1928. On the whole, it was distinctly a "Mid-Western Year," with such teams as Purdue and Notre Dame leading the parade most of the way, while Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota registered noteworthy intersectional triumphs to add to the prestige of the Big Ten group.

Star players of one of the most spectacular of all college campaigns stood out as conspicuously as did the select few teams. No All-America selective process is safe from debate of the groggiest variety; nevertheless, the consensus indicated little doubt about the majority of contenders for honor positions.

CARIDEO BIG CHOICE

Three of the players on the team were overwhelmingly choices —Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's great quarterback; Bronko Nagurski, the powerhouse of Minnesota's team, and Joe Donchess, lean, hart-hitting end of the Pittsburgh Panthers. Toby Uansa, of Pittsburgh, was by far the leading halfback in the balloting.

Carideo was the choice of 123 experts for the position of field general, outdistancing such eastern aces as Al Marsters, of Dartmouth, and Albie Booth, of Yale, each of whom faded at the finish, largely through injuries, after dazzling starts.

Donchess was selected for one of the end positions by 121 votes, but his running-mate and fellow townsman, rangy Wesley Fesler, of Ohio State, was not far away with a total of 99. Youngstown, O., thus has the rare distinction of furnishing both All-America ends.

Nagurski presented the problem of being a leading candidate for fullback as well as tackle. He received 115 votes altogether, but he is placed in the line because a majority of his supporters, 65, preferred him in that position with the understanding that he might be brought back for ball-carrying purposes in a pinch. The Big Nag was clearly one of the greatest all-round players produced in many a season.

TAPPAAN LIKED

At the flanks, Francis Tappaan, most consistent player on the Southern California eleven, was the only man who gave Donchess and Fesler any sort of a contest. He polled 61 votes. Vernon (Catfish) Smith, of Georgia, and Frank Baker, of Northwestern, had a close contest, which Smith won by a narrow margin, 29 to 27.

The Southwest Conference unquestionably produced one of the best ends of the year in the giant Wear Schoonover, of Arkansas, a great pass receiver, as well as blocker and tackler, but his total of 16 votes was not enough to give him higher rating than a place on the third team.

Red Sleight, 203-pound dynamo of the great Purdue line, led all the tackle contenders with 82 votes. He has the fiery 210-pound Nagurski as his running-mate, with Sam Wakeman, of Cornell, and Ted Twomey, of Notre Dame, ready for emergencies. The latter two, with 55 and 56 votes, respectively, easily clinched the second team positions over such steady performers as Douds, of Washington and Jefferson; Singleton, of Alabama, and Vincent, of Yale. Douds polled 43 votes.

Notre Dame furnished the outstanding guard on the list in Jack Cannon, who, with 88 votes, led his nearest rival, Bert Schwartz, of California, by 30. Schwarz carried off the first team prize in a close contest with Ray Montgomery, of Pittsburgh, called "the perfect guard" by his coach, and Firpo Greene, Yale's big captain. Montgomery polled 53 and Greene 51, with Johnny Law, Notre Dame captain, not far behind with 42.

HARVARD PLACES TICKNOR

For the first time since 1923, Harvard places a man on the first team through the brilliance of Ben Ticknor, outstanding choice for center. Ticknor's marvelous all-round work, ernest in the Yale game, evidently [illegible] him the call over Roy Riegels, blond captain of the University of California.

The Crimson star polled 83 votes to 63 for Riegels, who made a sensational comeback to win high honors this year after his memorable backward run in the New Year's Day game. No other pivot men were even close to these two, Siano, of Fordham, barely gaining an edge in the voting over Tim Moynihan, Notre Dame, who suffered a broken leg in next to the last game.

Had the All-America ballots been cast the first week of November, it is doubtful whether Albie Booth, of Yale, or Al Marsters, of Dartmouth, could have been kept off the first team with a crowbar. They were the most talked-about ball-carriers of the year, but injuries in the Yale game put Marsters out of action and Booth, also hurt, failed to star against Harvard. These developments, coupled with the consistently sensational work of a number of other backs, helped determine the choice of Carideo, of Notre Dame; Toby Uansa, of Pittsburgh; Red Cagle, of West Point, and Tony Holm, of Alabama, for the All-America backfield.

UANSA TOPS HALVES

Carideo's 123 votes for quarterback compared with 46 for Marsters and 26 for Booth. Dutch Clark, the 1928-All-America field general, was distanced, but the all-round star of Colorado College, on a comparatively mediocre team, again demonstrated his remarkable prowess.

Uansa, Pitt's "climax runner," was almost as highly favored among the halfbacks as Carideo was among the quarterbacks. Tumbling Toby collected 105 votes. Cagle, in his last year, retained the honors he won a year ago only after a close race with Pest Welch, Purdue captain and triple threat. The Army redhead polled 71 votes to 64 for Welch. Tennessee's hard-running ball-lugger, Gene McEver, with 37 votes, barely beat out Billy Banker, of Tulane, and Benny Lom, of California, for the second team place. Banker polled 27 and Lom polled 31 votes.

While the ballots proved the majority choices conclusively, they also indicated strong support for Iowa's great captain, Willis Glassgow, along with such other fine performers as Jack Elder, of Notre Dame; Cy Leland, of Texas Christian, who broke up any number of games with dazzling runs; Mack Stennett, of St. Mary's; Dick Gentle, of Pennsylvania, and Merle Hufford, of Washington, the one bright spot in an otherwise drab year for the Huskies.

NAGURSKI AT TACKLE

The placing of Nagurski at tackle left the fullback honors to Tony Holm, the Alabama battering-ram, who collected 37 votes and beat out Pug Parkinson, of Pittsburgh, with 27 votes, and Powerhouse Pomeroy, of Utah, with 16. These were the outstanding choices, although it was noteworthy that Joe Savoldi, second-string Notre Dame fullback, commanded considerable support. Hinkle, of Bucknell, who rolled up 50 points in his final game to take the Eastern as well as national high-scoring honors, also was highly regarded.

PIRATES LEAVE FOR NEW YORK TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Frank Frederickson and his ice Pirates have a "Saturday night off" tonight for the first time since the National Hockey League season opened, but the "breather" is only the calm before the storm, for the Bucs are carded to battle the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The local puckman tuned up for their New York debut with a light practice session at Duquesne Garden today. They are to leave for the east tonight.

On November 23 the Rangers met the Pirates here and handed them a 5-3 setback. That defeat was the first length of a losing string that now has been extended to five straight. Harold Darragh's return to the lineup has strengthened the Pirates' front line, but the Rangers ever have been a tough nut for the locals to crack, and the New Yorkers will be favorites to win tomorrow.

The Pirates will go from New York to Boston, where they will oppose the world champion Bruins on Tuesday evening. The New York Americans are to furnish the opposition for the Bucs at Duquesne Garden next Saturday night.

SOLMEN STOPS M'TIERNAN

ward over the lower rope in a neutral corner.

As Referee Red Robinson stopped the fight and helped McTiernan back on his feet, Buck's manager, Bunny Buntach, climbed into the ring, claiming a foul. No foul was visible unless one might be claimed for Bunny's action, and Solmen and the latter's manager, little Eddie Weygandt, naturally were content to let it stand as a technical knockout.

The defeat was McTiernan's second in his last two starts. Recently he lost a split verdict to Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., at Motor Square Garden, although he appeared to have earned the award through his more consistent work throughout the battle. He had a match in the making with the winner of the Cooper-Jimmy Belmont bout at the Garden Monday night for either Christmas or New Year's afternoon, but this is off now.

DENERI BEATS ANGELO

In addition to the excitement in the main bout, the crowd was treated to three hard-fought preliminaries, all of which went the limit. In the semi-final, Jack DeNeri, of Cleveland, 127, nosed out Young Angelo, of Swissvale, 128¾ pounds, with a hurricane finish in the last round. DeNeri, a rangy, slapping and cuffing jumping-jack, dropped Angelo for no count in the first round, but found the local man coming back to give him a tough tussle all of the way. Angelo was much the harder hitter and several times had DeNeri in distress, but the latter's showmanship and freakish style pulled him through. The judges agreed on DeNeri as the winner, while the referee called it a draw.

Eddie Polo, hard-hitting southpaw of the North Side, 141½, almost annihilated Joe Zink, of McKees Rocks, 143, with left swings in the first round of their second bout, but then tired and wilted as Zink found the range for punches to the body. Eddie was saved by the bell as the referee pulled him through the ropes at the end of the third round and he finished the final round doubled up to avoid further body punishment. It was one of the toughest "club fights" staged hereabouts in years. The judges picked Zink as the winner, the referee's vote going to Polo.

MALCO TO BOX SAYLOR

In the six-round opener, Abie Witz's Negro bantamweight, Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, a reputed heavy puncher, couldn't locate Jackie Wilson, a shifty and clever, although green protege of Johnny Ray, and Jackie boxed his way to the unanimous decision.

Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts. Frank (Bull) Brown and Frank Ferris were the judges, Bill Schuster acted as announcer and A. C. Couch was the timer. It was announced that Tom Malco will meet Young Saylor, of Charleroi, in the main bout next Friday night.

Between Rounds

Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, will arrive in town tomorrow for his 10-round main bout with Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, in Motor Square Garden Monday night and will work out in the afternoon in the Motor Square gym. Belmont winds up his training today. The local entrant is confident of winning, perhaps by the knockout route.

Paul Ballint, local featherweight, who knocked out Red Hartley at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, has been signed by his manager, Jack White, to box Jack Willis in the six-round main bout of a show at Bradford, Pa., next Wednesday night.

Al Brown defends his world bantamweight title against Kid Francis in a 15-round bout in Paris tonight. Jimmy Braddock meets Jake Warren in a six-rounder in Brooklyn.

NOVAK IN WINDUP

Frank Novak, local amateur heavyweight champion, will box the main bout of the Christmas benefit show in Motor Square Garden one week from Monday night.

Georgie Safron, of Canton, O., has been signed to box Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, in one of the three 10-round bouts of the feature card at McKeesport next Thursday night. Chuck Taggert, of Butler, and Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, heavyweights, are in the main bout. Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, who was to be one of the principals in the other 10-rounder, has canceled his arrangements.

TITLE GAME TODAY

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 7.—Williamsport and Altoona High Schools meet here this afternoon in the annual game for the Central Pennsylvania Interscholastic Football Conference. They are the champions of the Eastern and Western sectors of the league.

West View Meets Majestics Tonight

West View, 1928 independent gridiron champion, will play its third and deciding game with the Hope-Harvey Majestics tonight in the One Hundred and Seventh Armory, Alder and Emerson street, the kickoff being scheduled for 8:15.

There is every indication of a banner crowd. Manager Art Rooney is looking for Levy, former Quantico Marine star, to run wild. He has been hampered by hard, frozen grounds. Should this game attract a crowd, Manager Rooney is going to bring three other clubs to the East End arena.

PITT RANKED SECOND BY BIFF JONES

By CAPT. BIFF JONES,
Head Football Coach, U. S. Military Academy.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 7.—After a season of startling upsets in the football world it is harder than usual to attempt to pick and rate the 10 best teams. In comparing one team against another, the caliber of competition met must be taken into consideration. There are several teams undefeated this year whose name does not appear on my list. There are several teams on my list who have met defeat. These latter teams have met stiff opponents and because they have been defeated at some time in the season should not prevent their getting the choice over the team which for the major part of the schedule encountered only fair competition.

Picking the first three is fairly easy. Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue should certainly be rated above the rest of the field. However, selecting them in that order is no doubt open to debate.

The record of all three of these teams has been remarkable. Notre Dame has practically covered the country in its travels and week after week has met strong representatives of every section. I am told that in many of their games they out-classed their opponents by even more of a margin than is indicated in their score. Carideo, Elder and Savoldi have stood out in their backfield while Twomey, Moynihan and Cannon have done most of the damage in the line. The Army game showed that the Notre Dame defense was even better than the Notre Dame offense.

PANTHERS IMPRESSIVE

Pittsburgh's crushing defeat of West Virginia, Nebraska, Ohio State, W. & J., Carnegie Tech and Penn State is considered impressive. In Donchess, Pitt had one of the great ends of the year, and in Parkinson and Uansa two of the best backs. There attack has been a variation of Warner's and has baffled their wide range of opponents.

Next come the Western Conference champions, Purdue. This team, underrated by many at the start, vindicated its boosters by winning its conference games in no uncertain fashion. Though they did not meet Illinois, Minnesota or Northwestern, three first-division conference teams, it is said all of these would have fallen before the strong Boilermakers.

After Purdue I would place Tennessee. Not only because of this year's undefeated record in the Southern Conference, but also because of their record over a period of three years testifies to the caliber of this team. In McEver, Tennessee has one of the high-scoring backs of the year. Hackman is an able running mate.

Illinois certainly comes next. While this team, champions in 1927 and 1928, did not reach the expectations of its followers, it came out second in the conference race. It was tied by Iowa under terrible weather conditions, and beaten by Northwestern. Nevertheless this team impressed all who saw it play. They won their other conference games without too much trouble and beat the Army, 17-7.

TULANE STRONG

Tulane has surprised the rest of the country with its strength. Benker, their big backfield ace, is claimed by those who have seen him to be the best in the country. At any rate, he has led them through an undefeated season.

Southern California again has a big powerful team. They were beaten by California the Saturday following Southern California's victory over Stanford. They were later beaten one point in Chicago by Notre Dame.

Next I would pick Stanford. No one can deny its scoring power. Southern California and Stanford tied for honors in the Pacific Coast Conference and Southern California beat Stanford by one touchdown. They stumbled against Santa Clara. Nevertheless, I consider Stanford fully as strong as last year.

Nebraska follows. Tied twice by strong teams, and beaten by Pitt in a close game, it has shown increasing strength with each game.

California, though losing to Stanford, had a great season. They scored a great victory by beating Southern California. Their win over Pennsylvania was highly creditable.

Teams not listed, yet nevertheless deserving much consideration, are: Harvard, Texas Christian, Fordham, St. Mary's, Colgate, North Carolina, Southern Methodist, Detroit and Utah.

Tom Freeman Wins Over Reno at Erie

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Tommy Freeman, of Erie, won a decision over Joe Reno, of Trenton, N. J., in 10 rounds here last night. Heavy Andrews, of Erie, and Young Guido, of Farrell, fought a six-round draw.

Johnny Willis, Erie Negro, scored a technical knockout over Buddy Bollender, of Youngstown, in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout. Jimmy Hogan, of Erie, and Henry Attell, of Youngstown, fought a four-round draw.

Johnny Thorma, of Erie, won a four-round decision from Young Martin, of Cleveland.

TWO SWIM MARKS FALL

MAY CUTNALL, P. A. A. SET RECORDS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

A pair of Senior A. M. A. records went by the board as P. A. A., Homestead Library and Oliver Pool divided honors of the titular aquatic meet in the Keystone A. C. pool last evening. A near-capacity throng cheered heartily as Bill Wright, Jim Beacon and John Law, crack Winged Head trio, lowered the 300-yard senior medley mark to 3:23 2-5 and the roar was quite as ear-splitting when diminutive May Cutnall, clever protege of Homestead Jack Scarry, clipped the women's senior back stroke tally several seconds to 1:21 in the initial heat of the event and repeated with the same stunt in the finale.

HOMESTEAD GOOD

Homestead Library monopolized laurels in the women's contests with first, second and third in the aforementioned back stroke affair and in the 100-yard Senior A. M. A. free style, and first and third in the 150-yard medley, in which Mary Suchy, of Oliver, broke in at second by virtue of a fast breast stroke start. Miss Cutnall, in addition to her record-smashing performance in the backstroke, likewise contributed a victory in the medley, this due largely to her back stroke excellence.

Karl Beu, Oliver ace, survived a seven-heat field to land the men's open 100-yard handicap, Bill Yecies, of the Y. M. H. A., was a close second and Nick Frugo, another Oliver luminary, pulled in third. Stoffen, of Pitt, and Laughlin, Homestead Library, wound up in a dead heat for second place in the second semi-final, the deadlock being a most unusual feature. Oliver also carried off a win in the fancy diving, Carik topping Schmeiler, of Pitt, and David, of P. A. A., by a narrow margin.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Numerous youthful K. A. C. natators, pupils of the veteran Jim Taylor, registered a distinct hit in various special bits.

John T. Taylor refereed the session, with Jim Taylor serving as clerk of course and Harry Hainsworth as announcer. The summary:

300-yard medley relay for men, Senior A. M. A. A. A. U. championship—Won by P. A. A. (Wright, Beacon and Law); Pitt, second; Carnegie Library Club, of Homestead, third; P. A. A., second team, fourth. Time, 3:23 2-5. (new A. M. A. record).

100-yard back stroke for women, Senior A. M. A. A. A. U. championship—First heat, won by Mary Hager, Homestead Library; Louise Clark, Homestead Library, second. Time, 1:34 2-5. Second heat, won by May Cutnall, Homestead Library; Irene Patnik, Homestead Library, second. Time, 1:21. (new A. M. A. A.).

Final—Won by May Cutnall, Homestead Library; Irene Patnik, Homestead Library, second; Mary Hager, Homestead Library, third. Time, 1:21.

100-yard free style for women, Senior A. M. A. A. A. championship—Won by Lenore Kight, Homestead Library; Anna Elek, Homestead Library, second; Anna May Gorman, Homestead Library, third. Time, 1:09 2-5.

150-yard medley for women—First heat, won by Mary Suchy, Oliver Pool; Louise Clark, Homestead Library, second. Time, 2:23 3-5. Second heat, won by May Cutnall, Homestead Library; Irene Patnik, Homestead Library, second. Time, 2:23 3-5.

Final—Won by May Cutnall, Homestead Library; Mary Suchy, Oliver Pool, second; Louise Clark, Homestead Library, third. Time, 2:15 3-5.

100-yard free style handicap for men—First semi-final heat, won by Beu, Oliver Pool; Yecies, Y. M. H. A., second. Time, 1:03 3-5. Second semi-final heat, won by Frugo, Oliver Pool; Stoffen, Pitt, and Laughlin, Homestead Library, tied for second. Time, 1:04.

Final—Won by Karl Beu, Oliver Club; William Yecies, Y. M. H. A., second; Nick Frugo, Oliver Club, third. Time, 1:02 1-5.

Low-board fancy diving—Won by Carik, Oliver Pool; Schmeiler, Pitt, second; David, P. A. A., third.

25-yard free style handicap for K. A. C. boys—Won by Jack Hopwood; Jimmy Shidle, second.

LOCAL HUNTERS BAG DEER

Local hunters returning from the mountains of Centre and Clarion counties reported splendid success in their quest for deer this week.

George Clark Skidmore, of Meriden street, champion pistol shot of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, bagged a 10-point buck weighing 200 pounds in the Black Moshannon Mountains in Centre County.

H. A. Tritsch, of Eastwood road, and J. E. Connelly, of Rosetta street, brought an eight-pointer weighing 240 pounds back from Clarion County.

Connelly and Tritsch had been out only 30 minutes when the former fired a shot into a nice buck. The deer was wounded, but not killed, and after trailing it for three miles the local nimrods lost it to another group of hunters.

It was only two hours later that they met with better success, and the 240-pounder was brought down.

Long's Sport Comment

Diegel appears likely to retain the title if he doesn't lose the form that he has displayed since the tourney got under way.

HAVING captured the middleweight fistic championship after losing the welterweight honors, Mickey Walker now wants to take a crack at some of the light-heavies or even the heavies.

"I'm willing to defend my middleweight title against anybody in the world," he is quoted, "but there's nobody around for a match with whom the promoters will pay any real dough. Now, in the light-heavyweight class, or even the heavyweight division, there are several fellows with whom I think I could put up a good fight.

"DON'T make any mistake about the heavyweights. I can stand up with any of those guys. Of course, I'm not going to compare myself with a fellow like Bob Fitzsimmons, for I'm not built anything like he was. He licked all the heavies of his day and he didn't weigh any more than I can weigh and be at my best. But there was a little guy named Joe Walcott who used to bounce those big bozos around, and I think I'd be too fast for them. At any rate, I'd like to try, and you can't blame a fellow for that, can you?"

Mickey Walker.

Carnegie Tech, looking forward to resumption of basketball success under Paul Hogan, will be led on the court this season by George Nease, stellar guard. Nease played brilliantly for the Tartans last year and is ranked with the best guards in the Tri-state section.

state. Many of the Pittsburgh stars already are under contract for next season, but the ace of the diamond staff is not among these. It isn't likely, however, that there will be any serious hitch over terms.

CAREY IN TOWN

Max Carey, former captain and centerfielder of the Pirates, also visited with Mr. Dreyfuss yesterday. Max's home is in St. Louis, but he will spend the remainder of the winter in Florida. He will be in attendance at the annual meeting. Carey is now a free agent, he having received his release from the Robins. Grimes also expects to attend the winter session.

The minor league convention in Chattanooga ended yesterday. The sessions apparently were lively, especially the sidelights that developed outside the meeting rooms, although there was a scarcity of deals involving major league teams. It is highly probable, however, that negotiations were started that will lead to something later.

MINOR LEAGUE SESSION ENDS

CHATTANOOGA, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—As the National Association of Professional Baseball Club Leagues closed its annual convention yesterday, it told the colleges and schools of the United States that it would adopt a hands-off policy for athletes seeking education and would be content to sign them for professional baseball when they have laid their books aside.

The National Board of Arbitration, baseball's court, failed to relieve the suspense of the pennant winner in the Arizona League.

Nick Cullop, who hit and threw long distances while playing in the Brooklyn outfield for a short while, thought his transfer to Atlanta, of the Southern Association, was not all that it should have been, according to the strict letter of the baseball law.

Elated over the victory scored at expense of the Young Men's Hebrew Association Wednesday night, Coach Fred Yetter's Kingsley House quintet will be out to register its second successive West Penn League victory tonight when it engages North Side Community House on the latter's floor.

The East Liberty passers are confident they have struck their winning stride and believe they are capable of defeating the North Siders on their own floor. Both teams appear to be evenly matched and a close game should develop.

Dalt Secor, who is coaching Community House this winter, has his charges in fine fettle for the contest despite two straight defeats in league encounters.

In the other league game carded tonight Manager W. C. Kennedy takes his Knickerbockers to Edgewood to meet the team representing that borough in the West Penn loop.

Preceding the Community House contest will be a battle between Community House girls and another strong team.

FINTEX IN HOMESTEAD

The Homestead entry in the Allegheny County League, the A. J. Ackermans defeated in their first league battle Thursday night by the Elizabeth Independents, will open their home season at the Homestead Elks' Temple tonight when they meet the Morry-Fintex quintet.

The Morry - Fintex quintet opened its season by defeating the Charleroi Lions last Monday and will be eager to register their second victory in a row tonight. The Ackermans have what many fans believe one of the best clubs in the district and they should give a good account of themselves tonight.

While the Morry-Fintex team is in Homestead, Manager Sammy Goldenson of the Goldenson Club, takes his passers to Charleroi where his aggregation will assist the Lions in opening their home campaign.

The Lions made a favorable impression in their game with the Morry - Fintex quintet and they should give the Goldensons a tough battle tonight. The contest is expected to draw an immense crowd to the Charleroi floor as the Goldensons are prime favorites in that district.

OPENERS AT HEINZ HOUSE

The Heinz House senior and reserve teams will swing into action for the first time this season tonight on the Heinz House floor, the seniors engaging Crucible Steel, while the reserves clash with the Trinity Eagles. Heinz House is reported in fine shape despite the loss of Fehrenbach and Bigenwald, two regulars of last season. Coach Francis has been drilling his charges for several weeks and the North Siders will take the floor tonight in the pink of physical condition.

ALLENTOWN WINS

Allentown made a fine comeback to defeat the Elizabeth Club, 28 to 24, at Allentown Turner Hall, in an Allegheny Country League game last night. Elizabeth led, 12-8, at half time.

Western Theological Seminary tripped Pittsburgh Tech, 52 to 13, while Perry High School copped its court opener from Ben Avon High, 19 to 13.

In league warfare, Irene Kaufmann Settlement set down Equitable Life, 33 to 19, in the Central; Sharpsburg Y toppled the Silents, 48 to 38, in the Greater Pittsburgh, and St. Henry's beat C. M. C., 35 to 23, and St. John's won over St. Wendelin's, 38 to 14, in the Lyceum.

I. K. S. Reserves defeated St. Paul, 53 to 26, in the Metropolitan League. The lineups:

BASKETBALL RULES QUIZ

PLAY NO. 12.

Hill of Illinois has been awarded the ball on an out-of-bounds play. In making a pass to the court he steps on the boundary line but not into the court.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

Although technically rated as being out of bounds when touching the line, he is considered as having carried the ball on to the floor and the pass is called back and the ball awarded to an opponent.

This marks the close of the second week of this interesting series of plays which may come up at any of the games. Twenty-four plays in all will be listed. Watch for play No. 13 Monday.

A number of real games are scheduled for this afternoon, National Cup ties and league games being featured. Jeannette will meet Douglas at Swissvale in the National, and Glendale will meet Jeannette at the Rubber Town. Three games will be played in the district loop. Union Switch, trying to overtake Douglas, will have to battle hard for the points.

The battle of Lawrenceville will be staged at Leslie Park, when the Rovers meet the Celtics. Two games will be played in the Beaver Valley loop, Ambridge showing at Sewickley and Midland at New Castle.

The Pierpoint Motors players are requested to report at the P. & L. E. Depot this evening at 11 o'clock. The team will leave on the 11:15 train for Detroit for its first-round National Cup game against the Walkerville eleven tomorrow.

Rosa Raisa to Be Heard In 'Aida' on Air Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

THE radio audience is indeed fortunate in hearing once again the golden voice of Rosa Raisa. With Charles Marshall she will take part in the Chicago Civic Opera production of "Aida" which will be put on the WJZ network, including KDKA, at 10 o'clock tonight.

Leave it to the Nit Wits to re-create the capture of that desperate bandit, Jesse James. How it was done will be Bradford Browne's skit at 6:30 through WJAS.

Virginia Harmon returns to WJAS at 7:30 as guest artist of the Pickering Playtime Orchestra. Telephone calls and requests prompted Jim Hughes to re-engage the popular soprano a week in advance of her schedule. She will do four selections—the entrancing "Vagabond King Waltz," the engaging "Just You, Just Me," "Wonderful You" and that happy number, "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine."

Bernice Taylor will sing "Alice Blue Gown" for Laundryland Lyrics, WCAE at 8:30. Graybar Mr. and Mrs., WJAS at 9, have another squabble, this time over the visit of a "dear cousin." A bass will sing "Song of the Volga Boatmen" for Gillettes, KDKA at 9:30. Paramount Hour, WJAS at 10, is always good.

We Now Present

For the fifth time, KDKA yesterday rebroadcast a program from the studios of VK 2 ME in Sydney, Australia.

Testimonial on "Sunday at Seth Parker's" received from a Pittsburgh listener by WCAE:

"I have seen:

"1. Sunday evening bridge parties stop when Seth begins.

"2. Traveling men wait until after Seth's Hour before leaving their homes.

"3. A family stay at a neighbor's house two miles away until Seth's program ended."

Fine . . . and tomorrow the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will present in silhouette the characters who take part in this popular Sunday night feature.

Aline Berry, NBC dramatic artist, was born on Christmas Day. As a result she's never been able to have a birthday party in her life.

AMOS 'N' ANDY AGAIN.

Radio Editor:

Won't you please answer a few questions that have annoyed me for a long time?

Are Amos and Andy colored and are they the only two people in their sketches? I've heard some say that the parts of the "King Fish" and "Pat Pending" are taken by the same two men.

And is their announcer's name "Bill Hayes," "Bill Haynes" or "Bill Hague?' Personally I think the announcer is worth "the whole price of admission."

And just one more question which I have heard discussed very frequently. When the "Star Spangled Banner" is played over the radio is it "unpatriotic" if one does not stand?

IRMA LASSMAN.

NOW THE ANSWERS.

Amos 'n' Andy are not colored and they are the only two persons in the sketch, taking parts of the "King Fish" and others. They are very talented.

Their announcer's name is Bill Hague—and he's good!

It is not unpatriotic to sit through the "Star Spangled Banner" when it is played over the radio as part of an ordinary program. But if the national anthem is played alone and not as a medley of patriotic airs, such as the introduction or close at a federal function, then etiquette requires that the listener stand, the same as he would if the anthem were played in Schenley Park, Memorial Hall or anywhere else.

Apropos of this last question we wonder how many bow in silent prayer when Seth Parker pauses every Sunday night.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Brian McDonald, the boy tenor who began his meteoric rise as announcer-manager of WJAS, is at the Harris Theater in McKeesport in a new role—that of m. c.

Attractive Cousin Visits.

Vi has a cousin of whom she was very fond as a child, and decides to invite her relative to visit her. Joe is very much against this plan on the grounds that relatives are a nuisance, are always in the way and cause trouble generally. Besides, Vi has shown him a picture of the cousin when she was a young girl, and rather homely and uninteresting in appearance. Vi insists she will have the cousin make a visit in spite of all Joe's objections, and decides to be unusually nice to her to offset Joe's heartless attitude.

When the cousin arrives, however, she upsets all the preconceived notions of both Joe and Vi, since she proves to be the opposite of her picture and attractive, modern and up to the minute in every particular. Joe immediately reverses himself and makes engagements for every night in the week with the cousin, becoming that relative's willing slave. This naturally does not please Vi any too well, and she grows to hate the very sight of her cousin, so that at the end of the visit she heartily wishes her God speed on her way home.

Obituary

Col. Frank B. Hawkins.

Col. Frank B. Hawkins, former resident of Washington County, died yesterday at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., according to word received in Pittsburgh. He was a son of the late Col. A. L. Hawkins, commander of the "Fighting Tenth" Pennsylvania Infantry in the Spanish-American war, and a brother of Col. Clyde E. Hawkins, of the Regular Army. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war he left Washington and Jefferson College and enlisted in the Tenth Infantry, commanded by his father, later being made a captain in Company D, recruited in Connellsville. Until recently he was stationed in the Canal Zone. He wore five medals for distinguished service in the Philippines and the World War, having been decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in the late conflict.

By Preston Schoyer.

S. Preston Schoyer, a member of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and the firm of Preston, Watt and Schoyer, died yesterday in his home at Edgeworth. He had been ill for several months. Mr. Schoyer had been a member of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange for more than 30 years and was considered an expert on local security values.

In 1912-13 Mr. Schoyer was president of the exchange and again in 1924-25 he held the same office. He also belonged to the New York curb market and was a member of the Duquesne Club. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Clara Armstrong Schoyer; his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Schoyer; a brother, Attorney William E. Schoyer and a sister, Miss Edna Schoyer.

Frederick H. Stolte.

Frederick H. Stolte, 59, died yesterday in his home at 5610 Broad street, East End. He was a member of Hallman Lodge, F. & A. M.; Duquesne Commandery, No. 72, Knights Templar, and the Bethany Lutheran Church. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dingeldein Stolte; two sons, Wilfred and Robert Stolte; a daughter, Mrs. Margaret L. Kidner, of Pittsburgh, and a brother, a sister and two grandchildren.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

THERE is a gentleman in this town who kept a private record of the weather for five long years. That was several years ago. Today he has the records and every now and then he is privileged to glance over them and recall the good old days when it was 15 degrees above zero on November 24.

His is an excellent way to fill an idle moment. By turning to Page 23 he can immediately determine that on May 12, 1922 the thermometer was as high as 55 degrees, if, of course, it actually was. We have always had our doubts.

This is how columnists work. We were having fish yesterday and we wanted ice cream for dessert, but we remembered that aged superstition about such a combination. So, scenting a scoop with that old nose for news, we guessed that less ice cream was eaten on Friday than on any other day. We asked the waitress and she said yes, Friday was the weakest ice cream day. So there you are—less ice cream is eaten on Friday than on Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, respectively, or, for that matter, irrespectively. This means YOU!

MEMBERS OF 'TRADER HORN' CAST EN ROUTE HOME FROM INKY AFRICA

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.

DIDJA hear the one about the producer who said he didn't like Shakespeare because there were too many quotes in his plays? You're darn tootin' a producer made that statement.

After an absence of six months in the column. Why not? They tell the story of the producer who could buy and sell you and me. He went into an art store and there espied a gorgeous bronze likeness of a cat. He was told it was a beautiful work of art. "All right. Send me up two!" Arthur Rankin, flick actor, now appearing in George Scarborough's play, "Bad Babies," was hitting home late 'tother morn. His car decided to have a puncture. And did. Rankin hailed a passing milkman and asked him to take him home. The milkman agreed, but Arthur set 'em up to breakfast first. That's the spirit. And that's all.

Harry Carey.

Six months of Africa jungles, flies, natives, etcetera is the hardtack diet of the flicker's bid for reality. But "Trader Horn" is set with the possible exception of a few shots to be taken in the studio. This outloud should be different. Particularly the scenery and the recorded noises.

Vilma Banky.

Having finished his featured role with Vilma Banky in "They Knew What They Wanted," Edward Robinson is dabbling with the idea of staging "The Man with Red Hair." Robinson played in this adaptation of Hugh Walpole's story in New York some time, I believe, before he starred in "The Kibitzer." On the other hand, he may put off the play and carry-on with pictures, provided the studios get a little hustle into an otherwise lethargic pre-holiday pace.

Arthur Lake's Pet Dog Dies

OBITUARY NOTE: Dead Brummer, Arthur Lake's pet dog. Age, 6 years. Funeral services from the Lake house. Bring your own handkerchiefs.

Arthur and his sister, Florence, are vacationing in New York, so they miss the rehef of a good local weep on this sad occasion. However, Mrs. Lake is going to send her children telegraphed photographs of the obsequies. The Lake boy was most powerfully fond of Brummer. Several months ago, when his sedan car was stolen, he rushed to the police station and reported first the loss of his dog. Then his car. And now, Brummer has gone. Adios, et fini.

Bebe Daniels To See Play

SCREENALITIES: Bebe Daniels plans to go to San Francisco next week. She will see a play which has been suggested as her next picture. Hence, Bebe keeps mummer than mum as to what play she goes to see. She will admit, however, that she and Ben Lyon and Mrs. May Sunday visited the local night court and witnessed justice in action. Noah Beery enjoys a bit of rest ere donning the grease paint again. This time in the Dorothy Mackaill-Frank Fay talky, "Bright Lights." Jobyna Ralston trekking over to the famous lot to lunch with Dick Arlen. With an iota of schedule luck, these youngsters anticipate vacationing to New York in January. Margaret Livingstone suggested this bureau put her name

Bebe Daniels.

Overture to a Don Quixote . . . Rivier
Concerto No. 4, G Major, Op. 58 . . . Beethoven
Symphonic Suite, "Scheherazade," Op. 35, After "A Thousand and One Nights" . . . Rimsky-Korsakoff

The Cleveland Orchestra with Nikolai Sokoloff conducting, played a happy concert in Syria Mosque last night. There was not a dull moment in the music, and if at one time the audience began to move uneasily when it heard the saxophone intrude on what it considers sacred ground, it received that music eventually with a laugh and considerable approval.

Fred Lissfelt

Sokoloff introduced this new music, an "Overture to a Don Quixote" with a trim little speech. Was he apologizing for his boldness in bringing us this new music, which, after a few hearings of the rebels in Baden-Baden, is not only sane but quite palatable? Since we are instructed that this overture bears no relation to any episode in the life of the Spanish adventurer, we can only conclude that it means to interpret the Quixotic days in which we are living.

There is backbiting between jazz and classic form, there is tipsiness and rhetoric, there is thought and tomfoolery, and it ends with a scoff. Jean Rivier came out of the war and told in his music what remained so inarticulate for most soldiers. And like an Armistice Day celebrant he gets a laugh for his story.

Preceding this spicy modern work were two delightful pieces in dance form transcribed from an eighteenth century opera of De Mondonville. They were like fanciful bergerettes played while Madame de Pompadour and her glittering court whispered sophisticated words that helped towards the revolution.

Josef Hofmann was soloist of the evening and gave one of his masterful interpretations of Beethoven. His playing of the fourth piano concerto was distinguished for the great dignity in the reading of the earlier movements, and for the jolly spirit of the finale. Hofmann concerned himself much with subduing his tone to agree with his original conception of this concerto, and with entire success.

Norman Frauenheim
The Song of the Lily . . . Whitmer

Friends of the Pittsburgh Male Chorus gathered for a well planned concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night. Harvey Gaul conducted and divided the song program between the Christmas spirit, and works of local composers, most of the songs having appeared before.

Norman Frauenheim repeated here some of the best modern music which he had us hear in his piano recital earlier in the week. It is a fine study to watch an uninitiated audience up against this puzzling new music. There is always an undercurrent of defiant mumbling like the beginnings of trouble in an unruly mob. There is occasionally a sneer, and then a few faces that show the beginnings of understanding, at least the courage to listen with interest. Mompou and Scriabin win only a few admirers, but they are the prophets of a new day for music. Frauenheim is their disciple.

Warren Kinder, M. Sterling and E. C. Renner did small solo parts. Fred Lotz and A. Bodycombe were the accompanists.

STANLEY HAS TRIANGLE, TRAPEZE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The movies have gone to "heaven" for another title this time for "Half Way to Heaven," talk film which opened yesterday in the Stanley. In theme it is a picture reminiscent of Emil Jannings' "Variety." In dramatic value it is anything but that.

Old Monster Jealousy, in the person of an aerial artist, dominates the film. Although there are no green eyes we have it on authority that the portrayer, Paul Lukas, has brown ones, there is a lot of narrow villainy. This Lukas, in his part is in love with and jealous about the feminine star of his troupe. When he sees her going around with a fellow performer, he decides to get rid of the gentleman. And he does, causing the rival to drop, as if by accident, from a trapeze.

HERO FOILS VILLAIN

They get another performer to replace the dead one, for he is dead. And this newcomer, essayed by Charles Buddy Rogers, also falls in love with the girl. All of which puts the Lukas character into another fit of jealousy and sets the "stage" for another "accidental" murder. But no such thing happens. Hero foils Villain and gets Girl in the finale.

You note the eternal triangle is much in evidence. But don't overlook the effort at newness. It is a triangle that is broken up once by the demise of one of its human angles and refilled later by the appearance of Mr. Rogers.

OUTSHINES THE "STARS"

The work of Mr. Lukas outshines that of the two featured players—Jean Arthur, who is the heroine, and Mr. Rogers. The latter looks and sounds pleasant, but is not convincing. Helen Ware amuses as a fortune teller of the I-told-you-so type and the young Nestor Aber does well with a "kid brother" part.

"Silver Blues," carrying out the "blue" idea in settings, costumes and music, is the stage show. Dick Powell croons, a derbied-and-mustached fellow goes through comic dance movements, another fellow with a saxophone makes music and steps, the Stanley Rockets perform and a feminine blues singer sings. There is an overture by David Broudy's orchestra and an organlogue by Bernie Armstrong.

Flies High

Charles Buddy Rogers flies high on a trapeze in "Half Way to Heaven," current film in Stanley.

PLAYWRIGHT APPEARS IN OWN DRAMA

Helen Menken in "The Infinite Shoeblack," with Leslie Banks, opens her legitimate engagement in the Alvin Monday evening. The play is from the pen of Norman MacOwan, famous Scot author, who also portrays one of the important roles.

A member of the famous Cabot family of Boston is a prominent player with the Theater Guild Acting Company, which is to present Bernard Shaw's satiric comedy, "Major Barbara" in the Nixon. He is Elliot Cabot, a graduate of both Harvard and Cambridge universities.

The friendship between Miss Margaret Anglin, and George Sharp dates back to the season when Miss Anglin starred in "The Woman in Bronze." George Sharp played in her support in that company. Miss Anglin will appear as guest star, for the second time this season, in "What a Woman Wants," in the Pitt next week.

VARIED CAREER

Student of music, author of high school plays and operettas, railway telegrapher, leading juvenile in several New York productions, actor in stock, musical comedy headliner and leading man in talking motion pictures. These are the steps that Joe Wagstaff took to ultimate success. Wagstaff enacts the leading male character in "A Son of Kentucky," all-talking film which come to the Aldine Monday.

Alfred Santell, director of Romance of the "Rio Grande," which comes to the Penn Monday, enjoys the distinction of having directed many successes. Some of these are "The Patent Leather Kid," "Classified," "The Gorilla" and "This Heaven." Warner Baxter, Mary Duncan and Antonio Moreno head the cast.

Eddie Cantor, Helen Morgan, Mary Eaton and Rudy Vallee appear in "Glorifying the American Girl," current on the Grand screen.

NEW FILMS TODAY

Five songs are featured in "Red Hot Rhythm," all-talking film opening in the Enright today. Alan Hale, Josephine Dunn and Kathryn Crawford are in the leading roles. Jay Mills presents "Spices of 1929" on the stage.

"Woman to Woman," starring Betty Compson, opens today as the Harris film feature. There is a stage show also.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woosley who appear in Ziegfeld's "Rio Rita," have been signed to co-star in future R-K-O productions.

"Stunning Tweed Frock"

Pattern 1794

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

This smart sports model consists of separate jacket and skirt. The pointed revers of the collar and the unusual closure of the overblouse make the frock quite different. Decidedly slimming, too, because of the feeling of length given by the button trimming and front skirt pleat. Side pleats lend additional freedom and swing to the skirt.

Design 1794 would be stunning fashioned of tweed of jersey. Mixtures of browns and beiges always look well in this type of frock. The collar and vestee may be made of satin, pique or linen, in white or beige.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires $2\frac{3}{4}$ yards of 54-inch material and $\frac{5}{8}$ yard trimming.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York City.

(PLEASE DON'T SEND PATTERN ORDERS TO PITTSBURGH)

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5—Address your request to

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Have we the power of shaping our own characters?

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 7.

Our foreign friends always accuse us of being a loud, boisterous nation. Well, if you don't think America can stand still and keep its mouth shut, you just watch it as I have when Hagen and Diegel are putting.

The papers state: "Another mail pilot found crushed on a hillside."

Well, he might have been just another pilot to that newspaper, but he was more than that to me. This same boy, Nelson, and right out of that same graveyard of aviators, Bellefonte, Pa., tried to get me through those mountains to New York one stormy night.

He set he and I down that night in a bare spot no larger than a film actress' living room, in my first forced landing and without a scratch. So you will pardon me if I look on him as a little more than "just another pilot."

He was my first hero.

Yours, WILL.

CATHERINE NOLAN, North Side, clerk: Character is formed by a person's experiences. Man has no way of controlling the experiences he has — they just happen. But a person's experience does teach him a lesson, if he's wise.

Catherine Nolan

RAYE GOLD, Schenley Heights, private secretary: I believe in free will, but a person doesn't know what form his character is going to take. That is entirely out of his control and depends upon things with which he has nothing to do.

Raye Gold

CHARLES WILL, Dormont, barber: A person has full control of himself. It is a man's own fault if his character is weak or strong, good or bad. He can develop himself and his character. If he fails to do this, along the right lines, no one is to blame but himself.

Charles Will

SERGT. BERNARD W. MUITER, Herron Hill, U. S. Army: Some have and some haven't. Man is born with some will power. If he has enough he can control the development of his character. If he hasn't, then his control over his character is about as strong as a rooky's control over his feet.

Sergt. Muiter

DOROTHY KREGER, Squirrel Hill, bookkeeper: It depends on your environment. The environment in which you grow up controls the character which develops. The human being has no control at all over his character development, for good or bad.

Dorothy Kreger

MRS. MARY PATTERSON, North Side, Housewife: It all depends on you. You're born with some will power—everybody is—and you can develop it if you want to. If you don't, it's your own fault. Will power is the thing you have to have to develop character. You have a chance in life and you can make good in developing character if you have a strong will power.

Mrs. Patterson

LITTLE FROCKS OF COLORED DOTTED SWISS TRIMMED WITH FRENCH VALENCIENNES LACE
Life Like and Life Size
The MAE STARR DOLL COPYRIGHTED & LICENSED 1927

THE DOLL LADY SAYS:

I want little girls who live in Pittsburgh and vicinity to have the most wonderful and accomplished doll girl in the whole world.

She actually sings, and prays at night or at any time you want her to and she is not bashful but modest.

She is as large as a real live baby. She will keep you company when you are lonesome, or she will help you entertain your friends with her singing and reciting.

She has real human hair to brush, has two front teeth and shows her little pink tongue.

She is irresistible, all dressed up in pretty little frocks of colored dotted Swiss, trimmed with French Valenciennes lace, ribbon and fancy rose buds, and dainty panty combination undergarments, all of which can be taken off when you want to put her to bed.

Colored silk socks and fancy shoes cover her little toes in size number twos.

Then the last thing at night, her eyes closed tight, she says her prayers and forgets all her cares.

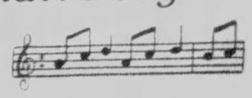
Yes, even the grown-ups say "She's marvelous," and want one, too.

Don't wait—for I want you to own one of these marvelous dolls with genuine human voice.

I'll gladly tell you how easy it is to get one without a cent of cost.

The Doll Lady

"The Mae Starr Dolly"



She Sings

Rock-a-bye-baby upon the tree top,
When the wind blows the cradle will rock,
When the bough breaks the cradle will fall,
And down will come cradle, baby and all.

She Recites

Little Boy Blue, come blow your horn!
The sheep's in the meadow, the cow's in the corn,
Where's the little boy who looks after the sheep?
He's under the haystack, fast asleep.
Will you wake him? No, not I,
For if you should he will surely cry.

She Prays

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep,
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take,
God bless Papa, God bless Mamma,
God bless everybody and make me a good girl.
Amen.

Miss Pat

Bryce Produces Ransom Money to Save His Grandchild

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn, young and beautiful, is in love with Guy Elliott, handsome aviator. Guy is perfecting a plane which old William Bryce is to manufacture. Pat meets Bryce's widowed daughter-in-law and wonders if Guy is intrigued by Barbara's beauty. Bryce sends Tom Burns, a workman, to jail for attempted robbery. Pat has gay times with Lee Templeton, young college student. Pat's father is stricken with pneumonia and dies. The family considers giving up the big house because of the heavy expenses. Guy, hoping to help the Dawns, tries to urge Bryce to manufacture his plane. He learns the old man has lost a fortune. Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest. Guy, fearing Bryce may use the money to cover his own losses, tries to recover it. Bryce reluctantly surrenders the bonds, swearing vengeance on Guy. He discontinues financing the airplane factory, but holds Guy to his contract which prevents another concern from selling Guy's plane. Billie Bryce is kidnaped. The same day a stranger makes off with Guy's plane with Pat in it. Guy disappears, the third person to vanish. Detectives find a few of Billie's hairs in Guy's abandoned automobile. Bryce receives a ransom note saying Billie will die unless $20,000 is paid. The first theories of the kidnaping are changed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII.

FOR 30 hours after that first note, Barbara and William Bryce kept watch. Each hour added to their torment until their very veins dripped with it. Where was their little dark-eyed boy? Who had taken him? What were they doing to him now? Fearful answers came. Weak with dread, they waited for the silence to open and give out some word of the child.

Barbara sat with her palms riveted together and her mind in a swoon with the pictures conjured of her son. She heard him call. Calling and calling down endless dark tortured nights. She rushed, distracted from the house—hurried up one street, down another. Blindly. Crazily. Sometimes she went to the park and beat her fists against that tree near which he had vanished.

One brutal vision assailed her. It came again and again though she fought with all her strength to shut it from her mind. She would see the little boy tied up in some dark hole.

He called to her, his eyes full of reproach. Then a shadowy figure emerged. It raised a club. The child drew down, screaming with terror. He cried out: "Oh, don't—oh, don't!" But the club laid on him until his cries grew still.

"I'm already mad," she thought, frightened. And went weeping back to the house to ask, cowed: "Has word come yet? Oh—not yet?"

Finally she went up to William Bryce. She laid a cold hand on his. For a long while she stood so, her eyes closed. Finally, as though she forced the words from a will of terrible reluctance: "Guy Elliott has NOT done this."

She asked pitifully:

"Do you still think he may be responsible?"

He took a long, chugging breath.

"It seems the most reasonable theory. We've run down every other chance. Every possible suspect has been watched and checked."

The girl nodded. Ah, yes—even that poor little maid of hers whom she had suspected of stealing her jewels—even that chauffeur of Bryce's who had broken into the cellar and made off with the champagne.

"And that wild fellow—that Tom Burns?"

"Has been at his work every hour. All Monday when Billy was taken, Tom Burns was at his work table. He hasn't missed an hour since. His house was searched. But God—" said Bryce, half sobbing. "I'm glad it's not he—glad anyway for that!"

"But why, if Guy wished only to force you, should he hold him after you've broadcast through the land that he could have his patents—that he may return and we won't prosecute? Oh, father," she went on, suddenly recalling her last meeting with Guy and the way he had played with Billy, the way he had kneeled on the floor and thrown the stick to the dog, "We are mad to lull ourselves with this false hope. We don't want to think of Billy harmed, and so we fancy him safe in Guy's hands. What if some fiend has done this?"

Bryce shoved away the thought:

"Remember, the woman said Billy was laughing. He seemed eagerly. He would not follow a stranger. You know this. Perhaps Elliott told him he was taking him for that ride in the plane. Or to play with his dog——"

They repeated things like this. When one was almost in collapse, the other took the torch and lit it anew with hope.

Finally on Friday night the second note was given into Bryce's woefully shaking hands. It was delivered by the Western Union. Accompanying the message was a square package.

The letter was free of all dramatic flourish. No skull, no bloodmarks or crosses. It was typewritten on a sheet of plain white paper to which was pinned a large card with a diagram of the spot where the ransom must be placed. The diagram was clear and explicit.

This was the message:

"Take your $20,000 turn it in to bills of twenty dollar denomination. Do NOT take the numbers of these bills. You are not dealing with an amateur like Hickman. Any attempt to find the writer of this will end in failure but the attempt will be strenuously revenged. Now move quickly. You have exactly two hours.

"Follow the directions minutely and you will just make connections. You haven't time to notify the police nor to investigate the locality where you are to place the ransom. Fail in any of these directions and you, William Bryce, are not the only one who shall sweat blood.

"The child is safe at present. He has not been hurt. He cries for his mother. It is up to you to say whether he shall ever see his mother again and whether you shall ever again hold his living form in your arms.

"Here are you directions—

"1—Turn the $20,000 into bills as specified.

"Put these bills into the box which accompanies this note. Tie the box securely with the cord you will find enclosed. Do not wrap the box.

"Get in your machine and come alone to the spot diagrammed on the card attached to this sheet. The spot is easily found if you carefully note directions.

"Place the box just within the abandoned flume shown in the digram. Time yourself so that you place the box there just at midnight. Leave immediately.

"5—Do not show this note or package to the police.

"6—If every letter of these directions is followed your grandson will be returned unharmed."

The diagram ordered Bryce to take the ocean shore road to Salada Beach. Drive through the town to the big white barn on the left of the road. Park the machine here. Just south of the barn he would find a foot path. The foot path was marked with two small posts. Follow this path up the hill until he came to a fence. Then follow the fence about 500 yards. He would reach a level spot surrounded with trees. And here, just where the fence ended, he would find the mouth of the abandoned flume. Just within this let him place the money.

William Bryce read this and whipped out a watch. Three minutes past ten. Beads of perspiration burst out on his forhead. He reached quickly for the square package.

A hand restrained him. Bryce started as though he felt a ghost. "Don't touch that box. It may be a bomb!"

Bryce doubled the sheet of paper with a frantic appeal to the detective standing at his shoulder.

"You're not following me! I want the child! Let the kidnaper escape. I'm going alone!"

He undid the package. It contained a leather box with a strong handle. It resembled one of those vanity boxes that were the vogue for women about five years ago. Within the box was a ball of heavy twine.

Bryce tied up the package, thrust the diagram in his pocket.

"Now listen," he said to the detective who was secreted all these days in the Bryce home, "don't have your men responsible for a death. Let me rescue my child. At least give him the one break."

"Good God," he went on, almost unable to form syllables. "Think of the mother. Now I'm going. I have to go down town to get these bills. The fellow is right—I'll have to move quickly."

Barbara Bryce stood at her father's door, her cheek pressed against his rough sleeve.

Now she moved over to the detective and put their hands on his shoulders. These hands had a fierce grip. Her eyes were terrible to look upon.

"You have a child," she said hoarsely. "Think of your own son. Let my father go alone. You MUST and SHALL let him go alone."

The man nodded. "Yes, let him go alone."

It was half past eleven when William Bryce found the two posts indicating the footpath. He went along this into impenetrable dark. The moon was not yet up and he plunged on, breathless, holding a flashlight near the ground.

He saw the fence and could have cried out in relief. Up the hill. And now plowing through thick underbrush. Dimly before him the flashlight revealed the trees. And abruptly the fence came to an end.

He looked at his watch. It lacked 10 minutes of midnight. He waited. He heard the crackle of a twig and jumped violently. Only an animal stirring in the brush.

Midnight. He went up to the flume and laid the box just within the mouth.

And stumbling half mad, hurried away. When he reached home there was a message telling where Billy Bryce would be found.

"BIG—GAME HUNTER"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THERE he is, king of the big game, himself a man-hunter, a pretty critter. A breath of a wave in the grass! The rumor of a rustle in the high leaves! Stalking you from over there. A whizz at cropping on your neck from above.

You've heard about him. Beautiful and terrible. Meaning to go after Careers and Money and Pleasure and such game, and to go after it alone, you meant never to have anything to do with this fella, no way; neither hunt him, nor be hunted by him.

But unless you stay in your own yard all your life—and miss a lot doing it, you're by way of having an encounter with him any-ole, some-ole time. And no one can prepare you for it except with plenty of advice which you forget the moment you sight his cute and hypnotizing eyes; no one can predict whether you will emerge from it calling him a nice old sweetie, running for your life, tagging after him for life—mesmerized, lugging him home by the wings—a victim himself, or yourself all clawed up and good for nothing any more.

A thrill or fear; a chill of awe. The big game! The biggest still in the world—to hear the world tell it. At least for a woman.

Ladies there be who always come home with his scalp, and are never scratched on pink skin, or tender feeling, themselves. But don't come here asking how it's done. We know there is such ammunition, but we don't know its name.

What to pack so you won't get hurt in the game of love!

You have heard people try to explain in print what CHARM is. But could they ever say? Not never.

Big Game Hunters are born—not made—and even their own mammas contemplate them without understanding. —NELL BRINKLEY.

Lillian Believes That Owen Is Involved in Plot

"HOW long will he keep it up?"

Lillian repeated my query slowly, and I guessed that she herself had not yet fully completed the interpretation she had put upon Charles Owen's activities, as disclosed to us by Marion's garrulous letter.

"Until this affair of Prince George's has been settled one way or the other," she said at last. "Of course he expects it to culminate in only one thing, the assassination of the young heir to the throne of Trees, and I am sure he has planned to keep up this bombardment of Carolyn and Marion with remembrances until he receives the news of the prince's death. Then he figures he can stop, for he will have established an effectual alibi."

"I don't quite get it," I said, voicing a doubt which had been hovering in my mind. "Mr. Owen might buy all those things in one place, might he not, and have them mailed from the cities from which he has sent them?"

"True for you, oh Sherlockia!" Lillian gibed, "but I'm sure he isn't depending upon those postal marks entirely. Depend upon it, in the places where he has made those purchases, he has so impressed himself upon the people in the shop that he will have ample witnesses as to his presence there upon the dates he wishes. Then with the corroborative evidence of the postal marks, the letters he has written his niece, an' her testimony and Marion's concerning the receipt of the things, he will have a bullet-proof alibi."

"Remember!" she went on, "he isn't dodging the police now. If he were, if there was a dragnet out for him, he couldn't leave a trail like that. He's simply keeping ahead of things, in a mighty foxy way, if you ask me."

I nodded, for I shared her opinion of the ability possessed by Samuel Brixton's half-brother.

"Of course, I may be all wrong," Lillian went on, "and he may have nothing to do with this attempt upon Georges' life. But I can't help believing that he sent word of Georges' whereabouts to the gang I—wish—I—didn't believe it."

Her voice was like a shudder, and I knew why the idea of Charles Owen's possible complicity in the attempt to murder Prince Georges was so repugnant to her. She could not bear the thought of her idolized, carefully-sheltered daughter being brought into even such innocuous contact with the desperate man as his quasi-relationship to Marion's roommate had entailed.

"For my part, I think you're painfully constructing a mountain out of the well-known molehill," I said with smiling mendacity, for I swiftly had decided that there was no shadow of use in encouraging Lillian to hold this belief, which, however, I secretly shared. "You haven't a shadow of real proof that the man even knows Prince Georges is in any danger of attack. It isn't like you to jump to conclusions. Why don't you reserve judgment upon Mr. Owen?"

"I've rarely known you to be 'mistook in your judgments,'" she said, with a wan little smile, "therefore I'm going to stop worrying my head about Charles Owen. But—I ought to show this letter to Harry—don't you think?"

"Of course," I answered, but even as I uttered the words I was frantically wondering how I could get hold of Harry Underwood before she had an opportunity to show him the letter. If I could warn him to add a pretended disbelief in Charles Owen's activities to the doubt I just had given her, I was sure her mind would be at ease concerning the man, unless, of course, some unforeseen development should definitely connect him with the attack upon Prince Georges.

"Do you need me any longer?" I asked. "I must get over into our apartment as soon as possible. Dicky has been unpacking over there, and you know what that means."

"Being married to the Dicky-bird's best friend and soulmate in disorder, I have a faint idea," she said. "Go on with whatever's on your mind. I've unburdened mine to you and feel much eased. I think I'll take a little nap to celebrate."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Woman—and the Other Woman

A WOMAN is often the cause of a man's downfall—and always the cause of his sprucing UP.

HELEN ROWLAND

No woman can do anything with her husband, as long as some other woman "feels sorry for him."

A "good fellow" is one who can always be counted on to trim the Christmas tree at the Lodge or the Town Hall—while his wife does that little job for the children at home.

No woman appreciates her husband's brilliant versatility until she sees him using the vibrator on his head, eating his morning grapefruit and reading his newspaper, all at the same time.

It is always a surprise to a divorcee, to discover how long it takes her to get over the habit of listening for a man's key in the latch, evenings.

In love, a woman is always wanting to "get at the root of things;" but a man is satisfied to gather the blossoms and let things take care of themselves.

Some men never settle down to the jog-trot of matrimony until after 50—and then, it is usually their sciatica, or their acidosis, rather than their commonsense, that forces them to slacken the pace.

A woman will have to be awfully careful about the neckties and haberdashery she gives her husband this Christmas; because, owing to the slump, he may insist on WEARING them.

Most women will argue even with the DICTIONARY, or the JURY. It takes 12 good men and true to have the last word with a woman.

Feather Beds

Never sun feather beds or pillows. Air them thoroughly on a windy day in a cool place. Sun draws the oil and gives the feathers a rancid odor.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

For Sweet Sixteen

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If the salad course is not served with the meat and potatoes, should it be served after the soup?

2. How and where should the napkin be left when one leaves the table at a friend's house? At a restaurant?

3. I live in a small town. Should I ask my escort in when we return from the movies at about 9:30?

4. I have been asked to correspond with a boy who does not live in my home town. Is this correct?

SWEET SIXTEEN.

NO, it should be served after the meat course.

2. In both places, where you are to be for only one meal, the napkin is placed "as is" unfolded, on the left of the plate. And of coure there is no reason why you should not put it on the right, if you wish. The point is that, in a restaurant, you know that the napkin will not be used again, and so you do not fold it. In the house of a friend when you are having only one meal, it is impolite to fold the napkin, since that would imply that you thought that there was a possibility of its being used again.

3. This is a fairly early hour, and it would be proper for you to ask him in then, if the family plans permit. If you know that your family or some member of it will be "receiving" then, it would be especially hospitable for you to ask him in. As far as the hour is concerned, you could not be criticized for extending such an invitation, but an invitation of this kind depends also on the "schedule" of the household.

4. Yes. The boy should write to you first.

Wedding Announcement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you kindly advise me as to the correct form of printing wedding announcements where both of the parents are deceased? Also, there are no brothers in the family. M.

IF THE bride has an aunt and uncle, it would be excellent form for them to issue the announcements. Or an older sister, married or unmarried.

If there is no one who can make the announcement, then the couple will have to announce it themselves, and this is quite correct:

Mr. Allen Marchbanks
and Miss Dorothy Jones have the honor of announcing their marriage on Wednesday, the first of June, nineteen hundred and twenty seven,
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

In Questionable Taste

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I'm employed as a private secretary. My employer is being married shortly. Since it is a small affair, only the immediate family are invited to the church, do you think it is proper for me to give him a gift? Something small and yet to display good taste. I'm well acquainted with his fiancee. If you think it's proper, will you be so good as to advise me what to give him. G. F.

UNDER no circumstances should you give a gift to your employer—a wedding gift is always sent to the bride-to-be. And usually it gives the impression of being forced for an employe to give a gift to the fiancee of her employer. I doubt if it would be very good taste for you to give this gift.

Horoscopes

Sunday, December 8

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows conflicting conditions, especially in personal affiliations. Affairs of the clergy may prosper and scientific or experimental activities may advance, but there is a general menace of the secret and subtle.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which subtlety, deception or fraud may attempt to undermine worthy effort and the fruition of original talents and research. Be on guard against deception, fraud and financial loss.

A child born on this day should be original, inventive, industrious and responsible, but subject to treachery and secret enmities.

Monday, December 9

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is very unfavorable for those in the employ of others. There may be misunderstanding, friction or open quarrels and vituperation, unless a firm curb be kept on tongue and temper. This hostility applies generally to all the affairs of the day.

Those whose birthday it is should determine to maintain complete mastery of themselves in action and speech during the year lest they put in jeopardy their employment and progress in all associations.

A child born on this day should be given early discipline and guidance in self-control and responsibility.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Neatness Usually a Sign of Efficiency

"CLEANLINESS is next to Godliness," is an old saying that has more truth than fiction in it. With all their bad habits, even the ancients realized the value of cleanliness. Never has the world had greater facilities to aid in this so necessary habit of cleanliness than it has today.

DR. COPELAND

I saw the other day the heading to a newspaper article. It read, "Landing a Job with Soap and Water." The story went on to tell how a busy employment expert read the character of applicants for positions from their appearance. He complained particularly of untidiness among some of the girls seeking gainful positions.

What are the standards set up by the employer today? Without exception we might say that preference is given to the individual who is well-groomed, tidy, clean! Ability? Yes, certainly that is very necessary, but invariably the appearance is a pretty good test of character and of ability.

One employer said: "In selecting prospective employes, we of course aim to take only those who appear to be naturally clean and neat. Untidiness in dress and personal appearance generally denotes a person careless and slipshod in other respects. The neater employes in the office and factory are the more efficient."

The girl whose clothes are neat, not necessarily expensive, and whose face is made clean before make-up is applied has a good chance to win. Well arranged and shining hair tells of immaculate care. This will be noted, as well as hands that are clean and well-kept. A person of this description will receive notice wherever she is.

The young man whose every movement denotes ability and keenness of mind almost unfailingly presents a good appearance as to dress and cleanliness. He is the person, too, who gets the most out of life at every turn.

Every facility is given us today to promote cleanliness and good health. You cannot have health and cleanliness, the one without the other. They are twins. Never before has the world had so many aids to cleanliness. There are private and public baths, spick and span offices, department stores and factories in which to work. There is every contrivance to make the home clean and livable.

Given fresh air and sunlight, clean hands and good health you cannot help but radiate the right sort of personality. These are worth much more than dollars and cents. They give security in the work you have to do, in the friends you make and the home that may be yours.

Aren't these all worth while?

Answers to Health Queries

W. F. S. Q.—What do you advise me to do for my hair, which is very thin?

A.—I would advise frequent shampooing with a good pure soap and warm water and the use of a stimulating ointment.

IRVING S. Q.—What causes my jaw to make a clicking sound every time I open it? I have noticed this for the past three years.

A.—This may be due to faulty position and faulty movement of the lower jaw. Sometimes it is due to loss or disuse of the back teeth or the presence of faultily constructed bridges, crowns or fillings, which cause the jaw to be thrown forward too far.

* * *

MRS. A. L. Q.—My baby is a month and a half old. How much water should he have between feedings?

A.—As much as he seems to want. Do not force the child to take any more than he wants.

M. T. K. W. Q.—What causes burning feet when the shoes are large and comfortable? What do you advise for soft corns?

A.—May be due to a circulatory disturbance or to undue strain on the feet, perhaps due to long standing. Bathing the feet in water to which a little powdered alum has been added should be soothing and restful.

M. H. Q.—What causes shortness of breath?

A.—Shortness of breath may be due to asthma, bronchitis, or indigestion, as well as heart weakness.

* * *

Miss M. S. Q.—What causes pains in the thighs when weather is rainy? Can it be rheumatism?

A.—Possibly.

BOOZE RAIDERS HIT 3 PLACES

Prohibition agents yesterday raided the New Terminal Hotel at 615 Webster avenue, seized large quantities of liquor and arrested Ray Gioneanalli, 29, they reported.

Fifty-three pints of whisky, 14 bottles of gin and five gallons of wine were found in a bedroom on the third floor, and a partly-filled bottle of gin was discovered behind the bar on the second floor, according to the agents.

John Smith, alias Frank Reilly, 35, was arrested in a raid on a club at 4044 Liberty avenue, in which a small quantity of moonshine was confiscated, agents declared.

Raiding a saloon at 1407 Penn avenue, the agents reported the seizure of moonshine and the arrest of John Malone, 65. Malone was released on his own recognizance.

OIL FIRM SEEKS TAX REFUND

The Big Lake Oil Company, with offices in the Benedum-Trees Building, filed a suit in the United States District Court against D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue in the Pittsburgh district, by which it seeks to recover $1,-565,874.84 alleged to have been illegally collected as income tax for the years 1924 to 1927, inclusive. It was said to be the largest claim ever instituted here for return of income tax.

The sum involved represents $16,525.87, paid for 1924; $482,-689.45, for 1925; $810,892.15, in 1926 and $255,768.37 in 1927, according to the statement of claim. Profits were derived from sale of oil and gas produced by the plaintiff under oil and gas permits and leases from the state of Texas upon land set aside by the state for endowment, maintainence, support and benefit of the University of Texas, the plaintiff avers.

In defense of the suit Collector Heiner is represented by Attorney John A. McCann, special representative in Pittsburgh of general counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Grand Jury Indicts Editor in Libel Case

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 7.—E. Lee Combs, of East Pittsburgh, charged by Mayor George Bob Wick with libel in the publication of pre-election charges made in the Butler County Farmer, a weekly paper said to be promoted by Combs, was indicted by the grand jury. December 12 was fixed as the date for the trial. Combs is under $500 bond, provided after he had spent three weeks in the Butler County jail.

Ex-Burgess Pollock Of Charleroi Dies

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 7.—William D. Pollock, 69, former burgess of Charleroi and for the past 30 years superintendent of the MacBeth-Evans Glass Company, Charleroi plant, is dead in his home. He was a native of Indiana. He is survived by his widow and three sons.

Real Estate

Five brick dwellings at 6517-25 Northumberland street, Fourteenth Ward, have been sold by Sadie Edelstein to Celia L. Rabinowitz. The lot is 90x90 feet. The deal also includes three frame garages on 45x120 feet in Severn street.

Three dpulex dwellings and six garages on 60x126 feet at 820-24 North Beatty street, Eleventh Ward, have been sold by Jacob Laderman to Samuel Horovitz.

A new real estate organization known as the Beaver County Real Estate Board was formed last night at Beaver Falls. The new board combines the real estate interests of the Beaver valley. James C. Wilson, past president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, and Harry S. Harte, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association, were present.

A frame dwelling at 4820 Broad street, East End, and a frame dwelling at the rear, has been sold by Annie Wood to Sarah Siebert. The lot is 24x100 feet.

The Director of the Department of Public Works reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

By order of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

CHARLES M. KING, Mayor.
BERTRAM SCHAFF, Director.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance Docket, which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on November 18, 1929, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys of parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 6620

AN ORDINANCE Widening The Boulevard of the Allies in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Bates street to a point 185.51 feet east of Halket street, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that the Boulevard of the Allies in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Bates street to a point 185.51 feet east of Halket street, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width to be taken for public use for such purpose, all of the property hereinafter described and described as portions "G" and "H," respectively, to-wit:

PORTION "G"

Beginning at the intersection of the present southerly line of the Boulevard of the Allies (formerly Wilmot street) as widened to a width of 80.0 feet, with the westerly line of Bates street, said point of beginning being also the northeast corner of Lot No. 1 in the Plan of Lots laid out by Thomas Thomas; thence extending along the said southerly line of the Boulevard of the Allies, as widened, south 85° 51' 30" east 185.51 feet to a point; thence westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 2360.0 feet, a central angle of 2° 26' 30", a chord bearing south 87° 38' 30" west for an arc distance of 100.36 feet to a point of compound curve; thence westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 110.0 feet, a central angle of 39° 34' 40" and a chord bearing south 71° 23' 55" west for an arc distance of 75.98 feet to the present northerly line of Zulema street; thence along the present northerly line of Zulema street north 88° 25' 10" east 222.10 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said The Boulevard of the Allies in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Bates street to a point 185.51 feet east of Halket street, to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this Ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, on November 18, 1929, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 6619

AN ORDINANCE Widening Zulema street in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh at the intersection of Coltart avenue and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby to be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Zulema street in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, at the intersection of Coltart avenue be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes the following described property, to-wit:

REPORTORIAL INACCURACY

THE November 30 issue of the Newyorker carries in "Talk of the town" several paragraphs on Baldy Jack Rose, the surviving principal of the fascinating Rosenthal murder case. Unfortunately, all of the paragraphs are in error.

Instead of dwelling in a Philadelphia suburb, Jack Rose makes his home, as for the past decade or so, in the outskirts of Norwalk, Conn., where he lives with Mrs. Rose and two adopted children. In addition to operating two of the biggest rotisseries along the Post Road, Rose dabbles in real estate and has come to be regarded as a model citizen in the Connecticut community. He New Havens to Newyork almost daily.

On Thanksgiving Day Rose supplied every one of the inmates of Naramake Home, the Norwalk poorhouse, with turkey dinner, including all the fixings. A quiet, reticent man, he leads a peaceful existence and is living a new life.

CAPSULE CRITICISM

Added to our Crisp Cracks from Critical Cusses dep't: "Her songs aroused little appreciation for the audience was as cold as a Rothstein clue," and "the show is as dull as a Scotchman's razor."

NIFTY

IT was Paul Hyde Bonner, the tome collector, who finally chose the name "Chez Vous" for Mrs. Ruth (New Yorker) Fleishmann's and Margaretta Schuyler's interior decorating shop on East 58th St.

But there are some who think his suggestion was not half so clever as that of Alexander Woollcott, who, when asked by Ruth what to put on the shingle outside of the shoppe, promptly replied, "We fix flats!"

PUN MY SOUL

"On Wall Street," Izzy Elinson revises it, "fools margin where angels fear to trade."

GIRL WITH A RED HAT

A flame-red hat upon your head
An angel's smile to off-show it;
I close my eyes to that red-flame hat
And seek the red lips below it.

But I often wonder, holding close
Your unbound love, munificent,
If it isn't just that tinge of scarlet
That makes you, dear, magnificent.

OLD GOLD STUFF

HUNGRY for attention the easily-bruised Michael Gold, who writes difficult-to-appreciate plays, finds some comfort in the columns of the New Masses to express himself about the dramatic critics who no like his stuff. This is a semi-annual complaint from Mr. Gold, who merely repeats himself every time one of his shows lays an egg, and he frets in this manner: "J. Brooks Atkinson, of the Times, maintains an honesty and dignity of purpose that are worthy of respect. He never descends to the wisecrack, that last refuge of the inferior mind. . . The rest are time-savers, the sycophantic slaves of a commercial machine. . . One cannot be too harsh with them; they themselves have no decency or honor in their attitude to playwrights. It is only the large commercial producers, with lots of money for advertising, who are treated respectfully by them. . . . When a small pioneering group attempts to do something they become a lynching party. Ah, what fun! What fun to assassinate the brave, the new, the friendless!"

Ah, rats!

GHOSTS

THE moonbeams strike against the windowpane,
The rustle of the dead leaves make me start.
Oh! could it be a case of nerves and gin,

BLUNDER

Even those of us who put things in the papers stumble now and then by jotting down something that is in poor taste (so he admits it, huh?). But what we started out to report was the boomerang a well-known star hurled at himself in Boston recently. The actor tripped as he came on the stage and after picking himself up he clowned: "Guess I'll have to visit the Malden Shrine."

The untimely crack was appropriately met with a thud of silence, but the entertainer's troubles were not over. Every editor in the town immediately assigned a reporter to ask the actor one question: "Just what was your idea in saying that?" And he admitted that it was a feeble and foolish remark.

But the show will shut sooner than supposed. You can't clown with religion or faith, you know.

AS IF YOU DIDN'T KNOW

THAT men who bluff can forge ahead
Much faster than their truthful brothers;
That to relieve an aching head
Try any bosom but your mother's.

THE MORNING MAIL

"Dear Winchell," writes Edward I. Plottle, of Scranton, Pa., "it might be a good idea to include in your 'Things I Never Knew 'Till Now' column the fact that the word 'pediculous,' which you have used nine times in the past two weeks and never before that, is not to be found in any of the standard dictionaries."

Funk & Wagnall's Standard Dictionary in our editorial rooms (on page 1821) offers this synonym: "Pediculous—lousy."

GREEN PRAISES SEAL SALE

The Christmas seal sale being conducted here by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh has received the indorsement of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. In a letter to the league here, Mr. Green pays tribute to work done by the league.

"The Christmas seal sale," he wrote, "provides an opportunity to place upon every communication of the holiday period a symbol of the spirit of good between men. The anti-tuberculosis is one of constructive purpose and method. Everyone can contribute in accord with his ability and I hope that wage earners will do their part."

Lost, Deer Hunter Walks All Night In Woods

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7.—Confused by the huge wilderness in which he was tracking deer, John Zimmerman, of Somerset, wandered all night in the woods near Donegal, Westmoreland County, before he was found by a searching party.

Zimmerman suffered slightly from exposure and exhaustion, but was otherwise unharmed.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

ALONZO INDUCES RUTH TO DEFY PROTECTOR'S WARNING

PALACES OF SIN: Although Ruth Willmore had applauded when the author warned against tasting champagne, a few minutes elapsed until her resistance was broken down, and there she was on society's skids. And the first time she had been invited out, too! Here, according to the text, is what happened—

"When Mrs. Gayfrock reached Ruth with her bottle, the little lady said, 'Please Maam, I do not care for wine or champagne.' Then Alonzo, that arch schemer, poked fun at her until Ruth yielded to his entreaties until I saw this virtuous Michigan beauty sip her first drink—not one but several. Her face became flushed and within an hour I actually beheld this fresh 'lily of the valley' unblushingly place her foot upon the knee of her escort to have him tie her dainty slipper."

There you are!

Kellogg Peace Pact, Perpetual Breeder of War, Menaces Nation

The Kellogg peace pact is not a peace pact after all, but a war pact containing the seeds of war; a perpetual breeder of war; and certain by breeding war to involve this nation in quarrels with which it has no concern and with which it would not otherwise be involved.

Designed by well meaning but sentimental American "statesmen" to promote the cause of peace, it demonstrates in its first real test that it does not promote peace, but on the contrary disturbs peace.

And it disturbs peace so effectually that the United States is drawn into a disturbance on the opposite side of the globe in which not one American interest is at stake and not one American citizen is imperiled.

The gullibility of our statesmen and the pious game of bluff played by the nations of Europe and Asia in signing this absurd document are now revealed to everyone with eyes to see and intelligence to read.

We will not send an army to Manchuria to enforce the pact. That would be war which the pact itself renounces. England and France, while giving lip service to the pact, will not enforce it. As for Germany, Italy and Japan, they would not even join us in our officious meddling between Russia and China, which were already negotiating their differences when we intervened.

With a single gesture the Soviet government of Russia calls on this government for a showdown. And our head servants at Washington are discovered without even a solitary "deuce spot" in their hands.

Painful as it is to American pride, the American people can congratulate themselves that the hollow mockery of the Kellogg pact has thus been exposed a few short months after it was solemnly and unctuously proclaimed to the world. And they can thank the Soviet government for puncturing this inflated balloon of international gas with a single pen stroke.

The Hearst newspapers hold no brief for the Soviet government. The Hearst newspapers have asserted year in and year out that the Soviet was a greater instrument of tyranny than even the czarist government that it supplanted.

But for once the Soviet government is right. And the fair-minded American people will be the first to admit that it is right and that our own head servants at Washington are wrong. For, as Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, tells Secretary Stimson:

> "The Soviet government can not forbear expressing amazement that the government of the United States, which by its own will has no official relations with the Soviet, deems it possible to apply to it with advice and counsel."

That, in diplomatic language, is a broad hint to the United States to mind its own business in a dispute which does not concern it. Had this nation followed the wise advice of George Washington to keep clear of foreign jealousies and entanglements, there would have been no occasion for this justly deserved rebuke.

Never since 1800 has American prestige been at so low an ebb in the eyes of the world. And never since 1800 have other nations been able secretly to laugh in their sleeve at our predicament as they are laughing today.

And with this single example of the absurdity of paper pacts and promises before us, the administration proposes "further economies" in our Army and Navy, leaves our air force without funds, and announces to the world that it will push us into the League of Nation's World Court, in which we shall be out-voted eleven to one.

The American people can now choose to follow the advice of the father of their country, which has served this nation in storm and stress for over a century and a quarter, or they can embark on the course charted for them by their modern "statesmen" and steer the ship of state on the rocks of internationalism.

The American people face the choice of national security or international entanglement. The decision is up to them.

The sudden collapse of the imposing Kellogg pact over a petty border brawl in a remote corner of Asia is a warning to America as timely as it is humiliating.

Explosions in Munhall Call for Deep Probe

Two disastrous explosions in Munhall in successive days, the second being in a store adjoining the postoffice that was wrecked with fatal results the preceding day, is an indication that the inquiry under way by officials should be most thorough, and that every precaution be taken to prevent the blasts from extending into a series. It is more than a coincidence that the second explosion occurred in the store that was used as a first-aid station on the day of the first. Incidentally, the work of caring for the injured should not pass unnoticed.

Reporters proverbially are hard-boiled. Not unfeeling, but the nature of their work makes them not easily impressionable. Which makes a real tribute the unanimous praise of those of the Sun-Telegraph staff on duty at the Munhall postoffice explosion relative to the efficiency of the physicians, nurses, hospital arrangements and similar factors observed in caring for the injured.

Since neither those concerned, nor the public, which should be interested, could hear the high compliments expressed, we take this means to pass them along, and to congratulate the doctors and their aids on having done their work so well in the midst of such great exictement.

Special sympathy will be extended in the case of the proprietor of the drug store wrecked yesterday. After personally caring for many injured in the postoffice blast, fate decreed that he should be compensated for his work of mercy by being made a victim himself.

Safer Air Route Than 'Hell's Stretch' Needed

Frequency of mishaps to fliers on the aerial mail route from the East to Cleveland, the latest of which was the one that resulted in the death of Pilot Nelson, causes wonder why official air circles in Harrisburg and Washington do not interest themselves in a route that would be more safe than that now followed. The extremely mountainous part of our state, although possessing scenic grandeur, offers little in the way of harbor for fliers who are in straits.

It is stated that the route from Bellefonte to Cleveland is known among fliers as "Hell's stretch." That is significant. There are miles and miles of mountains where a forced landing means not an open field but tree tops.

"An airway," according to a Department of Commerce report, "is an air route between air traffic centers which is over terrain BEST SUITED for an intermediate landing, with landing fields at intervals, equipped with aids to air navigation, and a communicating system for transmission of information pertaining to the operation of aircraft." The capitals in the words, "best suited," are ours.

Men interested in aviation contend that a better route, and only slightly longer, could be established if the mountain crossings were made at a more southerly point, where the valleys are wider and a large part of the mountains themselves are under cultivation. Any open field will do for a forced landing, but unbroken forests, miles and miles of them, and forbidding rocky "slashings" on precipitous slopes, are sufficient reason for calling such a terrain "Hell's stretch."

It has been only a few weeks since a lost flier crashed in that infernal (for aviators) region. His plane burned, but, fortunately, the pilot escaped death and was found wandering in the wilds after searchers had spent many hours looking for him.

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

DO YOU spend much of your time in thinking out ways to make money without effort?

Does your planning ever include methods that are not strictly honest?

You expose yourself because you know others have accumulated considerable by schemes which are at least a bit shady.

You think there is nothing wrong about practicing a sharp deal upon a man of normal intelligence.

You feel that he should be able to take care of himself. If he can't, another somebody will take advantage of him, so why not you?

In your plans to increase your income why be so bent upon money without labor—the "get-rich-quick schemes?"

Probably you think the least physical and mental effort brings the largest results in the form of rewards.

If you spent as many hours thinking about legitimate ways of making money you might have evolved something practical for yourself.

When you contemplate infractions of law you are starting a dangerous course that you will regret some day.

Try for a while to think out an honest way to make money, a safe way.

Penalized

Drawn by Nelson Harding

The way is difficult enough
Without the ball and chain
Which handicaps the worker so
He makes but little gain.

The thrifty and industrious
Who struggle on that road,
Weighted down by unjust penalties,
Deserve a lighter load. —N. H.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

At the Opera

THE first performance of the Metropolitan Opera Works indicates that the styles in singers have not changed.

"Bugs" Baer

The coloratura sopranos are still balloon tires of the musical world. We have always thought that Marion Talley went back to the farm to fatten up.

We do not know why a diva of the prima donna sex must weigh 200 pounds in her high-heeled stockings. Unless she requires the extra poundage to out-sing her press agent.

The bassos are also the same old 1903 model with eyebrows like the hanging gardens of Babylonia.

There has been no radical switch in the baritones whose Adam's apples still continue to run the scale of vertical harmony.

Wall street and opera was merged by Otto Kahn, the sweet-singing banker. We do not know whether Otto has an ear for music or an eye for wholesale television.

The most impressive feature of grand opera is the opening kick-off.

It is then that you hear 100 trick violinists banging away on musical saws while the chorus escorts the prima donna to the footlights.

IN MEMORIAM

—By Herbert Kaufman—

CENTER MARKET, centenarian and landmark, is about to wave good-bye to its ancient crony, the Capitol.

The eviction papers are already served. And that dingy, red brick barn, which remembers when Washington hadn't a surfaced road, a precedence code, a sewer or a lamp-post, is EN ROUTE to a wrecker's dump-heap.

The Federal Government has decided to house the Department of Justice on the site, thus forging ANOTHER stately link in the chain of official building, rapidly confiscating the lower side of midtown Pennsylvania Avenue.

CENTER MARKET GONE!

Sentiment has preserved many a LESS deserving shrine for posterity—and a national GHOST-WALK.

Celebrity, authority and loveliness foregathered yonder LONG before Dolly Madison arrived to choose titbits for the Presidential table.

CALHOUN'S footprints marked its sawdust. The mighty Webster strode there. Lincoln's gnarled hand betimes reached into its chinkapin sacks, and Grant more than ONCE nibbled a "branch" strawberry, AU NATUREL, from some Bennings farmer's stall.

The colonel's cook and the statesman's wife rubbed surah and calico in those democratic aisles and, elbow to elbow, judicially pinched pullet breasts.

Administration gourmets and local dandies personally selected Potomac shad and Chesapeake terrapin at Golden's fish stand.

The Illustrious Wormley, the Immortal Harvey, and Chamberlain the Great, were regularly noted in its early-bird throng—often as not toting baskets of special delicacies back to epicurean studios—before whose masterpieces in sauce, deep fat fry, and lineaged vintage, EVEN an Ochiltree, a Pauncefote, and a John Hay were proud to sit in reverence.

What a social melting pot was Center Market!

MIDGET Koreans from the legation at one corner of Iowa Circle, and chin-whiskered Bishop Hurst from another; woolly-mopped Frank Nichols, deviled crab virtuoso from the Navy Yard, and the eccentric Dunlop, with his painted neck, from Georgetown; Dr. Mary Walker in trousers and top-hat, and the majestic Mrs. Senator Dolph, with her be-buttoned flunky, from Judiciary Square; bandannaed mammies, gawping at obese Chinese merchants of the pre-Chop Suey era; that rising young composer, John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster at Marine Barracks; and jovial Frank Ward, soon to die in a brawl in a basement saloon: Center Market met them ALL.

Behrends, the pumpernickel baker, and Oyster, the butter dealer, knew them. "Yarb"-selling crones, squatted amidst bundles of sassafras and febrifuges; Gude, the tyro florist from Anacostia, and negro hunters from down Alexandria way, swinging chilled arms, beside heaps of cottontails, quail and mallards, watched them pass.

ARTHURS, Clevelands, Harrisons, McKinleys, meanwhile, come and go.

The wagon-tail hucksters on the C Street curb, at appointed hours, follow.

The last load of twist tobacco creaks out of Marlboro on an ox wain, and vanishes into the sunset.

The colored magpies, vending samp, sausage cake, eggs and mistletoe under the shabby canopy, weazen, wither and fade from the scene.

William Jennings Bryan, hamper on arm, palm leaf in action, alpaca-clad, casts smiles before swine—AND ONIONS—then drops from the picture.

Center Market ALONE survives, to take its COUP DE GRACE from an upstart blueprint, without a spark of veneration in its makeup or a wistful longing for the food that WAS—and its unrefrigerated ways.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

WE FEEL something and we act in response; let that suffice for the present. We may hardly observe that we feel something, and yet we may act in response.

H. G. Wells.

It is customary to distinguish, and contrast two aspects of behavior in reply to a sensory impression. As an example of the first kind we may consider what happens when the hand touches a hot object — the lighted end of a cigarette, for example. We withdraw the hand, and do so very quickly indeed, for the movement begins before our conscious minds are even aware of the pain. Such an action is called a reflex action, or more compactly a reflex.

It is entirely automatic and independent of the mind; we withdraw our hand, not because we think we are going to be burnt, but simply because we are made that way. It is, so to speak part of our anatomy.

But there is another type of response which does not appear to be so automatic. A certain element of memory and consciousness is involved. The reader hears a gong, for example, and makes appropriate preparations for lunch, or he hears the national anthem and stiffens up as he has been trained to do. The behavior of the higher animals is twofold in character; its acts may be of a simple and primary form, part of an inherited and automatic system of reflexes as much a part of one's constitution as the disposition of one's arteries or bowels, or it may involve a larger or smaller element of acquired response.

This quality is reflected in our anatomy, for the two systems of response have different seats.

The greater part of the cranium is filled with an oval, wrinkled mass, the cerebrum.

A vertical cleft divides this organ into two halves, the cerebral hemispheres, but the cleft lies in the median plane and is not seen in the figure. The hemispheres are the seat of the mind; it is here that those processes of memory and association take place which underlie responses of the second kind.

The rest of the central nervous system, the spinal cord and certain lower parts of the brain that are overlapped and hidden by the cerebral hemispheres, are concerned with automatic actions only. Only the activities that come up to the cerebrum affect consciousness.

By removing the cerebral hemispheres it is possible to get a mindless mammal, and to see just how far one's many actions are due to the intervention of the higher centres. Such animals have the spinal cord and the higher reflex centres intact, but they lack any power of understanding and memory, and presumably they lack any sort of continuing consciousness.

A "decerebrate" frog, for example, can breathe and swallow; it will sit in the usual position, and when pinched or otherwise stimulated it will jump away, guiding itself by sight so that it avoids obstacles; it turns over at once if it is put on its back. If it is put into water it swims about until it finds an island of some sort, such as a floating piece of wood, when it climbs up and then sits perfectly still.

A decerebrate dog can do much the same; it can breathe or swallow or walk about — indeed, it spends nearly the whole of its time in prowling, restlessly and aimlessly around—and at night it sleeps soundly. But these decerebrate animals differ from normal animals in the complete lack of any sign of psychical phenomena.

Mentally they are dead. All intimations of feeling cease. They seem unable to remember or to anticipate. If food is put into their mouths, they will chew it, swallow it, and digest it, but they never show any signs of appetite or hunger; even when they are starving they never look for food, and if food is put into their cages they will not touch it of their own accord. They do not recognize it as food.

And similarly with painful stimuli, a decerebrate dog will snarl and snap, but neither shows any sign of fear at a threat. They make no response at all unless they are directly stimulated.

Perhaps the most noteworthy point about these animals is not the things they cannot do, but the things they can do.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Almost every day a new high-blown treatise written with professional pomp offers a solution to "What is the matter with the theater?" Most of them strike me as mere academic fantasies. One guess is as good as another.

So mine is the public is fed up with the theater's sameness. The big appeal of the talkie was because it offered something different—even though mechanical. To illustrate the thesis it will be necessary lightly to whang several talented friends.

But here goes! The most successful stars on the stage have been doing exactly the same thing year after year. It was the same repetitious dry rot that shrunk a huge chain of vaudeville theaters from coast to coast to less than a slim handful.

Eddie Cantor, par example, is an agile comedian with a trigger mind. He has originality, but season after season prances from one side of the stage to the other with a burst of quick handclasps. Producers, it is only fair to say, are entirely to blame, and not the players.

Al Jolson is still leaning across the footlights callousing an off knee wah-wahing to an imaginary mammy. The talkies changed his pace a little, but not much. Helen Morgan has been drooping weary eyelids on a piano top in a fit of the miseries ever since she burst forth on Broadway.

Van and Schenck have never changed their routine. Florence Nash is always the wicked lady in the Broadway shake-down, as is Alice Brady. They have never permitted Ina Claire to forget her gold-digging role. Otis Skinner continues swashbuckling throatily. And Leon Errol still manipulates his gutta-percha leg.

Marilyn Miller and Mary Eaton with prop smiles are the same Cinderellas from year to year. Ray Dooley screeches, waves her arms and demands a milk bottle. And so it goes. History shows the enduring actors and actresses have shown versatility. Mrs. Fiske, Mansfield and Sothern are examples.

George M. Cohan, being his own producer, has been able to change his pace and show what a talented performer can do. He has been a hoofer, a jumping jack comedian, a singer and portrayer of gripping dramatic roles. Many others could do likewise to the profit of themselves, the public and the producers, if given the chance.

* * *

In a scene between two gold diggers in a current play one sneers at a hard boiled sister on the verge of "going straight:" "Go ahead, toss your rouge out the window. But if you are picking out a church, you better hurry. They are already packing them in." For some reason, it receives a big laugh.

* * *

But there is more to the churchly reference than airy persiflage. A roving reporter recently found on a Sunday morning that six churches in the Tenderloin radius of Broadway did not have an empty seat. In two, the overflows were seated in extra camp chairs.

The wounded gangster is usually pictured as refusing a hypodermic and passing out with a tight-lipped silence. But hospital doctors say the reticence is inspired solely by fear of what will happen if the patient recovers. Thus the extravagantly stressed gangland code is merely cowardice.

The Rising Star of Fashion

Fashion has taken the Star-Sapphire — the star of Destiny—for her own symbol. Its popularity was obtained from the legends of the East. In India, the Star-Sapphire was the symbol of good luck; of fortune; of true happiness to the owner. "Whosoever gazes," says the legend, "upon its six-pointed star is blessed of the gods."
